Allmand Firm On Hanging Ban

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General Warren Allmand will not back down from political pressures to have his recently-introduced proposals for the complete abolition of capital punishment withdrawn.

A spokesman for the solicitor-general's office said today that despite reports the federal cabinet has instructed Allmand to withdraw the proposed amendments, the solicitor-general will not back down."

"He believes in these proposals," said the spokesman.

Allmand told the Commons justice committee last Thursday that the government will introduce amendments to its capital punishment bill that will take away the hanging penalty for all murderers.

The Commons recently passed in principle a five-year continuation of the partial ban on hanging, but retained hanging for killers of prison guards and policemen.

In making his announcement, Allmand said the amendments would do away with the five-year partial-ban and also tighten parole procedures.

In another proposed change, murderers might not become eligible for parole until 20 years.

Allmand said a "thorough debate" across the country on the question of capital punishment prompted the government to propose the amendments.

But, he said, it would still be a free vote. Each MP would vote according to his or her own conscience.

The proposed ban brought a hostile reaction from some members in the Commons Friday.

Social Credit Leader Real Caouette, an advocate of capital punishment, asked whether the government also is planning to "distribute medals to Canadian murderers."

Robert Coats (PC—Cumberland-Colchester North) challenged the prime minister to decide the issue at the next federal election by holding a national plebiscite.

The proposed amendments come up for study in the Commons justice committee tonight. If passed the bill goes back to the Commons for final reading.

Clean Mill Offer

Rayonier is willing to build a $32.5 million recovery boiler to reduce pollution at its Port Alice pulp mill, counsel for the firm told the Pollution Control Board today.

About 100 people were on hand at the law courts this morning to hear Rayonier open its appeal of restrictions set earlier by William Venables, the province's director of pollution control.

The appeal, expected to take three or four days, is being heard by a three-member board chaired by Valter Raudsep.

Charles Locke, counsel for Rayonier Canada (B.C.) Ltd., said that while the company will build the recovery boiler it will need an extra six to nine months past the deadline of Dec. 1975 set by Venables.

Rayonier, he said, will also be asking that the water standards Venables wants met immediately be postponed until the recovery boiler is operational.

Venables, in issuing a revised permit to the pulp mill earlier this year, also instructed it to meet stricter pollution control standards by Dec., 1978.

Locke said the company will oppose these conditions and ask the board to reconsider them.

Meeting the stricter effluent controls would cost the company an additional $12 million and the firm will argue the standards are not necessary in the mill's location.

Hearing the appeal with Raudsep are board members E. H. Vernon, chief of fisheries management with the provincial department of recreation and conservation, and J. S. Allin, an official with the provincial department of agriculture.

Nixon 'Aided Cover-Up'

Times News Serivces

WASHINGTON — President Nixon not only knew about the Watergate cover-up as early as last fall, but also helped to keep the scandal quiet, ousted White House counsel John Dean testified today.

Outwardly calm, his voice hoarse after reading a 65,000-word statement to the Senate Watergate Committee Monday detailing his own knowledge and participation in the plot, Dean answered "that is correct" several times when asked if he was charging Nixon with complicity in a massive White House effort to cover up the Watergate scandal.

Nixon, meanwhile, remained mute and in seclusion in the western White House in San Clemente Calif. A spokesman said he was not watching the committee hearings on television, but was being kept informed on the relevant details.

Dean testified he became sure of the president's involvement Sept. 15, the day seven men — none of them White House officials — were indicted for the Watergate bugging, when the president called him in to congratulate him for his handling of the case.

"Did you have any doubt in your mind what the president was talking about?" asked Samuel Dash, the chief committee counsel.

"No, I did not," Dean replied.

"Therefore, Mr. [illegible] whatever doubt you may have had prior to Sept. 15 about the president's involvement in the cover-up, did you have any doubts with yourself about this after Sept. 15?" Dash asked.

"No, I did not," Dean replied.

While Dean conceded he had actively participated in the cover-up himself — which he said involved perjury, pay-offs to the original Watergate defendants to keep them quiet and impeding the FBI investigation — he denied that he was implicating Nixon in an effort to gain immunity from criminal prosecution.

"Mr. Dash, I have been asked to give testimony," Dean said. "That testimony happens to involve the president of the United States. I have no motive of using that testimony to obtain immunity from prosecution."

Dean has been granted immunity for what he tells the Senate investigating committ-

ROYAL ROUTE LINED

Times News Services

TORONTO — Crowds, standing three to four deep, lined the route to the Ontario legislature today to see Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip arrive in a motorcade for a loyal address from Premier William Davis. (Pictures, pages 3, 37).

The crowds were in a cheerful mood as the Queen, in her reply to the loyal address, said that no matter what differences Canadians share in creed, color and tradition the law was the "one powerful, unifying force."

"Under the protection of the law and the system of parliamentary democracy, people from all over the world have been able to choose their various ways of being Canadian, respecting others but not forsaking their inheritance."

The Queen, making her first visit to Toronto in 14 years, was to spend the entire day in the city.

Her reference to the rule of law was made in French. She described Canada as a mature and independent nation and the people of Ontario as recipients of "a rich endowment of wisdom and nature."

Davis said the Queen's personal example "cast a civilizing influence upon all of our deliberations in meeting the challenges of an increasingly complex world.

"While Your Majesty's position commands respect in itself, it is Your Majesty's gracious and humane occupation of that position which evokes devotion and loyalty on a very immediate and personal level."

Earlier, a crowd of about 500 greeted the Queen and Prince Philip as they left the Royal York Hotel.

10 More Persons Kidnapped

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Argentine police today reported 10 kidnappings within the past 24 hours despite President Campora's promise his government will "firmly exercise its authority to assure orderly change."

Terrorists blamed for the unprecedented wave of kidnappings now hold 14 persons. Two other persons died of assassins' bullets.

More than 70 persons have been kidnapped by leftist guerrillas or others so far this year with ransoms paid estimated at more than $7 million.

Two of the victims were Alberto Mazzarella, 13, taken by armed men on a Cordoba street and Antanas Valinsky, 47, manager of Cordoba electric items plant, taken on his way home from work Monday.

MOTHERLESS FAWN was flown to Vancouver after being found abandoned near Terrace and will make its new home in the city children's zoo in Stanley Park. Holding the fawn is Willi Thorogood, who accompanied the animal on the flight south.

Parkland Cash Approved

A special warrant of $2 million for buying parkland was approved by the provincial cabinet Monday.

The money was not previously included in the 1973-74 budget, according to parks branch director Bob Ahrens, because the government "thought land acquisition for provincial park purposes would be accomplished by the Land Commission."

"But in view of all the debate (over the Land Commission Bill) and since the commission is not moving as fast as planned," Ahrens said today, "land buying will be through the parks branch.

Ahrens did not disclose what areas were involved in parkland acquisition but said his branch hopes to acquire 15 to 20 new properties by the end of the year.

The properties will form new parks as well as additions to existing provincial parks.

U.S. TRADE DEFICIT SENDS $ PLUNGING

LONDON (AP) — Disappointing United States trade figures sent the U.S. dollar plunging and gold prices soaring today on Western European markets.

The U.S. currency sank to a record low of 2.5350 West German marks in Frankfurt, making the rate about 39½ cents for a mark. The dollar also weakened sharply in London and Paris.

Gold prices jumped more than $4 an ounce following a U.S. commerce department announcement that the United States suffered a foreign trade deficit of $157.9 million in May, an adverse swing of more than $350 million from April's surplus of $196.3 million. Gold usually rises when the dollar is in trouble.

Break Spills Oil In Jasper Park

JASPER, Alta. (CP) — An oil spill of up to 1,000 gallons inside the eastern gate of Jasper National park was being cleaned up Monday night by a crew of about 20 men.

The spill, spotted Sunday morning by a CNR trainman who reported it to park authorities, occurred in a 24-inch pipeline owned by Trans Mountain Oil Pipeline Co.

A company official said a four-inch crack at the base of the pipe caused the leak. It was believed the leak started Saturday about 150 yards from the Athabasca River.

Oil was spotted in Lake Brule, downstream from the spill, said Bruce Wilson, assistant park superintendent.

He said the high water level of the river at this time would help dissipate the oil.

A company spokesman estimated it would take up to three days to clean up the oil at the spill site. "We can't repair the leak until the oil is cleaned up because . . . there would be high fire danger."

Wilson said park authorities are satisfied the company is doing all in its power to clean up the spill.

The pipeline carries oil from Edmonton to British Columbia and the United States.

NEWS BRIEFS

Kelley Approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate judiciary committee approved today the nomination of Clarence Kelley, Kansas City police chief, to be director of the FBI. The full Senate is expected to act on the nomination later this week, possibly Wednesday.

Drivers All 'Sick'

VANCOUVER (CP) — All 52 drivers employed by CN Express here booked off sick Monday. The Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers said the men were upset with delays in national contract negotiations.

N. Vietnam Dry

HONG KONG (AP) — Severe drought has hit parts of North Vietnam, and the "crop condition is very serious to critical" in five provinces south of Hanoi, North Vietnam's official newspaper reported today.

Guatemala Shaken

GUATEMALA CITY (Reuter) — Repeated earth tremors rocked the Guatemalan capital today, cutting electricity and spreading panic among the one million inhabitants. There were no immediate reports of damage or loss of life.

Final Pitches In Manitoba

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba's political leaders have begun making their final appeals for voters as the provincial election campaign entered its final 48 hours today.

Premier Ed Schreyer and Conservative Leader Sidney Spivak plan to spend the last two days before Thursday's vote with a combination of work in their home ridings and visits to other parts of the province.

Liberal Leader Izzy Asper, on the other hand, will be concentrating his attention on Winnipeg constituencies.

Former B.C. premier W. A. C. Bennett entered the election battle Monday by delivering an impassioned warning to Manitobans not to be fooled by the "sugar-coated pill" of socialism.

Campaigning for Jake Froese, seeking re-election as the Social Credit MLA for Rhineland, Bennett said pioneers who settled in Western Canada came to the country because they are seeking liberty.

"The homesteaders did not ask for all-powerful governments. He only sought freedom for himself, wife and children . . . not a system of heavy hand of socialism."

Socialism is a doctrine foreign "to this free country of Canada," he added.

"Don't be taken in by those socialists. This will be the most important vote you will ever cast."

Bennett, accompanied by former B.C. cabinet ministers Dan Campbell and Grace McCarthy, also predicted a resurgence of Social Credit in Canada.

He said both B.C. and Alberta would return Social Credit governments in the next provincial elections and Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Quebec would have Social Credit governments within 10 years.

Asper concluded his campaign outside Winnipeg Monday night with a visit to a meeting in Brandon, featuring a speech by National Defence Minister James Richardson.

An aide to the Liberal leader said Asper will be spending the final two days of the campaign with candidates in Winnipeg and in his own downtown riding of Wolseley.

All three leaders have predicted victory for their parties. Schreyer has appealed for a mandate to continue the work his government began four years ago after an upset victory, Spivak has been promoting his party as the only credible alternative to the NDP, and Asper has said his team of candidates will revive the party after a poor showing in the 1969 contest.

At dissolution, the NDP had 29 of the 57 seats in the legislature, the Conservatives 20 and the Liberals four.

Vancouver PO Closed

VANCOUVER (CP) — The main post office here will neither send nor receive mail today.

"The main post office is closed down," said public affairs officer Dave Stutters. "Nothing's going in and nothing's going out."

About 25 sorters walked out early Monday to protest a five-hour suspension of three union officials. Stutters had said the three were disciplined for "insurbordination."

He said Tuesday some mail is being delivered from postal stations in Vancouver, but no mail is being picked up from mail boxes.

"This will make a big difference in delivery to the interior of the province," said Stutters.

Brezhnev Holds French Summit

Thalidomide Battle Opens in N.J.

Times News Services

NEWARK, N.J. — A U.S. federal court judge considered a request Monday that would make New Jersey the battleground for negligence cases involving nearly a quarter of Canada's thalidomide children.

The court was asked to decide whether it can award damages to the families of 22 French-Canadian children deformed by the drug thalidomide, including an earless boy and a limbless girl.

The families never sued in Canada, mainly because of a provision in the legal code of Quebec which provides that a person suffering an injury said to be related to a product must file a damage suit within one year, if he is to file one at all.

An estimated 35 French-Canadian thalidomide victims were born in the early 1960s before it became general public knowledge that a link was suspected between ingestion of the tranquilizer in early pregnancy and the occurrence of deformities in the fetus. The drug has long been off the market.

Now the forum for these victims has moved to New Jersey, where one of the families has sued in U.S. district court.

Richardson - Merrell, Inc., which manufactured the sedative, argued the families have no basis for suing there.

"There are no New Jersey contacts whatsoever," the firm said in papers filed in advance of Monday's hearings.

The families' lawyer, Arthur Raynes, met the company argument with a disclosure the plant that manufactured thalidomide is in Phillipsburg, N.J.

In New Jersey, the statute of limitations does not even begin to run until a person reaches the age of 18.

Gaston and Lorraine Henry of Vimont Laval, Que., had a son, Denis, born on March 8, 1962. "Although I asked for Denis, they would not bring him to me," his mother said in a deposition.

"That is when I first realized that there must be something wrong," Mrs. Henry said. "When I finally did get to see him, I learned what it was.

"Denis had no ears," she said. "His face was horribly crooked . . . I saw that he was trying to cry, but the sound that he made was not the sound of a baby crying. It tee. But federal prosecutors have rejected his efforts to gain a promise that he will not be prosecuted at all, and he is known to be a target of the grand jury that is investigating Watergate.

Asked why he waited until April to tell federal investigators what he knew, Dean said it was because all along he was "hopeful that the president himself would step forward and tell of his involvement in some of these things."

And he agreed with Dash that the chief concern at the White House over Watergate was that the spy squad "had been caught, not that they had broken in" to Democratic Party headquarters.

Dean said H. R. Haldeman, the White House chief of staff who resigned with him and John Ehrlichman on April 30, "spent more time with the president" than any other aide and that he believed Haldeman had been fully briefed on the bugging plans in advance and "would have reported them to the president.

Dean also told the committee:

—The justice department, which served as the symbol of the Nixon administration's law and order posture, was manipulated and pressured repeatedly to assist in a cover-up of the Watergate affair.

Whenever the federal investigation was getting too close to the White House, the calls went out from him or other top presidential aides to get the justice department or the FBI to lay off or ease up on certain aspects of the probe.

—White House press secretary Ronald Ziegler was never told all the facts about Watergate despite his repeated requests to be briefed in full.

Dean said Ziegler was given instructions on how to "hedge and bob and weave" when reporters asked questions about Watergate, but never was told the true and full story.

After Dean finishes his testimony, the spotlight will swing on to Mitchell, a loyal Nixon aide for more than a decade.

Ten days ago, Jeb Stuart Magruder told the Senate committee that Mitchell as late as this spring was still sticking to the cover-up story devised to hide his and other high-level officials' involvement in the affair.

Monday, Dean corroborated that account and added a new wrinkle — testifying that Nixon and his closest advisers were plotting at that same time to pin the blame for the bizarre bugging on Mitchell to save themselves.

It will be Mitchell's turn at the witness table later this week, probably Thursday. Staff investigators hope to learn at a preliminary interview with him tonight whether Dean's testimony hinting of betrayal will have goaded the former attorney general and Nixon campaign manager into breaking ranks at last.

Mitchell's testimony, in short, will be critical to whether Dean's can be believed.

Meanwhile, elsewhere in Washington, Rep. Paul McCloskey (R—Calif.) accused Nixon of violating his oath of office and called for a House inquiry. It was his third attempt to discuss impeachment in Congress.

In a 20-minute speech before less than two dozen colleagues, McCloskey said the oath violation alone, without the Watergate scandal, was reason enough for the House judiciary committee to begin an inquiry into Nixon's conduct.

Flying Ambulance Nearer

An air ambulance service for B.C. moved a step closer to reality Monday with the purchase of two twin-engine Cessna Citation aircraft by the province.

The six-passenger fanjet aircraft each cost between $650,000 and $675,000.

Transportation Minister Robert Strachan said the planes will be used by senior civil servants and cabinet ministers "on government business" as well as the emergency flights.

Details of the air ambulance scheme have not yet been worked out but the minister said the planes will be outfitted with "a certain type of communication system outside the norm so they can be contacted immediately and diverted for air ambulance service."

A survey of emergency services in B.C. is being conducted by Dr. Peter Ransford, of Victoria, as part of the government's year-long health security project.

Ransford is studying the need for new types of emergency service including an investigation of other air ambulance systems. His report will be presented to the provincial government in mid-July.

A spokesman for the project said today the short take-off capacity of the two new aircraft make them ideal for providing ambulance pickup at small northern centres.

"With these planes we can get them (patients) out to regional centres like Prince George and Kamloops, where they've developed very competent services to treat industrial accidents," the spokesman said.

Purchase of planes is a cost-saving move, the minister said, since the seven twin-Beechcraft used by the civil service now "spend far too much time on the ground" being repaired and tested.

"The present aircraft are very limited . . . two of them can't go beyond Hope or Campbell River," said Strachan.

One of the old planes will be donated to Selkirk College in Castlegar for use by its air technology class and a second may be given to the B.C. Institute of Technology. The others will continue to be used.

The new planes won't be used for "jaunts," Strachan said, adding that all plane logs are tabled in house each session.

"I examine logs of aircraft pretty closely and they're about 99 per cent used by civil servants," he said, "primarily in the lands and forests department."

The Cessna Citations will be flown by present provincial government pilots who will take an upgrading course next month.

COURTSHIP DRAWS BLAST

SLOUGH, England (CP) — A young couple courting in tall grass was shot by a farm worker who said he thought they were a rabbit.

"I saw a white patch moving in the grass," said Raphaelo Darienza who blasted the pair with both barrels of his shotgun.

They were taken to hospital by a passing motorist.

Belfast Alderman Stabbed

BELFAST (UPI) — A Roman Catholic politician and his Protestant woman companion were stabbed to death and their bodies dumped in an abandoned quarry today, police reported. A telephone caller said they were killed by Protestant extremists in reprisal for the murder of a mentally-retarded Protestant youth.

Following the call, police recovered the bodies of Henry "Paddy Wilson, a member of the Belfast city council, and Miss Irene Andrews, 21, from a disused North Belfast quarry shortly before dawn.

Later, police reported that a Pakistani who sold goods to army camps was shot through the head by two youths who waved down his van in Londonderry's Catholic Bogside district.

The three deaths brought to 837 the total of persons killed in nearly four years of violence among Northern Ireland's majority Protestants, minority Catholics and British Security forces.

Belfast police said Wilson, 40, had been stabbed 30 times and Miss Andrews 20 times.

"The people who did this can only be described as animals," the spokesman said.

Miss Andrews, a local government employee, also was one of Ulster's top ballroom dancers and appeared several times on national television.

Food Additives Linked To Problem Child

NEW YORK (UPI) — An allergist said Monday he has found a tentative link between artificial flavor and color additives used in processed foods and learning and behavior problems in school children.

Thousands of these widely-used chemicals are known to induce hives, asthma, skin eruptions, itching and other allergies in some persons, Dr. Ben F. Feingold said at the 122nd annual convention of the American Medical Association.

Feingold, chief emeritus in the department of allergy at Kaiser-Permanente Medical Centre in San Francisco, said the additives also might contribute to hyperkinesis. That condition ranges from restlessness to extreme hyperactivity, reduces the attention span and causes learning and behavior problems.

The incidence of hyperkinesis has been variously estimated at two per cent to as high as 25 per cent of the school-age population. Increasingly, ritalin or amphetamines are prescribed, a practice condemned in some medical quarters.

He said they were put on a diet free of color and flavor additives, with marked improvements in their behavior and learning ability resulting within a matter of weeks in all but eight to 10 cases. "We've been able to turn them on or off at will with our diets."

These preliminary clinical findings must be tested under proper scientific controls, he said. "We've got circumstantial evidence, but we need a complete study," he said. Such a study is planned at two schools in South San Francisco and Santa Cruz.

Artificial flavorings and colorings comprise about 80 per cent of 2,764 food processing chemicals approved as safe for use by the Food and Drug Administration in 1958, Feingold said. The remaining 20 per cent include perservatives and other chemicals.

Denis is unable to speak, cannot see to either side, is retarded in learning and has had 25 operations. "People stare at Denis and point at him in public," his mother said. "Children outside the house laugh at him and some even called him a 'monster' . . . today, thank God, he can wear long hair over the place where his ears should be . . ."

"Now that he is almost a teenager, Denis is more conscious than ever of the fact that he does not look like other young people his age," Mrs. Henry said. "It depresses him; he looks in the mirror and says, 'What is the use of dressing up with the looks that I have?"

The Henry family is suing for unspecified compensatory damages plus "such other relief as may be fair and just."

Judge Coolahan deferred a decision on whether the case can go to trial. If he rules in favor of the Henrys, other French-Canadian families probably will sue in Newark.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Satisfaction or your money refunded.

What have you got to lose?

Your Eyes. A Pacific sunset. A good book. A game of golf. A child's smile. That's what you've got to lose.

Your Hearing. A bird at your window. The laughter of children. A good joke. Your baby's first word. That's what you've got to lose.

Your Hands. A game of softball. Buttoning your shirt. Tying your laces. Brushing your teeth. That's what you've got to lose.

Your Back. An afternoon of gardening. Getting into your car. A day skiing. A comfortable night's sleep. That's what you've got to lose.

Your Legs. A brisk walk on the beach. A game of tennis. Going upstairs. Going downstairs. A bicycle ride. That's what you've got to lose.

Your Life. The entire rest of your life. That's what you've got to lose.

You have a lot to lose.
And safety has a lot to give. Follow safety regulations. Wear protective equipment. Have a safe attitude. Have a safe life.

Title Act Loophole Surfaces

A loophole in recently amended legislation regarding condominiums reared its head at Oak Bay council Monday night.

Council was considering its first condominium application under the amended Strata Title Act, which gives local councils the right to approve, refuse or approve, subject to conditions, any condominium in its area.

Owners of Hampshire House, a 36-suite apartment block at 1159 Beach Drive, have applied for approval of a strata plan under the amended act to allow conversion to a condominium.

Lawyer Allan Cox — appearing for the owners, Paul and Marie Hansen — pointed out the loophole to council.

If council were to refuse to approve the conversion under the Strata Title Act, the owners could always proceed with the conversion by making the block a co-operative, said Cox.

In this case, they would not need council's approval.

"My client is not here trying to say, if you don't do this we'll do the other thing," Cox told council.

Cox said he just wanted to point out "there is the other way to do it, which we would prefer not to do."

Mayor Frances Elford said she had been made fully aware of the loophole at a recent conference in Vancouver.

"They (the provincial government) have done us no favor at all in wishing on us a piece of legislation that is almost useless."

The loophole of creating a co-operative condominium is being "fully taken advantage of in Vancouver," Elford said, and the legislation will have to be amended.

Council decided it should canvass tenants in Hampshire House before giving approval to the application.

Converted under the Strata Title Act, each suite in the block would be owned by an individual owner. Converted as a condominium, the block would be jointly owned by all residents, who would hold shares in the condominium.

Cox said 18 of the tenants at Hampshire House were willing to buy their apartments; three and possibly a fourth found in inconvenient to buy so were being offered five-year leases.

Six suites were becoming vacant, three tenants were on holidays, and four were going to move because of the conversion. The 36th suite is the manager's suite.

QUIET CHAT with individuals in the crowds of spectators was typical of today's events as the Queen and Prince Philip toured Toronto. Tonight, they will attend a civic dinner and Wednesday travel by train to Cobourg and Kingston.

Gauvin Making Farewell Calls

By JAMES ANDERSON
Times Correspondent

SAIGON — Ambassador Michel Gauvin, head of Canada's delegation to the International Commission of Control and Supervision has started paying his farewell calls on the Saigon official circuit.

Informed sources say that Gauvin is expected to leave Vietnam in the first week of July. Vernon Turner, the Number Two man in the Canadian delegation, will take over for the final weeks of Canada's ICCS role.

Gauvin will visit Canada briefly, then return to Athens and his regular post as Canadian ambassador to Greece.

The Canadian delegation would not comment officially on Gauvin's plans, but his farewell calls on the Speaker of the South Vietnamese lower house and the president of the senate were announced by official Vietnamese sources.

The Canadian delegation head is currently chairman of the ICCS, but has not chaired a regular plenary session of the commission this month because of a stalemate over the handling of ICCS reports. ICCS teams, however, continue to investigate ceasefire violations.

A backlog of some 200 reports has piled up since the deadlock paralyzed the work of the commission's central body in mid-May.

C. SAANICH LOOKS AT POLICE NEEDS

Central Saanich will hire an expert to study its present and future police needs.

The decision was made at Monday night's council meeting because the growing municipality had added men to the police force but has "no over-all picture of where we're going or how the force should be established," Mayor Archibald Galbraith said today.

"When we hire a new chief we want to have guidelines for him to follow," the mayor said.

He said the municipality hoped to advertise for a new chief of police during the month of July.

"We'd like to have the report in first," Galbraith said.

He said he will consult the attorney-general's department before hiring anybody.

John Gelling resigned as police chief late in May and his position is being filled on a temporary basis by retired RCMP superintendent Gordon Gerrie, who is also area coroner.

Galbraith says he expects Gerrie to remain as acting chief for another month.

Gelling was injured April 30 along with two other policemen during a scuffle with a knife-wielding suspect.

Constable James Earl was dismissed from the force Jan. 10, but the B.C. Labor Relations Board ordered him reinstated. Council is appealing the ruling.

Council recently considered replacing the municipal force with RCMP service but finally decided against the move.

Alberta Tories Win

CALGARY (CP) — The Social Credit and Liberal party leaders are digging in for the next round while the Progressive Conservative party celebrates retaining the Calgary Foothills riding in Monday's provincial elertion.

Stewart McCrae, a 43-year-old oil executive running for his first time, won the race with a 1,484-vote lead over his nearest rival, Social Credit Leader Werner Schmidt, who had 4,290 votes.

Liberal Leader Bob Russell netted 753 votes, well behind the 2,171 ballots cast for Nancy Eng, 43, the New Democratic Party hopeful. Glenn Pylypa, leader of the Modernization Party of Alberta, was last with 13 votes.

It was the second successful test at the polls for the Conservatives since they toppled the Social Credit administration 21 months ago.

Paper-Only Zoning Urged

Two new highrise zonings categories proposed by Esquimalt council's planning committee should exist on paper only, Ald. George McCreadie said today.

The two new categories should be guidelines to developers, but not actually be applied to any property as of right now, said McCreadie.

He will make his proposal at Tuesday's council meeting.

Any highrises should be done under a land use contract instead, he said.

McCreadie is a member of the planning committee, which Monday drafted the bylaw creating the new zonings.

The zonings will allow 12-storey buildings, either highrise apartment buildings or highrise apartment buildings with ground level stores.

The alderman's suggestion the new zonings not actually be used was not accepted by committee chairman Ken Hill or member Ed de Costa.

The committee at a previous meeting recommended the two zonings be placed on part of two blocks on Esquimalt Road between Admirals and Nelson.

"I really don't think you can write a zoning bylaw with enough teeth in it," McCreadie said today.

Land use contracts would give council more control on highrises and possibly allow council to get some money from developers to help finance recreational lands and facilities, he said.

"I think we need a little bit of experience in highrise development," said McCreadie. Until now Esquimalt has always limited apartments to four storeys, but even there some buildings conforming to the bylaw caused complaints by some people, he added.

"If it can happen with four-storey frame buildings it can happen with highrises.

"I don't think we should make the same mistakes" some other municipalities have made, he said.

make it with Gilbey's

If Mother Nature had her way, this young sprout wouldn't have much chance.

A young Douglas Fir trying to grow up inside a forest will probably never make it. It will either become stunted or die, because a Douglas Fir cannot grow tall and strong in the shade of other trees. In the constant battle for life-giving sunlight, millions of trees will continue to lose until Mother Nature gives them a chance. Or, until we do.

Nature's life cycle: it includes death, decay and waste.

Trees, like all other living things, ultimately die. The life cycle may encompass hundreds of years, yet, after maturing, the tree slowly, imperceptibly becomes senile or "decadent". During these twilight years, the old tree is beset by foes: insect infestation, disease, windstorms—foes which the tree no longer has the strength or vitality to endure.

In the rain belt areas of B.C. species such as Hemlock and Cedar—"shade tolerant" trees—become decayed and fall, one by one. As each tree dies, another of its kind takes its place and begins to grow, even though shaded by other trees. Thus, as space becomes available in this particular environment, the forest is constantly renewed, one tree at a time.

However, in other forest areas of B.C. where stands of Douglas Fir predominate, Nature terminated the life cycle in a sudden, wide-spread catastrophe. Every two hundred years or so, prior to man's intervention, holocaustic fires — usually caused by lightning—would wipe out entire generations of mature trees, thereby opening the land to sunshine. In this way, a new generation of fir trees was given a chance to live. The new seedlings, at last unshaded and unopposed, began to reach for the sun, and a new forest was born.

The life cycle (revised): it includes a useful harvest.

Man has learned how to interrupt the natural life cycle of the forest—and how to complete it, as well. Instead of allowing mature trees to fall and decay, or to go up in smoke, we harvest them at their prime and put the resulting forest products to a myriad of good uses. Then, to complete the cycle, we plant new trees—a new generation living hundreds of years ahead of its time. And what a new generation it is!

Man-made trees: going Nature one better.

The seedling you see in the picture is a product of years of research and experimentation. It is the offspring of a genetically superior parent tree and it represents only one phase in our search for "the perfect tree".

This search, a result of close co-operation between the forest service and the forest industry, will eventually lead us to many species of stronger, healthier trees—a forest of them.

Yes, a forest. Because that seedling is not alone. It's only one of the 415 million new trees now planted throughout B.C. By the end of 1973, that number will increase to 490 million and, by 1980, government and industry will plant 150 million new trees a year—every year. And that's not counting the millions of new trees planted by Nature herself.

You can bet that seedling has a chance to survive. The forest industry of B.C. is betting on it. Not just because the forest is our business, but because we've made it our business to make sure the forest wil, always be there. For all of us.

A Time for Controls

At least one Canadian political party is now on record as favoring the implementation of temporary wage and price controls. Speaking at Smithers B.C. last weekend Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said a Conservative administration would impose wage and price controls for about two years. An immediate 90-day freeze would allow time to consider more selective controls.

Mr. Stanfield has progressed in his thinking since the last election. At his nomination meeting on September 13, 1972, he said the Conservatives would not hesitate to use temporary wage and price controls if inflation threatened to get out of control as the economy pepped up.

In less than one year rampant inflation has convinced the Conservative leader that a vague election promise should become solid party policy. What has brought about the change in a party where non-interference with the marketplace is almost holy writ? Here are a few facts from Statistics Canada. Food prices have jumped more than 15 per cent in the last 12 months. The consumer index shot up 7.3 per cent in the same period. In May the index stood at 148.4, meaning that items costing $10 in 1961 — the base index year — cost $14.84 today. Housewives know only too well what this rate of inflation does to the family budget.

Between April and May of this year vegetables increased 10.7 per cent in price. Fruit climbed 6.7 per cent, and dairy products notched a 1.7 per cent increase. The rise of eight-tenths of one per cent in clothing prices was almost triple the normal April to May increase.

Until Mr. Stanfield's policy statement last weekend, the national political parties seemed to shrug their shoulders at Canada's number one economic problem, now that unemployment is seasonally declining. The Liberal minority government claims inflation is a world problem, brought on by steep rises in world commodities such as food and oil, and that domestic controls would accomplish nothing. Social Crediters keep mumbling about guaranteed national income being the panacea. And the New Democratic Party says temporary controls only slow down the inflationary spiral. When they are lifted prices continue their upward climb unabated.

The NDP has a small point. Neither Liberals nor Conservatives like tinkering with the economy. But temporary controls would slow down the tide that threatens to engulf us. In an interim period — such as the 90 day freeze favored by Mr. Stanfield — perhaps more selective controls could be worked out. The Conservatives are on the right track but it is up to the Liberal administration to throw the switch.

Energy and Foresight

Few British Columbians will be surprised that increased hydro electric power rates are a certainty in coming years. Everything else is going up, and as Hydro Director James Wilson said the other day, power demands are doubling every 10 years and they may even outstrip that rate before the decade closes. The energy crisis is here.

Yet British Columbia's electrical power output is only exceeded by that of Ontario and Quebec. In 1969 — the latest figures available — B.C. produced more than 25 million kilowatts of power, and incidentally exported more than one million kilowatts to the United States. Ten years later we learn that former Premier Bennett insisted on taking cash payment rather than power when he negotiated the Columbia River treaty with the United States. After many years of championing the use of electrical power for everything from ice crushers to can openers Hydro plans to stop advertising in the hope of decreased demand.

It's all water over the dam now but a little foresight by government and Hydro officials might have put us in an enviable position today. Even 10 years ago there were plenty of indications that energy could become a scarce resource. Now the NDP government, like its Social Credit predecessor shows little interest in investigating the feasibility of nuclear power for the province. Perhaps nuclear power is not viable, in terms of economics or safety. But a firm grasp on nuclear technology is needed before making long term decisions. Some of these decisions must be made very soon and it would be reassuring to know that we had learned some hard lessons from past mistakes.

Gesture of Friendship

India's Prime Minister Indira Gandhi has paid her brief visit to Victoria, little troubled by the weekend drizzle or the mini-demonstrations by a few Pakistanis, has enjoyed the flowers at Butchart's, the hospitality at Government House, the tributes of her countrymen and the exchange of pleasantries with dignitaries here.

In the broader terms of her formal visit to Canada, the Victoria interlude is notable largely for the courtesy shown this capital by the chief figure of one of the world's most populous races. Her tributes to Canadian peace efforts have been graceful and her indication of further meetings between representatives of her government and ours on matters of cultural exchange, economic concerns, scientific and technological developments and commerce have been gratifying.

The occasion has marked another point of interest in local annals, a very short sojourn here of one of the world's oustanding figures and personalities — and a reminder of common human interests between people of Asia and those of North America, a reminder all the more valuable when so much discord exists in international orchestration.

HAROLD GREER

Fighting a Ghost in Manitoba

WINNIPEG — The ghost of "socialism" hovers over Manitoba's provincial election and it has been producing a very spookey campaign.

It is a totally imaginary ghost. Nobody has ever seen or felt it because Manitoba has never had a socialist government and it doesn't have one now in Premier Ed Schreyer and his New Democrats. But the fear of what might be is real enough and it is scaring the politicians into doing some very strange things.

The NDP, for example, went into the campaign with a sound, solid strategy. All the polls, private and public, show it to be comfortably ahead of the Conservatives and Liberals, and Mr. Schreyer miles ahead in personal popularity. Result: an NDP campaign slogan which declares, "Keep your government yours. Re-elect Ed Schreyer's New Democrats."

The party literature is similarly straightforward. Each NDP candidate has a thick volume on what the government has done in the past four years and proposed to do if re-elected; there is remarkably little in it that can fairly be called socialist. The literature includes, in a stroke of genius, a reproduction of a broadsheet used in the 1969 election in which the NDP said it would bring "quality government" to Manitoba, and showing that the programs therein promised have in fact been carried out.

But Mr. Schreyer has not been campaigning all that much on his record or his program. He spends most of his time denying that he is a radical, disowning his own faintly-socialist "Guidelines for the Seventies" and assuring everyone that there is plenty of room in Manitoba for private enterprise.

No Dogmatic Stupidity

"Private enterprise is essential to an effective and efficient economy," he said in a speech at Gimli. "One thing we will avoid like the plague is to become slavishly dependent on one economic system or another, so slavishly dependent that it forces us into dogmatic stupidity."

Mr. Schreyer, in short, is on the defensive, which is not where government leaders should be or like to be in an election campaign. He is on the defensive because, like all politicians, he would hate to lose for bogus reasons and the bogeyman of "socialism" has him frightened.

Perhaps he should be. The Conservatives, who held 20 seats in the 57-seat Legislature and have the best chance of toppling the government, are campaigning on the theme "Freedom of choice and opportunity now", with the emphasis on the "now". The clear implication is that if the NDP is returned for a second term, freedom will be lost.

The Liberals under Winnipeg tax lawyer I. H. Asper held only four seats at dissolution and are more desperate — and blatant. "Self control not State Control," the Liberal ads declare and there are lots of them. Some of the Liberal literature clearly implies that the Schreyer government may be equated with communism.

The Winnipeg Free Press, that outpost of 19th century laissez-faire liberalism, has rarely missed an editorial chance in the past four years to use the adjective "socialist" when discussing the government. Faced with the problem of Mr. Schreyer's repeated denials, popularity and record, the Free Press has ingeniously escaped to the future: who will take over, it asked early in the campaign, if perchance the NDP is returned and Mr. Schreyer then succeeds David Lewis as the party's national leader?

"The logical choice at the moment," the Free Press concluded ominously, "seems to be Sidney Green, whose socialist ideas far outstrip in radicalism Mr. Schreyer's actions."

Conservative leader Sidney Spivak gets the same idea across when, hesitating to attack Mr. Schreyer personally, he says the voters must remember that if they re-elect the premier, they re-elect "that bunch" along with him. Invariably, identification of "that bunch" produces the name of Sidney Green.

'IZZY' ASPER
. . . hardsell on the right

Mines Minister Green does indeed confess to being a socialist in the Canadian tradition — meaning he doesn't think "socialism" should stand in the way of a good idea. He is really quite a moderate fellow whose directness in debate is easily confused with radicalism; but then political bogeymen are much more effective if they can be personalized.

Just what effect all this will have on the voters remains to be seen, but at this stage it doesn't seem to be working. Mr. Spivak is too fair-minded a politician to carry it off effectively and he has virtually deserted the Conservative theme in favor of expounding his own programs, which differ from NDP policies only in detail and emphasis.

"You could shake Schreyer and me up in a bottle," he admitted to reporters last week, "and it wouldn't make much difference which one came out."

"Izzy" Asper for his part has gone too far the other way and his appeal now seems limited to the extreme right wing of the political spectrum. The almost universal opinion in political circles is that Mr. Asper is an intellectual lightweight and something of an oddity — "Izzy really believes in a free market place economy," to quote Mr. Spivak — whose aggressive hardsell approach will not restore the Liberal Party's long-waning fortunes on the Manitoba prairie.

The result has been a dull campaign remarkably free of confrontation. The choice between "socialism" and "free enterprise" simply hasn't materialized, partly because Mr. Schreyer and Mr. Spivak have no heart for it but mostly because history has passed it by.

"Don't allow yourself or your candidate to be sidetracked by meaningless rhetoric or ideological hangups that no longer apply," an editorial in an influential journal advises. "When your candidate tries to reduce these very complex questions of human relations in a 1973 Manitoba society to a simple choice between socialism and private enterprise, don't buy it."

Boxing Shadows

The editorial appeared, of all places, in the official organ of the Manitoba Chamber of Commerce.

The politicians, however, are still not completely sure that the ghost has gone. They may not be boxing one another but they are boxing at shadows. When Mr. Schreyer, for example, happily predicts the NDP will go from 31 to 33 seats — a bare majority — he is fighting the fear of what might be, the fear that the NDP, if given a solid mandate, might become truly socialist.

Party veterans like Sidney Green scoff at the fear. The NDP's win in 1969, he says, was no fluke, no aberration which the voters will now want to correct. The NDP won, he insists, because the Conservatives of Walter Weir were discredited, because the NDP had established itself over the Liberals as the alternative, and because the public wanted the programs it offered.

One of those programs was the abolition of medicare premiums and the paying for medicare out of income taxation. "When Walter Weir called this socialism," says Mr. Green, "he converted more people to socialism in three months than I've done in 10 years."

JAMES RESTON

Lifting the Shake-Down Lid

WASHINGTON — Before long the prosecutors in the Watergate case will start investigating the big financial contributions to the Nixon re-election committee, and this is likely to open up a whole new chapter in the current political scandals.

The factual situation, which the big corporations and their lawyers will be wise to look into on an urgent basis, is as follows: The names of the big contributors were compiled by former Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans, the principal Republican fund-raiser, but were shredded when the burglars were caught in Democratic headquarters.

However, when the lawyers for John Gardner's Common Cause were taking a deposition from Hugh W. Sloan Jr., former treasurer of the Finance Committee to Re-elect the President, he told them that another copy of the list was sent to President Nixon and that he understood it was in the possession of Rosemary Woods, the President's secretary.

Copy Turned Over

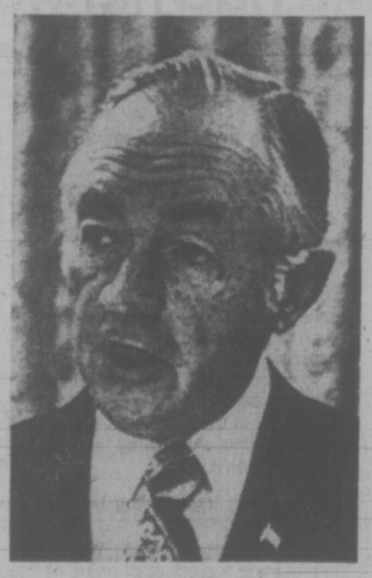
On investigation, this proved to be true, and on request to the White House, the copy was turned over to the Common Cause lawyers and subsequently to the Justice Department prosecutors and the Senate Watergate investigating committee.

This almost certainly assures that the names and contributions will be published eventually if not soon. Accordingly, anyone who fails to come forward now and report voluntarily any improper or illegal contributions runs the risk of seeming to be a party to the conspiracy that was financed with contributed funds.

The understanding here is that the Internal Revenue Service has an unpublished rule that anyone who comes forward voluntarily and lists previously undisclosed contributors, before audit and before the facts are disclosed from other sources, is likely to escape criminal penalties, though not interest charges or civil penalties.

Thus, well-informed lawyers in Washington, who know about the list in the hands of the prosecutors, are urging their clients to check on whether their gifts to the Committee to Re-elect the President were accurately reported, and if not, to report the gifts accurately and voluntarily at once, not only in their own interests, but to help the prosecutors and get rid of a corrupt system.

Disclosure can be made either directly to the Watergate prosecutors, or to the Office of Federal Elections, General Accounting Office, Washington, D.C. Otherwise, once the list is published, it is likely to be the object of intense investigation, not only by the Watergate prosecutors and the Ervin committee but by various other committees planning new campaign financing legislation.



MAURICE STANS
. . . compiled the list

Particular attention is likely to be paid in these investigations to contributions made in the name of corporation officials with funds actually made available indirectly by the corporations themselves.

In the short run, these investigations could be troublesome to some big corporations and labor unions, but in the end, campaign financing reform could relieve the corporations of a shake-down system that has become increasingly expensive and embarrassing to them in recent years.

Usually the pressure is on the big companies from the political fund-raisers to contribute large sums, often in violation or evasion of the election laws. Some of them contribute to as many as a hundred different campaigns, sometimes voluntarily, sometimes in the hope of future favors to be received, but usually because, like the politicians, they are caught in a system they don't like and contribute because they are told their competitors are doing it.

For the moment, the prosecutors are concentrating on what was done with the money, but Phase 2 will be where the money came from, and under what circumstances, and this will obviously involve a much larger cast of characters and some of the biggest names and corporations in the country.

Voluntary Disclosure

John Gardner, at Common Cause suggests that voluntary disclosure should apply now not only to the big companies and unions but to every donor of unreported gifts over $100.

"In the heat of the campaign fund-raising," he told The New York Times, "a good many business and labor interests and individuals made very substantial contributions to CREP (Committee to Re-elect the President) in an atmosphere of intense pressure. Many believed that they were simply giving conventional campaign gifts in the tradition of American politics.

"It is now apparent, from the Watergate revelations to date, that a considerable amount of the money collected was in fact used for highly untraditional purposes. Some of it was used for purposes that were not technically criminal, but highly unethical and repugnant to the American people.

"A considerable proportion of the money given to CREP has never been publicly reported, much because it was given before April 7, 1972 (when the new campaign financing law went into effect). Whether given before or after April 7, 1972, every unreported gift should now be voluntarily disclosed by the donors."

Public Interest

In considering the controversy which has developed regarding the government legislation to renegotiate the PNE contracts I think we have lost sight of a very important point which is the public interest.

When Senator Lawson condemns the action of the government and suggests that, if such a course is followed, he would press for the renegotiation of labor contracts during their agreed periods, and also that mortgage companies could decide to renegotiate mortgages in order to procure higher rates of interest, this argument just cannot stand up. The renegotiation of labor contracts and mortgages would involve extra monies and profits for a very small section of our society whereas the renegotiation of the PNE contracts is in the public interest and not for the selfish interests of the few.

When one speaks of the sanctity of contracts one could even object to land expropriation by the government, but as such action is in the public interest it has been accepted and made legal by all levels of government. Surely the public interest should take preference over all other partisan self-interest.—M. P. B. Wrixon, 1680 Poplar.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of June 26, 1913

Even the sands of the sea are not safe from the operations of political grafters, There has just come to light a deal by Conservative politicians of this city, aided and abetted by Hon. Robert Rogers, minister of public works, and by H. H. Stevens, MP for the city of Vancouver, which for audacity throws into the shade anything accomplished in the palmiest days of Boss Tweed and his gang in New York City. But the sort of men who are looking for easy money saw in Vancouver's Spanish Bank an opportunity for making money without working and made application to the late minister of public works for a lease of the sandbank so as to grab its money-making possibilities. But to the credit of the late minister the application was ruthlessly rejected.

INDIAN AFFAIRS BECOMES AN INDUSTRY

Slow and Costly, But It's Only Way

By DOUGLAS FISHER

OTTAWA — It was three years ago now that Trudeau made a declamation full of wisdom. Wisdom is rare for anyone, even Trudeau. Whatever the scale of his smartness — and he's very smart — wisdom comes to him, like anyone else, slowly and out of experience.

The task given primacy over all others in the search for the "Just Society" in 1968 was a brave policy for our native Indians. A year after the election, the prime minister's office produced a policy paper on the future of Indians. The Indians reacted poorly, they didn't like it.

Their spokesmen could agree with the paper's outline of governmental neglect and evasion and its bleak picture of the "poverty and hopelessness." But the Indians couldn't swallow the prescriptions — wiping out the Indian Act, closing out the Indian Affairs Department, pushing forward the option of integration with the whole society and giving Indians a relationship with provincial governments and their services like the rest of us have.

Trudeau met the uproar from the Indians with the wisdom I have referred to: "... We're in no hurry if you're not. You know, a hundred years has been a long time, and if you don't want an answer in another year, we'll take two, three, five, or 10 or 20 — the time you people decide to come to grips with this problem. And we won't force a solution on you, because we are not looking for any particular solution."

Now, three years further down the road, the scale of the problems of the native people of Canada has enlarged a lot. Solutions seem no closer. Several trends seem clear. For one, the cost of it all is sky-rocketing. For another, there's been an emergence, so far without much clarity, of a campaign for so-called "aboriginal rights." An ignored constituency in the problem — the Metis or half-breed component — is shaping strongly. Despite the disunity implicit in three-quarters of a million native people scattered in half-a-thousand reserves or peripheral shacktowns or in the big cities across the huge space of Canada, Indian and Metis and Eskimo leadership and militancy is coming on strongly.

For example, last week the Native Council of Canada put a demand forward in Ottawa for $6.9 million to research the claims and rights of the half-million people of some native origins who do not have "legal" status as Indians under the Indian Act.

We have some 250,000 "status" or "registered" Indians, some 18,000 "status Eskimos." If one accepts the Native Council figures you add 500,000 to the totals to get a quantification of the "native" problem. That is, some 780,000 out of our 22 million population are seen as having a unique relationship with the federal government which requires responses and support outside of the regular process and apparatus of governments which serves the rest of us.

Meanwhile, a Claims Commissioner funded by Ottawa is examining Indian Treaty rights and is formulating claims. A number of actions are in the courts: For example, the James Bay Indians versus the Quebec government; the northerly B.C. Indians versus the federal government.

Specific federal spending on native matters has grown and diversified so much that one can only estimate a ball-park figure for this year — around $400 million. You get this high by adding Indian Affairs spending, the cost of health services under another department and a profusion of grants under the Secretary of State — e.g., OFY, LIP.

CHRETIEN
. . . patience

Obviously, one of the newer service industries of Canada is the Native People Industry. There's such a profusion of activity in terms of briefs, councils, brotherhoods, conventions, seminars, travel, and programs of a rehabilitation nature that no one person seems to have a grasp on it all, including the cost. From concern and action on alcoholism among native people through to subsidies to support semi-professional hockey teams among Indian bands, there seems no imaginative limits to the new industry.

★ ★ ★

Take an example from the annual report of the Public Service Commission issued a few days ago.

At last December, the Department of Indian and Northern Affairs had 8,612 employees; 32 of these are "executive": i.e., earning over $28,000 a year. Another 1,923 are listed as "science and professional" personnel. Their salaries range almost entirely between $14,000 and $28,000 a year. Another 1,489 are classed as "administrative," another 447 as "technical," another 1,777 as "administrative support," another 2,944 as "operational."

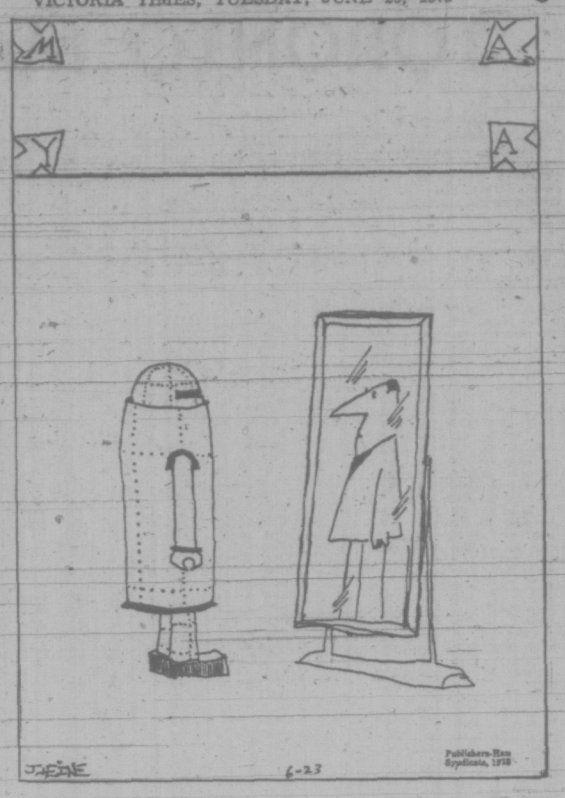
While a substantial minority of the 8,612 employees of Indian Affairs is engaged in "parks" work or in northern roles which only touch indirectly on native matters, the image of the department is clear enough. It is loaded with high-cost expertise and skill in an establishment that has been growing in numbers and, one supposes, in capability.

Another apparent bonus in the native peoples' area is the longevity of the present minister of the Indian Affairs Department. Jean Chretien has survived for over five years, after eight ministers had dabbled at the job in the 10 previous years.

The general impression Chretien gives me on native matters is remarkably similar to that projected by the half-dozen veteran MPs of three different parties who have substantial numbers of native people in their ridings. It equates with the wisdom I have ascribed to Trudeau.

Enormous patience and a willingness to bear high and often wasteful spending is required by the federal government over unforeseeable years, probably decades. There is not and shall not be any definitive declaration of native peoples policy by the government.

What might be called "progress" is too much of an expectation. Rather, there will be trends and immense diversity with a slow emergence of another, better situation through the courts, through co-ordinated programs with the provinces, and particularly through the jerky but real creation of the capacity of the native peoples to participate in all aspects of our society.



Pressure of U.S. Press Vital

By TOM WICKER

The Times of London has suggested that the U.S. press, which has played such a large role in the Watergate and related disclosures, now is publishing much prejudicial material which will make it difficult for justice to be done to President Richard Nixon and other officials.

Maybe so, but the unwarranted implication is that the newspapers ought to leave the matter to the official investigators.

Just practically speaking, any serious newspaper ought to know better than to believe that another could step back from a highly visible, continuously happening story of substantial importance, and rely instead on whatever news might be officially provided by official sources. That is what too much of the U.S. press did from June, 1972, until early this year; and that has been too often the besetting sin of the U.S. press, anyway — notably during escalation of the war in Vietnam in 1965 and 1966.

It is the function of a free press to seek out the news and print it, and U.S. newspapers have learned to their sorrow that that function won't necessarily be fulfilled by waiting for even estimable citizens like Archibald Cox and Sam Ervin to dole out the facts.

These formal inquiries are, of legal necessity, slow; the public disclosures coming from each do not necessarily suggest in themselves the widespread pattern of events that is taking shape, so far, only in the press. By themselves, or in conjunction, neither of these investigations would necessarily have drawn for the public as yet the connection now shaping up between the 1970 "internal security" plan formulated in the White House and the latter Watergate operation; last week, the Justice Department finally linked the ITT and Watergate investigations.

Speed may not seem important in Britain; there, under the parliamentary system, Mr. Nixon would have been turned out of office long ago and legal investigation could go on, perhaps, at a stately pace. In the United States public disclosure in the press is necessary, since either impeachment or court prosecution also is a slow process — too slow, when suspected public officials remain in office.

As for the Ervin committee, it has one single weakness — it cannot compel the testimony of the President, or perhaps even of some of those most implicated. Neither can the press. It can, however, keep on inquiring, questioning, pointing, pressing; and sooner or later the incessant pressure of a free and relentless press may force the kind of testimony from Mr. Nixon and his principal assistants that would not otherwise ever have been available.

In yet another sense, a continuing pressure from the press is vital to the general investigation. No one has suggested that either the Cox investigation or the Ervin committee lacks zeal or courage — certainly not that neither would wish to spare anyone implicated in wrongdoing.

Yet, Mr. Cox himself has complained that the Justice Department had not sufficiently probed, for example, the sabotage activities alleged to Donald Segretti; and it now appears that the over-all investigation was not vigorously pursued up to the point of the Watergate burglars' trial.

It is just such dereliction of duty that the press, at its best, is supposed to be able to expose; but which it can hardly do unless it pursues its own investigation as strongly as possible.

Put plainly, both the Senate and the Justice Department — all concerned in this case — need to know that an independent press is holding their feet to the fire, and is capable of exposing the slightest attempt to fudge or falter in this investigation.

Does this claim too much for the press, a fallible institution if ever there was one? Perhaps; and no one can deny the many deficiencies and errors of newspapers and broadcasting. Still, in a democracy, the press is one of the essential checks and balances against all other centres of power; above all, it does not need either Mr. Nixon's permission or a Senate resolution—just its own determination — to do its job.

It's More Than Just Rhythm, Black Athletes Have Hunger

By TERRY BLEDSOE
The Progressive

There they stand, the 1973 San Francisco Golden State Warriors of the National Basketball Association (NBA), sterling proof that racial discrimination in sports is a bygone thing. Look at this team, one of the finest in all basketball, and reflect on the evidence it offers that success in the NBA is open to anyone, regardless of race, creed, or color. Don't look at the black coach on the bench. Look at the four white guys on the starting team. That's the surprise.

It is a measure, too, of how swiftly black athletes have moved to dominate professional basketball. No area of athletics has been visited so heavily by black excellence, and, hearteningly, no area of athletics has responded so promptly to black involvement in management. But basketball is merely the most natural channel of a black tide that has been flooding professional sports with some of the most remarkable achievers in a hierarchy of achievers.

Professional football probably tapped black sources first and kept at it with the greatest diligence; professional baseball has been in the business of including blacks only since 1947; professional basketball has but recently achieved the national impact that made it a fair measuring ground for black achievement.

Consider, in 1972-1973, the results of black effort in American professional sports:

- The five top hitters in baseball's National League, and three of the five top hitters in the American League, are black.
- Blacks occupy three of the five places on the NBA's first all-league team, and seven of the ten places on the first two teams.
- Blacks hold nine of the twenty-two places on the National Football League's all-pro team.

The Super Heroes

It is a black man, Hank Aaron, who is baseball's super hero, breathing hot on the heels of the game's most hidebound record of its most hidebound immortal, the 714 home runs of Babe Ruth. It is a black man, Larry Brown, who is the National Football League's reigning most valuable player. It is a black man —Wilt Chamberlain? Kareem Abdul-Jabbar?—who is the dominant force in professional basketball.

Black dominance of any pursuit would merit study given the fact that only eleven per cent of the U.S. population is black. For example, black dominance of the carpenter's trade would raise eyebrows; the disproportionately high percentage of blacks on casualty lists from Vietnam became a national curiosity — although never quite the national concern it should have been.

But black dominance of sports has become a highly visible sociological phenomenon. After all, the President of the United States, who displays camaraderie with football luminaries, does not tend to call carpenters to the telephone.

Professional athletes are the dream stuff of a nation, and black dominance of sports is reshaping the hero symbols of a society. The phenomenon is easier to discern than the reasons for it. It is hardly stylish to lean upon the weary crutch of the Step 'n Fetchit days of black prominence: "You people certainly have got rhythm." That fiction provided solace to generations of white Americans attuned to the boxing grace of the Henry Armstrongs and the Joe Louises, and all the way back to the Jack Johnsons and the Peter Jacksons.

Way Out of Jungle

There has to be more to it than that. There must have been more to it than that all along. Perhaps, had Americans faced up to the fact in the years before bigotry had to go underground, a truer cliche could have been devised: "You people certainly have got hunger." For that may be the key to all of it, a way out of the jungle of black poverty and often the only way out.

James Baldwin, the noted black writer, provided an insight without mentioning sports. He once wrote: "Every Negro boy realizes, at once, profoundly, because he wants to live, that he stands in great peril and must find, with speed, a 'thing,' a gimmick, to let him out, to start him on his way. And it does not matter what the gimmick is."

For many black youths, the gimmick has been sports. Pursued with the single-minded dedication of desperation, sports have opened a route upward, out of the ghetto, for dozens, hundreds, even thousands of black young men. Obversely, sports have been a siren song of tragedy for hundreds and thousands of other blacks, who staked their adolescence on the hope of achieving rare excellence in a sport, fell short, and had nothing else to fall back on.

Practice Harder

Jack Olsen, a senior editor of Sports Illustrated, once quoted Will Robinson, a noted black coach, on the subject: "The white boy has other things he would rather do. People keep reminding me that there is a difference in physical ability between the races, but I think there isn't. The Negro boy just practices longer and harder. The Negro has the keener desire to excel in sports because it is more mandatory for his future opportunities than it is for a white boy. There are nine thousand different jobs available to a person if he is white."

The relative unavailability of those 9,000 jobs has been a source of bitterness and frustration to blacks, as surely as to any arbitrarily excluded minority throughout history. But while that anger has been in large measure unanswered in American society as a whole, it has served to concentrate black effort on the few areas that have opened up. Sports, for the generations of blacks who have matured since the end of World War II, have provided a gateway, and blacks have poured through the narrow opening into Establishment life.

The financial rewards are fantastically high for the black athlete — just as high, in all probability, as for the white athlete of similar status. The two stars of the Milwaukee Bucks of the NBA are both black; Kareem Abdul-Jabbar makes $400,000 a season, Oscar Robertson $233,000. Baseball's Atlanta Braves pay Hank Aaron $200,000 a year.

Yet, with the exception of pro basketball, blacks have been denied the next logical step, that of progressing from an outstanding playing career to the management level. It is a galling omission. Frank Robinson of the California Angels, long recognized as one of baseball's finest players, wants badly to become Big League baseball's first black manager and has been waiting five years for the chance. Pro football, which shows exemplary progress in most other matters, has a mere sprinkling of black assistant coaches and not even a particularly likely candidate for a head job.

Basketball is different. The Golden State Warriors, with their beguiling reverse English, have the unusually high number of four white starters and one of the NBA's two black coaches, Al Attles. Wayne Embry is the Bucks' general manager, and as such he is the highest ranking black in any sports organization. Simon Gourdine is an assistant commissioner of the NBA.

Lingering Fear

Part of the reason for the remaining reticence about blacks in the other sports is undoubtedly a lingering fear on the part of the front office — it exists to some extent in basketball, too, for that matter — that what white American ticket buyers really want to see is a white American athlete, the second generation descendant of the "white hope" they kept trotting out to meet Joe Louis.

It is an unarticulated fear, and at bottom probably less a fear than an excuse. It is difficult to sustain the thesis that three black starters on a five man basketball team are all right, but four are not; that four are acceptable, but five are not; that five might be all right as long as the coach is white. The permutations are so varied that the entire thesis collapses in the face of an example such as the Bucks, who have had five black starters for two years and have posted the NBA's fourth best attendance in its smallest arena.

If history offers a lesson, though, it is that the black tide in athletics will slacken, once society gets around to opening alternate avenues to prosperity and recognition. One day, perhaps, other oppressed people will elbow their way through the door. But in the meantime, the white man's games are the black man's salvation.

THESE INVESTORS HOPE PRICES TAKE TUMBLE

TORONTO (CP) — Even when stock market prices are going down, as they have been since the start of the year, you can make a profit by using the speculative technique of short selling.

Short selling means selling shares you don't own in the hope that the price will go down before you have to deliver ownership. If the price does go down you buy them at the lower price and the difference, less brokerage charges, is profit. If the price goes up you take a loss.

Canadian Business Service says short selling is frowned upon by many investors because "it carries the impression that the price of the security being sold short is about to collapse under selling pressure."

To prevent these "bear raids," the Toronto, Vancouver and Canadian — but not Montreal — exchanges will not allow a short sale except on an "uptick." That means a short sale is permitted only at a price above that of the last board lot traded, or at the price of the board lot if it was higher than the previous lot.

A board lot is a unit of trading, varying mainly on price. At Toronto, for instance, 100 share sconstitute a board lot for industrial shares of under $25 each.

All short sales take place in margin accounts. Margin buying means paying part of the purchase price of the securities then borrowing the rest, usually from a broker.

"While selling short is an often highly successful technique for making profits in falling markets, we don't recommend it for any but the most sophisticated investors who are able to constantly watch their portfolios and be in touch with their brokers frequently," Canadian Business Service warns.

The heaviest trading mine on the Vancouver Stock Exchange, Northair, is also developing the largest short position, according to statistics released today.

The Northair short position had reached 32,300 by mid-June, an increase of 31,800 shares in 15 days.

Short sales are made by investors when they believe the price of a stock will fall. They sell stock borrowed from a broker in hopes of being able to buy it later at a lower price and return the loaned certificate to the broker.

Northair traded 342,700 shares on Friday worth $371,393 to be the top trader. It was among the most active traders again Monday with 134,900 shares trading hands.

The company is drilling for silver and gold values on its property near Brandywine Falls, 70 miles north of Vancouver.

The core from the first vertical drill has been shipped for assay.

Further drilling is planned, says company president Donald McLeod of Vancouver.

While the Northair short position was the fastest-growing total at mid-month, Gunn Mines had a larger, although falling total.

The Gunn short position at June 15 was 146,100, down 56,600 in the previous 15 days.

Second largest total was Seneca Developments at 96,000, an increase of 5,000 and Northair was third.

In other mining news, Reako Explorations Ltd. has completed 15,000 feet of drilling on its property near Port Renfrew.

Management is looking for commercial quantities of iron and copper and also is studying the possibility of a limestone quarry.

★ ★ ★

Amber Resources Ltd. is looking for copper on itsholdings on Lasqueti Island, in Georgia Strait near Nanaimo.

An engineering report indicates the presence of a series of faults similar to those that contain copper mineralization. The amount is not known.

★ ★ ★

Leemac Mines Ltd. engineer E. O. Chisholm reports total ore reserves on the Leemac property now total 15.6 million tons at an average .54 per cent copper.

Further drilling is planned to determine if the ore is in sufficient quantities to justify mining.

★ ★ ★

Citex Mines Ltd. is considering an engineering report which recommends rehabilitating and developing underground workings at Stewart for gold, silver and copper values.

The claims are under option from International Mogul Mines Ltd. of Toronto.

The company has not yet made a decision on the recommendation.

★ ★ ★

Cream Silver Mines Ltd. has had 200,000 of its shares underwritten at 40 cents per share. Canarim Investment Corporation picked up 100,000 shares and Donaldson Securities Ltd. took the other 100,000.

MOVEMENT SEEN 'GREASY GOV'T'

Premier Dave Barrett said Monday the Majority Movement is a "group for greasy government."

"If that group wants to go back to the dark ages under Social Credit, they can be my guest," the premier said.

He said members of newly formed movement never demanded a question period in the B.C. legislature, never demanded a member of the opposition be on the public accounts committee and never demanded a Hansard.

The movement, he said, is "like that goofy group in Manitoba" trying to defeat the NDP government.

The purpose of the Majority Movement, according to its members, is to inform B.C. citizens of the difference between socialism and free enterprise and to restore free enterprise to B.C.

U.S. to Finance Egyptian Pipeline

CAIRO (WP) — Egypt has turned to U.S. private enterprise for the financing and construction of a $300 million oil pipeline between the Gulf of Suez and the Mediterranean. The turn toward America comes after more than two years of negotiations on the project with an eight-nation, West European consortium, led by the French.

Following a request from the Egyptian government, Kidder, Peabody, a U.S. investment and financial organization, has formally indicated that it is ready to make an offer to finance and build the Suez-Alexandria pipeline in conjunction with the First National City Bank and the Bechtel Corporation, according to both American and Egyptian sources here.

Although Egyptian officials say the only motive behind their request to the American companies is to obtain the best possible econodic deal, the placing of a major contract of this nature in the United States could have important political connotations.

Diplomatic sources here point out that the entry of American bankers and contractors would contrast strongly with current Arab threats to strike at United States economic interests in the Middle East.

President Anwar Sadat is currently talking in Alexandria with Libyan leader Colonel Maummar Qaddafi, one of the strongest proponents of anti-American action, on the merger of their two states, scheduled for September.

But, while Qaddafi has been negotiating the takeover of American oil companies operating in his country, Sadat last month authorized the signing of agreements with Exxon and Mobil for Mediterranean offshore exploration. In addition, all the significant oil finds in Egypt have been made by two American companies, Amoco and Phillips.

Diplomats point out that the U.S. entry onto the SUMED pipeline scene will also be seen as an extension of the growing American-French commercial rivalry in the Middle East, exemplified last month by the U.S. offer to sell Phantom jets to Saudi Arabia after King Feisal had received an offer of French Mirages.

Clinics' Target: 550 Blood Donors

The Red Cross in Greater Victoria is aiming for 550 donors from blood clinics to be held daily Wednesday to Friday.

The clinic Wednesday is in the foyer of Newcombe Auditorium at the Provincial Museum, from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Thursday's clinic is at the same location but the hours are 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m.

On Friday the clinic will be the gymnasium, Canadian Forces Base, Esquimalt, from 9 a.m. to noon and 1:15 to 4 p.m.

Anyone wanting transportation to the clinics Wednesday or Thursday can phone 382-2213.

Holiday Monday

Most Victoria offices will remain closed next Monday to give workers an extra day's holiday on Canada Day.

Provincial, federal and local government offices will be closed, including post offices and liquor stores. There will be no regular mail delivery.

Most stores will also be closed, but restaurants, bars and movie theatres will remain open.

The Provincial Museum will be open from 10 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. that day.

Kaiser Eyes Modest Profit

FERNIE (CP) — The president and chief executive officer of Kaiser Resources Ltd., said Monday he is optimistic about his company's chances to make a "modest profit" in the second quarter of this year.

Stephen Girard told the annual meeting of shareholders that Kaiser Resources expects the profit, compared with a first-quarter loss of $516,000.

"For the second quarter of this year with record shipments of 1.5 million long tons (of coal), we anticipate a modest profit from operations," he said. "In addition, significant foreign exchange gains from debt retirement this month are expected to be realized which will result in recording a profit for the first half of 1973."

Girard said the Kootenay-based company has met a 4.5 million coking coal contract with Japanese concerns signed last year.

"By the end of this month we will have shipped a total of 4.8 million long tons of coking coal to Japan since last June 30. That includes a carryover of about 300,000 long tons from the previous agreement."

We also highlighted the main items of a new agreement signed recently with the Japanese which includes a price increase of $1.12 a long ton, raising the base price to $18.85.

"In addition to these main provisions, our customers agreed to cost escalation allowances to April 1, 1975, of up to 80 cents a long ton."

He said Japanese customers have also agreed to an equity investment program of $27.5 million for 7.2 million shares to clear up Kaiser's long-term debt. American-based Kaiser steel will also invest $27.5 million and will receive 6.7 million shares.

Opportunities in Korea

REGINA (CP) — Canadian producers have a great opportunity to establish markets for agricultural products in Korea, K. H. Cho of Seoul, leader of a Korean trade delegation, said Monday.

Cho, whose delegation is visiting Canada at the invitation of Palliser Wheat Growers Association, told a reception the extent of Canada's success depends on whether the country can provide competitive prices and introduce its products adequately.

Families Swamp Terra Nova, Back From 'Too Long' Cruise

By WAYNE HARDING
Times Staff

The admiral gave the salute, the band played There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight and HMCS Terra Nova sailed into Esquimalt Harbor.

The destroyer escort, arrived at its home port at 10 a.m. today — five months, less three days, since it departed on a then obscure cruise to the South Pacific.

"We're back," yelled the youthful commander, Larry Dzioba, from the bridge to the crowd on the jetty. They were mostly women and children, the families of the 221 crew members.

The band now played Heart of Oak and Rear Admiral R. H. Leir soon after was piped aboard. There was a guard of three sailors dressed as coolies. The admiral joked with them.

The cruise was "just a little too long," said Mrs. Dzioba, the wife of the commander, with a smile. Earlier in the morning she had been taken aboard the ship near Race Rocks while the Terra Nova prepared for its ceremonial and punctual arrival.

For the wives of other officers and crew the welcome was just beginning. The decks of the 366-foot ship were soon filled with people, women and children, babes in arms and the green-uniformed sailors.

It was only after the Terra Nova had left port Jan. 29 that her real mission was made publicly known. She was being deployed to act as an evacuation vessel should Canadians taking part in the Vietnam peacekeeping operation have to get out quickly.

"I never keep any secrets from the men," said Dzioba, talking to the press on the bridge. "When I didn't know what was happening, I'd tell them. Then we would play 'who has the best rumor of the day?' "

Could the Terra Nova really have helped, should a quick evacuation be necessary?

"You've got to remember the South China Sea is really like a lake. There is not one port that is more than 36 hours away,' says Dzioba.

Now the Canadians are leaving Vietnam — in disgust more than panic. The HMCS Kootenay, which took over the Terra Nova's duties, is now heading back too.

Was withdrawal a good idea?

"From my point of view," says Dzioba, "I support the political decisions that are made."

While on the extra-long tour of duty, the Terra Nova took part in exercises with Royal Navy and Royal Australian Navy forces. The Terra Nova's worst enemy on the assignment was influenza. Eight crewmen were hospitalized and one, Cpl. Ned Nemnook of Victoria, died March 15 as a result.

"It's hard to explain how it affects you," says Dzioba. "People felt very deeply about it. A shipmate is someone very close. You get to know each other very intimately living together in such small quarters."

Dzioba is frankly proud of his ship and its company.

"We spent 50 days in foreign ports and there was not one incident. That's remarkable. You talk about volunteers. Well our men aren't any older than others. But they're mature."

The men of the Terra Nova are now due for a six-week leave and the ship is due for a period of maintenance and repairs.

Helmcken Proposes Regional Archives

City archivist Ainslie Helmcken has put forward a proposal for broadening the scope of his department by incorporating it as a civic archives society which would cover all of Greater Victoria and perhaps even other Vancouver Island communities.

So far there has been no official reaction to the idea from city council, but Helmcken said today he has had a "most encouraging response" from a number of individuals whom he has approached as possible charter members of the society.

Helmcken believes one of the chief advantages of bringing Greater Victoria archives under the umbrella of a society is that new sources of funding would be opened up.

A society, he noted, could apply to Canada Council and similar agencies for grants for various purposes — grants which would not be forthcoming if the applicant was a municipality.

Another benefit would be the ability to call on the help, advice and expertise of many people who would be directly involved in the task of preserving the area's heritage, he said.

A society would also look at Greater Victoria as an historical entity, the cornerstone of the broader history of B.C. itself, and would not be tied to the "parochial" concerns of municipal boundaries.

HELMCKEN
. . . city archivist

Helmcken would like a commitment from the city to carry on funding the present archives operation and providing accommodation, while he seeks financial and other assistance from school boards and neighboring municipalities.

With basic funding assured, he hopes he would then be able to go cap in hand to such agencies as Canada Council for money to set up cataloguing and other programs.

One of the prime needs, Helmcken said, is to catalogue and assess the massive amount of material — over two tons of it, including 100 cases stored in a city warehouse — in the B.C. Land and Investment Agency collection.

Recently entrusted to the city archives on an initial 10-year loan basis, this is one of the finest collections of B.C. history, particularly in the business field.

B.C. Land and Investment Agency Ltd. was started in Victoria in 1863 and the collection represents 100 years of the firm's business records, including correspondence with pioneer British investors and records of the great cattle spreads of the north-central interior.

Helmcken said one of the invaluable aspects of the collection, as far as Victoria is concerned, is that it covers much of the early development of the city because much of the financing was done through the firm and many buildings were constructed by its clients.

(The city's own building records date only to 1908, as earlier records were destroyed.)

Provincial archivist Willard Ireland has indicated his department might be willing to microfilm the entire BCLIA collection, Helmcken said.

Second Paramedic Ambulance?

Saanich has received a private offer to help finance a second fully-equipped paramedic ambulance unit for the municipal fire department.

Mayor Hugh Curtis said today he could not identify the source at present, but he was hoping the second paramedic team could operate from a new fire hall planned for University of Victoria campus.

Basic cost of equipping an ambulance is about $10,000.

Curtis said it was hoped the new hall would be in operation next year, but meanwhile the municipality is awaiting confirmation of agreement from UVic board of governors.

A team of Saanich firemen operates the first paramedic unit of its kind in B.C., providing mobile treatment for cardiac cases and monitoring heart performance by telemetry connected with Royal Jubilee Hospital cardiac unit.

Saanich Studies $3-5M Program

Saanich council, in a closed meeting this afternoon, was to consider capital works projects which may cost $3 to $5 millions.

But before a capital works program goes to the voters in November, another meeting will be held at the end of the summer.

Among the proposed projects are land acquisition for open space, parks, a second arena, improvements on Colquitz and Swan creeks, and extensive road and drainage work.

The in-camera meeting today will help direct senior staff to draw up the referendum.

This year Saanich completed a series of capital projects that started six years ago and which provided the first arena, swimming pool, community centres and major waterway improvements in the municipality.

A new phase of development could cost in the range of $1 million a year for the life of the program.

Mayor Hugh Curtis said the technique of holding a series of private, preliminary meetings was first used by council in 1965 during planning of the last bylaw.

It made possible a "hammering out of program without feeling under the gun in time," he said.

"Council should take several months to put together a bylaw to make sure the right things are left in and others left out."

Women Clerks Urged for LCB

The new chairman of the British Columbia Liquor Control Board said today he is in favor of the B.C. government hiring women clerks for liquor stores.

Neil Davidson said: "I'm basically a supporter of the women's liberation movement and I suppose if I'm going to be consistent I would probably have to say yes."

John Fryer, general-secretary of the B.C. Government Employees Union, said Monday he wants women to be hired to work the counters in the liquor stores and he wants them to be paid the same as male clerks.

Davidson said he agrees women clerks should receive equal pay.

Kathleen Ruff, director of the Human Rights Commission, said the move would open up job opportunities for women and do away with "antiquated prejudiced" job categories.

"Unions are becoming more sensitive to their female members. In the past, the unions haven't really gone to bat for women in this kind of situation," she said.

Ruff said the practice of segregating jobs according to sex is common in society and exists both in the government service and industry.

But people are beginning to question the justice of it, she said, because "very often there is no rational justification for it. Women are not incapable of doing the jobs, it's just tradition, and it limits opportunities for women."

Longmore Named To New Post

A special meeting of Greater Victoria School Board Monday night appointed district superintendent Jake Longmore to the new position of "school superintendent."

In his new role, Longmore will no longer be a civil servant but will perform exactly the same duties as an employee of the school board.

As of July 1, Longmore becomes a board employee without tenure and for the first time will be the highest paid in the Victoria school district.

His new position is a result of changes in the Public Schools Act, enacted by the government during the spring session, which allows B.C.'s six largest school districts to appoint their own superintendents.

North Vancouver, Coquitlam, Burnaby, Surrey, Vancouver and Victoria school districts, each with school populations over 20,000 have been granted the right to choose their own chief officer.

In districts with less than 20,000 students, the provincial government will continue to appoint school superintendents.

"It means Jake is our own man now," School Board Chairman Peter Bunn, said today. "When we approach the provincial government as a board he'll be our own man."

Bunn said the board will raise Longmore's salary since up until now at least 15 other board employees including some school principals, have been earning more than the superintendent.

'I Have Finished the Course'

Dial-A-Thought still answers, but callers no longer hear the familiar voice of Rev. Dr. J. B. Rowell, pastor emeritus of First Baptist Church.

Rowell, of 350 Foul Bay Road, and James Bay Lodge, died Monday in hospital at age 85. He started the telephone service of comforting one-minute messages for troubled people when he retired after 31 years as pastor of Central Baptist Church.

★ ★ ★

Today's Dial-A-Thought message is a favorite quotation of Rowell's — "I have fought a good fight. I have finished the course."

Rowell, a native of Nottinghamshire, England, has lived in Victoria since 1927, the year he founded Central Baptist Church.

He leaves his wife, Lucy, son, Hedley, of West Vancouver, and daughters, Mrs. C. V. Eno and Mrs. Frances Moffat, both of Victoria, five grandchildren, nieces and nephews.

★ ★ ★

Interment will be at Royal Oak Burial Park.

Key Theft Stalls Car Sales

A downtown used car lot has lots of cars for sale, but customers may have to supply their own keys.

A thief broke into the office of Speedway Motors Ltd., 971 Yates Street, late Monday night and stole the keys to more than 130 cars on the lot.

A 1972 green Pontiac is also missing.

Sales manager Roy Passmore said today a reward is being offered by the company for information leading to the recovery of the keys and the car.

"We're still open for business as usual — but the customer is going to have to bring his own keys until the locksmith gets finished opening the cars," Passmore said.

Police said the thief broke a back window in the office to get into the building.

No More Apartments

Esplanade Area 'Zoned Down' As Flower Power Blooms Again

The Esplanade is closed to future apartment development.

Oak Bay council Monday voted unanimously to "zone down" property along Willows Beach to single family dwellings from apartment zoning.

The move was supported by a sympathetic crowd of more than 200 who filled the council chambers, hallways and door entrance and 700 petitions.

Only four voiced objections at the two-hour hearing which saw 13 lots zoned down. Previously, owners of nine lots asked for the rezoning.

Residents at the hearing showed support for the change by wearing flowers in their lapels.

On one side of the argument were three lawyers, appearing for homeowners who claim their property between Willows and Uplands Park would decline in value if it ceased to be potential apartment land.

"I represent one selfish point of view," said lawyer Lloyd McKenzie, who appeared for the Bonner brothers (Ken, Harold and Doug).

"The Bonners have been offered $169,500 if an apartment can be built upon it, but used for a house, it would be worth only $100,000," he said.

It was the Bonner and David Pite properties on the Esplanade which sparked the "down zoning" attitude. Dunn Holdings Ltd. had a plan to construct an apartment on three lots and asked council to declare them as a development area.

After the hearing and without further comment, the matter was rejected.

For the down zoning were the Willows Beach Association and the Windsor Park Neighborhood Group.

"The Tweed Curtain is liable to be replaced by a concrete curtain, the concrete curtain that is liable to cut people off from the water," said Dale Kilshaw, spokesman for the Willows Beach group.

"We take the position that no one is going to suffer unduly" from the zoning change. All homes in the two-block area have appreciated greatly over the years, said Kilshaw.

Lawyers Ian Stewart and McKenzie argued strongly for financial compensation for clients affected by the rezoning.

"To do otherwise is really to confiscate without compensation," said Stewart.

"You shouldn't simply take away from my clients because you want to serve your own ends," he told council.

The area had been zoned for apartments since 1927. The seven apartment buildings are already up, and their zoning will not change.

Stewart also said a public hearing was not the best place to discuss the change, because such hearing tended to get emotional.

"The jury comprises in vast numbers people who have nothing to lose," he said. Stewart failed in an attempt to address council prior to the public hearing.

Ald. Douglas Watts said he felt residents who suffered an actual loss because of the change should be compensated: Such as people who had spent money getting architects' drawings for an apartment they thought they could build on their property.

He and Ald. Norman Pimlott moved a motion that council request legislation to cover this sort of loss. It will be discussed at council's July meeting.

Ald. Douglas McLelland and Ald. Shirley Dowell voiced opposition to the motion.

"I think we'd be opening up a very dangerous precedent if we did this," said McLelland. There is no legal or moral reason to compensate residents affected by rezoning.

In voting for the change, Dowell said she hoped the area would be greenbelt by the year 2000.

"As the land becomes available (the municipality should) then buy it from the people at the fair market value," she said.

Coach Joe Grey gives Shawnigan boys some tips for their trip

Rowers Away to See a Prince

By MAX LOW
Times Staff

Once upon a time, there were some boys at Shawnigan Lake who took a prince up on his offer — and now they're going to do it again.

"Come and visit me at the Palace," Prince Philip said four years ago when he visited Shawnigan Lake Boys' School and watched the rowing crews in action.

They did.

Rowers from the school paid their visit to Buckingham Palace, as they were invited to do, in 1971 and they'll be back to visit the prince at the royal garden party on July 19.

For the boys — two eights crews and two scullers — the royal visit will come after they row at Royal Henley and a number of smaller regattas in England.

The 27-strong party — 21 rowers, three staff members and three boys travelling as supporters — leaves Vancouver Wednesday for London and opens its tour by representing Canada at an internaional youth regatta in Nottingham this weekend.

Following the regattas in England, the royal garden party and various visits to museums, theatres and other places of interest, the boys head over to the Continent for a bus trip through Paris, Dijon, the Italian Riviera, Rome, Florence, Pisa, Venice, a week of cycling in southern Germany, then to Switzerland, back to Paris and home to Vancouver Island about mid-August.

Sectioned shells are necessary for the tour. Three shells, two sectioned eights and one sectioned single scull, complete with oars and spare equipment, will be flown over for the regattas.

Cost of the tour is $1,300 per head.

This will be the fifth European tour coach Joe Grey has taken Shawnigan crews on since he joined the school in 1959.

Preparing for the tour has meant a lot of hard work for the boys.

In fact, many might wonder just why a boy — most are from grades 11 and 12 — wants to spend his holidays sweating and suffering and getting blisters on a tour for which he has to pay himself.

The boys say they "want a chance to show what we can do against the best crews in Europe."

Grey says: "In a school such as ours, we try to educate the 'whole boy.' Some find success in hobbies and other activities, some find a place in the sun in the classroom and others achieve manhood by searching for and reaching the outer limits of physical endurance in a rowing crew."

Grey says participation is the key to good rowing at Shawnigan where 65 boys, about 30 per cent of those enrolled at the school, row.

Four of the rowers making the trip — John Alexander of Victoria, Dave Wilkinson of Shawnigan Lake and Jim Welch and Niko Zorkin, both of Nanaimo, are from Vancouver Island.

Seven — Gordon Campbell, Brock Crane, Bill Crawford, Tony Harford, Guy Lydster, Bill McQuaid and Lawrence Thiessen — are from Vancouver.

The other boys making the trip are Mike Hess (Tsawwassen), Bill Hayward (Langley), Dave Severidge (Langley), Ralph Wilson (Delta), Dan Stewart (Kelowna), Scott Walker, Chris Heffelfinger and Jeff Winslow (all from California), Mike Healy (Edmonton), and Jim Marlow (Mexico City).

Grey, assistant coach Jens Gotthardt and Graham Anderson, a staff member who will assist on the cultural part of the tour on the Continent, will accompany the boys.

Finley Receives Rejection Slip

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Hockey League Monday turned down Charles O. Finley's request to move his California Golden Seals to Indianapolis from Oakland.

With a unanimous vote needed for the move, the members voted 13 against the request and two in favor. Philadelphia flyers were not represented at the meeting.

"They turned down my request," said Finley. "No, there was no discussion about a sale.

"Where do I go from here? I don't know.

"Will I sue? I haven't given it a thought as yet."

Finley earlier had said either the club would be moved to Indianapolis or it would be sold and he would be happy in any event.

However, he adfitted if the club were given permission to move to Indianapolis he probably would remain in hockey.

Attending the meeting with Finley were Charles Devoe, president of the Indianapolis Pacers of the American Basketball Association and a leading figure in the building of a new arena in Indianapolis which will seat some 18,000.

Clarence Campbell, president of the NHL, said that the league's committee is authorized to continue negotiations with Finley for the purpose of purchasing the Golden Seals for resale. However, Campbell said no further meetings have been scheduled on the matter.

"It's not that the dollars are so enormous but it is the principles that are important,' said Campbell.

Campbell said that Finley has set a sale price, but the league previously had rejected it.

It was learned that Finley, who was reported to have paid about $5 million for the club and has lost $2.5 million in three years of operation has asked for $6.5 million. The league is said to have offered $6 million.

Finley's feeling is that if an expansion franchise can go for $6 million, then he can ask for a little more because of an established franchise with a farm system.

Campbell, who appears dead set against franchise moving, said: "We think basi-

Parnell Hits For No. 800

COQUITLAM — Veteran Paul Parnell scored only one goal Monday night but it was enough to give him a total of 800 goals in his senior lacrosse career.

And a one-goal margin was all New Westminster Salmonbellies needed to edge Coquitlam Adanacs 13-12 in the Western Lacrosse Association game before a crowd of 1,402.

The win, only the fourth in 14 starts for the Salmonbellies, lifted them into a third-place tie with Victoria Shamrocks, who play the league leading Vancouver Burrards in Vancouver tonight and again in Victoria Wednesday night.

Ken Winzoski scored four goals, including the winner, for the Salmonbellies, who saw a four-goal lead disintegrate in the last half of the third period.

Thanks to exceptional goaltending by Merv Schweitzer, who blocked 46 shots, New Westminster moved into a 12-8 lead by 12:59 of the third period.

However, Coquitlam came back with four tallies in two minutes and 26 seconds to tie the score at 12-12 and Salmonbellies needed Winzoski's fourth goal at 18:11 to take the decision.

Fred Greenwood scored three goals and captain McTyler netted twice for the Salmonbellies, and the Adanacs were led by John Allen, who had five goals and one assist.

League Eyes Fan Famine In Flin Flon

SASKATOON (CP) — Concern over lack of fan support at home games could lead to a review of the Flin Flon Bombers franchise at the next meeting of the board of governors of the Western Canada Hockey League, president Ed Chynoweth of Saskatoon said Monday.

He said in a statement that it is of deep concern to the WCHL that Flin Flon fans have not seen fit to provide better home support to a club that has been a consistent winner.

Because the league had a gate-equalization plan, it was "most imperative that all clubs try to carry their own load."

Chynoweth said the Bomber franchise came in for some heavy discussion at the recent annual meeting of the league, with the Flin Flon group headed by Gordon Mitchell assuring the league that steps were being taken to increase fan interest. Mitchell, he said, felt a sustained season-ticket drive would help.

"Should the Flin Flon situation not improve with better support, the WCHL will have no alternative but to review the franchise at the next league meeting," Chynoweth said.

Walker Signed

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Crusaders have signed winger Russ Walker, their fourth-round selection in the World Hockey Association amateur draft.

Walker played last year with Saskatoon of the Western Canada Hockey League.

HATSKIN NOT READY TO LEAVE WINNIPEG

WINNIPEG (CP) — Owner Ben Hatskin says Winnipeg Jets of the World Hockey Association won't be changing their home address for the 1973-74 season.

"We're going to take another crack at Winnipeg this winter, that's for sure," Hatskin said. "But we're also going to take another look at things here.

"Everybody knows I want to remain in Winnipeg but if we can't make a go of it, we'll be looking elsewhere, that's for sure. It seems everybody wants to buy the Jets.

Hatskin, commenting Monday on a report quoting player-coach Bobby Hull as saying the Winnipeg franchise is insecure, said in an interview:

"This is the same old rumor factory working again. There's not a day goes by that somebody doesn't ask me when I'm moving, is it true I'm selling and so on."

The Jets drew an average of slightly more than 6000 fans in the 10,000-seat Winnipeg Arena.

Forsyth Tops Best And Proves a Point

Terry Forsyth proved his winning ways are no accident by beating some of the top drivers in the Pacific Northwest during the 100-lap Carlings Victoria Challenge open super-stock event Monday night at Western Speedway.

The 25-year-old driver, who won another major race at Langley on June 17, topped a field of 20 in the main event to pick up first prize of $800 before approximately 3,200 fans.

Forsyth has now won six main events since the season opened at Western.

Don Nickel of Surrey, who won the first heat, started out in the pole position in the feature race and had the lead for the first seven laps before giving way to Ron Hancock.

Harold Hardesty of Medford, Ore., took over the lead on the ninth lap and managed to stave off strong challenges by Forsyth, Gary Kershaw and George Stewart of Campbell River until the 55th circuit.

At this point, a rear-tire problem caused Hardesty to be black-flagged out of the race. Part of the fender was rubbing on the tire and officials feared a blow-out could possibly cause a pile-up.

Forsyth then took over and managed to stay ahead the remainder of the distance. Kershaw and Stewart, who was driving Kershaw's old car, tangled on the 75th lap. The damage to the right side of Kershaw's car put him out of the race completely but Stewart managed to get back in with the loss of only a lap.

Dave Cooper, who came out of retirement for the race, became the cause of the only red flag in the race when his engine blew on the 77th lap.

Mike Barrett of Tacoma finished runner-up, 10 lengths behind Forsyth.

Results:
"A" Trophy dash: 1. Mike Barrett, Tacoma; 2. Gary Kershaw; 3. George Stewart, Campbell River; 4. Terry Forsyth.
"B" Trophy dash: 1. John Currier; 2. Chris Van de Water; 3. Don Nickel, Surrey; 4. Roy Haslam.
First heat: 1. Don Nickel; 2. Chris Van de Water; 3. John Currier; 4. Tom Berrow, Vancouver.
Fast heat: 1. Larry Pollard; 2. Ross McIntyre; 3. Harold Hardesty, Medford, Ore.; 4. Dave Cooper.
Main event: 1. Terry Forsyth; 2. Mike Barrett; 3. Ron Hancock; 4. Chris Van de Water; 5. Ross McIntyre; 6. John Currier.

Women Stars Capture Wimbledon Spotlight

LONDON (AP) — With the glitter of the men's matches dimmed by the boycott of many top stars, the women hold the spotlight at Wimbledon today with Margaret Court aiming to capture the grand slam for the second time.

Top-seeded Mrs. Court won the Australian, French, Wimbledon and Forest Hills titles two years ago, but missed Wimbledon in 1972 and the honors went to Billie Jean King of Long Beach, Calif. Both players drew first-round byes this year.

Mrs. Court will meet fellow Australian Karen Krantzcke in the second round while Mrs. King, the No. 2 seed, will face Lucia Bassi of Italy.

Their main rivals in the draw—Chris Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Evonne Goolagong of Australia—have been playing below par.

Miss Evert lost in the finals of the Italian and French championships while Miss Goolagong, seeded third here, lost to Russia's Olga Morozova in a pre-Wimbledon final at London's Queen's Club. Chris is slated to play Fiorelli Bonicelli of Italy while Evonne opens her Wimbledon competition against Betty Stove of the Netherlands.

The walkout by 70 members of the Association of Tennis Professionals cut the original men's entry list but didn't dampen fan reaction Monday.

Romania's Ilie Nastase, favored to capture the men's singles title in the absence of defending-champion Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif., easily defeated Hans Ploetz of West Germany 6-3, 7-5, 6-2. Bjorn Borg, a 17-year-old Swedish tennis sensation, ousted Premjit Lall of India and set a world record for a tie break, winning it 20-18 and taking the match 6-3, 6-4, 9-8.

Fifth-seeded Jimmy Connors of Belleville, Ill., volleyed sharply and scored repeatedly with passing shots to beat England's Mark Farrell 6-4, 6-3, 6-4.

Greg Sweeps Titles

Stylish Greg Miller Monday night added two more titles to the singles crown he won Sunday to make a clean sweep of the annual Victoria Racquet Club tennis championships.

The experienced combination of Miller and Racquet Club pro Ray Aldeguer overcame enthusiastic young Joe Lackmund and George Walton 6-4, 6-3 in the men's doubles final.

And then Miller teamed with Wendy Cuppage to come back from a 3-1 deficit in the third set to edge Aldeguer and 14-year-old Nina Bland in a 6-7, 6-4, 6-4 thriller in the mixed doubles final.

Miller took the men's singles title Sunday with a 6-1, 6-1 victory over veteran Ted Smythe in the final.

Play in the women's singles final, halted by rain Sunday, will continue in about a week when top-seeded Brenda Cameron returns from junior competition in Vancouver.

Miss Cameron took the first set 7-5 from unseeded Sandra Moss before rain stopped play Sunday.

Mrs. Cuppage picked up a second title when she and Sally Hemeon downed Viv Davies and Liz Hawes 7-5, 6-0 in the women's doubles final.

Oilers Share Spoils In Intermediate Play

Saanich Charman Pacific Realty tumbled Victoria Island Pacific Oilers 13-8 in a Vancouver Island Intermediate "A" Lacrosse League game Monday night at Memorial Arena.

In a "B" league game on the same floor, Victoria Island Pacific Oilers hammered Saanich Peg's Delicatessen, 22-9.

Terry Gibbard led Charman with three goals while double tallies were added by Al McLaren, Kerry Lewis, Pete McCreesh and Steve Hepburn.

Roy Sinden, Dwayne Ferguson and Peter Kamaan each scored twice for Victoria's "A" squad while Dale Hoskin and Bruce Lubinitch contributed singles.

Gerry Shelly (7), Cam Marshall (4) and Ron Durdie (3) led the Victoria "B" victory.

CANADIAN ANGLER LANDS HUGE MARLIN

HAMILTON, Bermuda (Reuter) — Brian Ludlow of Ottawa will have a fish story to tell when he gets home, but this one didn't get away.

The Canadian fisherman was credited Friday with landing the largest fish ever caught by sportsmen in Bermuda waters.

He hooked onto a 12-foot blue marlin that weighed 563 pounds. The largest previous catch recorded here weighed 416 pounds.

Canadian Shooting Team Picked

VINEMOUNT, Ont. (CP) — John Primrose of Edmonton, Alta., heads a list of four men and one woman who have been selected to represent Canada at the world trapshooting championships in Mexico in October and the world moving-target championships in Australia in November.

Primrose Ed Wladichuk of Hamilton, Gil Henderson of Toronto, Pasquale Musacchio of Montreal, and Miss Susan Nattrass of Edmonton qualified at the Canadian international trials run by the Hamilton Gun Club.

Primrose topped all competitors, breaking 283 of 300 clay targets.

World Record Set

MUNICH (AP) Danie Malan of South Africa set a world record for the 1,000 metres, running the distance in two minutes, 16 seconds on the Olympic Stadium track. The old mark of 2:16.2 was set in 1965 by Juergen May.

One Perry Frisked, the Other Fisk-ed

By The Associated Press

Gaylord Perry was frisked in Cleveland Monday night and brother Jim Perry got Fisk-ed in Boston.

An indignant Gaylord survived another uniform inspection by the umpires and New York manager Ralph Houk amid renewed charges that he was loading up the baseball, and pitched the Indians to a 4-2 victory that snapped the Yankees' eight-game winning streak.

Jim, who pitches for Detroit, was done in by Boston catcher Carlton Fisk's tie-breaking home run in the eighth inning that gave the Red Sox a 2-1 triumph and stretched the Tigers' skid to eight games.

Elsewhere in the American League, Baltimore Orioles edged Milwaukee Brewers 4-3 in 12 innings, Chicago White Sox held off Minnesota Twins 3-2, California Angels beat Kansas City Royals 5-2 and Texas Rangers downed Oakland Athletics 4-2.

The Yankees were losing 4-1 when Houk suddenly bolted to the mound in the eighth inning and made plate umpire Lou DiMuro check Perry's pants and hat.

"Houk's a good man," Perry said, "but I've never had anybody charge me so fast."

"I just thought the game was getting a little dull and I thought I'd have a little fun," Houk said.

Bobby Murcer, who has griped in the past that Perry greases up the ball, was at bat when the fun started.

"I'm 99-per-cent sure that he puts something on the ball," Murcer said. "The umpires know what Perry's doing, but they've been told by the president of the league to ignore it. Their hands are tied."

DiMuro's hands certainly aren't tied. He gave the thumb to third base coach Dick Howser, who had fielded a foul grounder and tried to point out something on the ball.

"I threw out Howser because he was trying to make a show out there and we had enough commotion going on," DiMuro said. "I looked at the ball, his pants and his hat and I couldn't find anything. I don't know anything about the president of the league telling the umpires to ignore illegal pitches."

Nine innings was one inning too many for New York Mets as they landed in the National League's Eastern Division basement.

The Mets led Chicago Cubs 2-0 for eight innings but the Cubs rallied for three runs in the ninth to take the game 3-2.

In other National action Pittsburgh Pirates slipped out of the cellar and moved one percentage point ahead of the Mets by sweeping a doubleheader from Montreal Expos 8-6 and 3-1. Philadelphia Phillies overtook St. Louis Cardinals 7-6, Houston Astros whacked Cincinnati Reds 13-2 and Los Angeles Dodgers shaded San Diego Padres 3-2. (See scores on Page 12.)

Cowichan Club Humming After Co-Op Manoeuvre

There are benefits to be derived from living in a small town, one of which is co-operative assistance.

They work well together in the Duncan area, and president Bill Morrow figures "that's the only way" that Cowichan Golf Club was able to install its new automatic watering system.

When the plan was first investigated, engineering and contractual quotations from Victoria, Vancouver and Nanaimo were exorbitant. The strings of zeros behind the dollar sign and a figure almost killed it in the committee room.

But among members was one who imparted orders to engineers. They got their orders to volunteer. Costs, all of a sudden, brought the project to within common-sense grasp — of a nine-hole golf club.

There were other co-op offerings, mainly in the area of labor.

The pride was obvious when they turned it on two weeks ago. The system is the same as the one recently installed at Royal Colwood, but at a greater bargain because of that small-town co-operative.

It will be a bargain because Cowichan can now direct its energies towards 18 holes. As Morrow hinted, 256 male members, about 110 ladies and 100 juniors "shouldn't be able to afford" the system they have now.

So far this year, Cowichan's membership increased by 36 men and Morrow "blames" it all on the new watering system.

As soon as the membership total warrants it, the club will expand to 18 holes. Nothing can stop them. In addition to the 75 acres in use now, the club has another 55 acres leased out to neighboring farmers.

Until recently, the acreage totalled 121.

"Those last nine acres were the key to what can be a beautiful golf course," said pro Bill Wakeham. "The man who owned it just wouldn't sell. When he died, the club was able to purchase it from his estate.

"Now nothing can stop us."

And from the way he said "us," you know Wakeham, once from the big city, is really enjoying small-town life.

That's where co-operation exists, and the golfing is going to be better than ever.

SHORT CHIPS: You'll have to ask Wakeham about the benefits of being a home-body . . . He had a great, money-winning year playing the backyard tournaments in 1972 and threatens to do much better this time around . . . The Chopper's cut from the B.C. Open boosted his 1973 earnings to almost $4,700, and it is conceivable he'll surpass $5,000 with the Cowichan Open coming up this weekend . . . Moving boat and golf clubs into Cow Bay is Al Zimmerman . . . He finished third in the annual seniors' tournament at Prineville, Ore., two weeks ago and added another $100 from a third-place finish in the West Coast Open at the weekend . . .

After Cowichan, the next big tournament will be the Pacific Northwest Golf Association champions . . . At Oak Bay, for the women, and at Uplands, for the guys . . . July 9-14 . . . And one of the young guys to watch could be Duke DeBernardi . . . Only 20, he plays to a scratch handicap and, if memory serves, showed plenty of class as a teenager in the PNGA tournament at Colwood a couple of years ago . . . Tom Tindall and Bruce Richards, both sons of Seattle-area pros, also are threats any time they tee up . . .

The odds-on favorite in the women's field at Oak Bay undoubtedly will be Mary Budke of Oregon, the defending U.S. amateur champion . . . Liz Culver of Seattle, a regular in PNGA tournaments, is another threat . . .

★ ★ ★

Victoria Club's annual home-and-home series with Seattle Club is always taken for granted by the locals, but it still rates as one of the most historic inter-club series in North America . . . The smiles around Oak Bay are the result of victory . . . Seattle, playing at home, won Saturday's round 53-31 but dropped the series, 108-80 . . . Seattle has won 42 matches, Oak Bay 20 with two ties since the series got under way back in 1903 . . . Nora O'Connell scored her first career ace on Gorge Vale's 14th last week while George Lindsay counted his second on Uplands fourth . . . Walt Spaven (low gross), Martin Sloky (low net) and Mel Smith (visitors) topped the field in the Legion's annual tournament at Broome Hill at the weekend . . .

Listers Combine To Check Movers

Al's Home Service tightened up the Victoria Senior Baseball League race another notch Monday night by handing Greaves Movers a 4-0 loss at Lambrick Park.

Victory moved Al's to within one game of Gorge Hotel and Farmer Construction, who are deadlocked for the lead in the four-team loop. Even cellar-dwelling Greaves is only three games behind the leaders.

Eric Lister picked up the win by hurling a three-hitter and his brother, Gerry, provided the first and winning run with a double in the fourth inning.

Darryl Kubicek then drove in Gerry Lister with a one-out home run.

Bob Butcher scored an unearned run in the fifth inning to round out scoring.

McDonalds Hail Affiliates Again

Victoria McDonalds will again call on a little help from the affiliates when they go after their 13th straight victory in the Pacific Junior "A" Lacrosse League tonight.

McDonalds' coach Bill Munroe has called up Kevin Alexander and Bob Cool from Saanich, E. J. Hunter of the Pacific Junior "B" League for the game against second-place Burnaby Cablevision at 8 at Memorial Arena.

Alexander and Cool have both helped McDonalds out on previous occasions this season and have added punch to the attack.

On Monday night, Rick Boucher scored three goals and picked up three assists and Peter Guerin got two goals and two assists to lead Surrey Salmonbellies to a 12-8 victory over Richmond Road runners. The win lifted Surrey out of a tie with Coquitlam J-Hawks and into third place, two points behind Burnaby.

Century Inn Shows Muscle

Apart from this season's record in the Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League, the impressive feature of Century Inn is size. The Al Moore-coached squad is heavy on healthy-sized players.

But it was one of the "little tykes," catcher Terry Oscarson, who provided most of the muscle Monday as high-flying Century blanked Sooke Merchants 4-0 at Heywood Avenue Park.

Oscarson banged out two singles and a double, scored twice and knocked in a third run as Century reeled off its 15th straight victory.

Oscarson's three-for-three performance was all the support Bill Polz needed to win his 12th game. Polz spaced four hits, including a pair by Al Govenlock, struck out 10 and didn't walk a man.

Shortstop Bob Custance, another of Moore's slighter-built players, accounted for the two other hits off losing pitcher Ron Fedosenko — a single and a second-inning home run.

Victory pushed Century 4½ games ahead of second-running Seaboard.

Beep Ball Fans Shouldn't Cheer

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The young baseball player had the ultimate insult for the umpire who had just called him out on a close play.

"You're blinder than I am," he chirped.

Improbable as it sounds, the boy belongs to one of 115 teams of legally blind children in 17 cities playing beep ball, a softball game played by sound, not sight.

Two teams of blind youngsters aged eight to 12 will play a two-inning beep ball exhibition before tonight's game between Atlanta Braves and San Diego Padres. The game's frequent hits will startle many fans, but they'll be cautioned not to cheer.

"When they do that," notes Chuck Love, one of the organizers, "the kids in the field can't hear the ball."

The game works this way:

A 14-inch ball with an electronic beeping device at the centre is tossed by a sighted pitcher to the batter, who tries to hit it purely by sound. When the ball is hit fair, one of eight bases behind the pitcher is activated and starts beeping.

Seven blind fielders, prompted by two adults, try to pick up the beeping ball before the batter can walk to the base. There are five strikes and four outs, and each hit counts as a run.

"It's really amazing what they can do with just a sense of hearing," says Ralph Rock, the San Francisco telephone company employee who invented the game in 1971.

"We took a team of regular little leaguers and blindfolded them. None of them could hit the ball. But these blind kids make contact consistently."

French Bike Champ

PLUMELAC, France (AP) — Bernard Thevent won the French road cycling championship, covering the twisting, 155-mile course in six hours, 26 minutes 25 seconds to finish more than three minutes ahead of favored Cyrille Guimard.

The players, both boys and girls, really start from scratch in that none of them has ever seen a baseball game.

"We'll say, 'Okay, take a swing,' but they don't know what a swing is," says Love. "Most of 'em chop down on the ball."

Even so, scores like 8-5 are common, and they might be higher if the batters didn't keep breaking the balls, Love says.

Rock, who plans a world series of beep ball in San Diego soon, says he had misgivings at first because of possible injuries.

"We had our first game and, sure enough, a boy got hit by a pitch and broke his thumb," he recalls. "I was worried sick about it.

"I called his mother two days later and said, 'How is John doing?' she said, 'It's the greatest thing that ever happened to him.' He goes around showing his cast to everybody and saying, "You'll never guess how I did this."

Visitors Topple Victoria Juniors

Mark Hine took six wickets for only 19 runs in a devastating bowling display on a wet wicket Sunday at Beacon Hill Park but it wasn't quite enough to enable Victoria Juniors to avert defeat.

Getting 21 runs from opening-batsman John Kyle, Vancouver Juniors held on to make 39 for eight to win the low-scoring inter-city under-15 match by two wickets.

Only captain Richard Wilson, who made 14 not out, and David Waslynko, who hit nine, put up much resistance to the Vancouver bowling as Victoria Juniors were dismissed for 38. Martin Trotter took four for three and Martin Stead finished with four for 19.

In Sunday's only Victoria and District Cricket Association league match, Cowichan pulled into a third-place tie with Castaways by battling to a draw with second-place Incogs at Shawnigan Lake Boys' School.

Neil Brett-Davies scored 41 and Peter Clarke got 31 as Cowichan declared at 158 for seven. Jim Wenman led the Incog attack with three for 50.

Wenman then scored 46 runs and Eric Kjeckstad got 24 but Incogs could reach only 138 for eight before time ran out. Clarke took four for 52 to top the Cowichan bowling.

Rain washed out the Incogs-Castaways game Saturday but two other matches were played, with Albions beating Oak Bay for their eighth win of the season and Cowichan getting its first victory in eight games by downing Alcos by 50 runs at Shawnigan Lake School.

Alec Porter took seven for nine and Don Hughes got three for 11 as Albions dismissed Oak Bay for only 22.

Albions lost only one wicket in making 24 runs for the victory.

Hansen, Town Pace Canadian Hoop Team

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Canada downed Mexico 69-63 Monday night in the first of three exhibition basketball games here against the Mexican Basketball Selection.

Best Canadian players were Robert Town and Lars Hansen, each scoring 12 points. Mexican players Ricardo Pontbiane and Oscar Palma each scored 13 points.

The Canadian national team, coached by Jack Donahue, is scheduled to play its second game against Mexico tonight to be followed by a third and last game Thursday in Cuautitlan, a small village in the nearby state of Mexico.

After Mexico, the Canadian team plans to travel to Cuba to attend an international basketball tournament which also will feature Russia, Yugoslavia, China, Czechoslovakia Peru and Panama.

The team is training for the 1976 Montreal Olympics.

. . . has something for everyone!

The Bathtub Races
"Hoist mainsail and lower bathplug . . ."
Crowds jostle for a waterfront view. Seabound spectators, many of whom plan to accompany the tubbers on their sometimes gruelling voyage, are all aboard boats large and small. The flotilla of escort boats is ready and waiting. The bathtubs, greeted by enthusiastic applause, wend their, often precarious, way to the starting line. All is ready for the great Nanaimo to Vancouver bathtub race to begin.
This is the climax of the week-long celebrations that lend a carnival air to Nanaimo — "Bathtub Capital of the World." Visitors and locals alike throw themselves wholeheartedly into their enjoyment of the festivities. King Neptune and the Mermaid Queen, the decorated stores, the zany bathtub designs, the many aquatic events, all add to the spirit of the occasion.
On July 22nd, this year over 300 bathtubbers plan to compete. Each hopes to be the first to make that final glorious surge up the beach at Kitsilano to win the coveted "Golden Plunger" award. However, as the Loyal Order of Bathtubbers and tardier tubbers agree, "to cross the finish line is honor enough."
Bathtubs or boats, plungers or plugs . . . you're sure to find whatever you need in the Classified pages of your Victoria daily Newspaper.

Drug-Check Plan Disturbs Players

NEW YORK (AP) — "Listen," one National Football League official said to another as they left the league's Park Avenue headquarters, "if we can just get through this week, I think we'll be okay."

This week is the annual owners' meeting. And although the NFL official probably was thinking about the mountains of paperwork that accompanies such events, he might have been envisioning what shapes up as another nose-to-nose confrontation between the owners and players.

In the past, it's been money that has driven a wedge between the two. This time around, it's more personal.

And if Commissioner Pete Rozelle does as he is expected, things will begin heating up today.

Rozelle is reportedly going to suggest to the owners that, as one means of deterring rumored drug abuse, the players be given urine tests.

The NFL Players' Association is dead set against the idea, calling it over-reaction and an invasion of privacy.

The whole drug issue, which has appeared on a few occasions in the past when players were arrested and charged with possession of drugs—usually marijuana—surfaced again a few weeks ago when a newspaper story reported that at least four players, all of them stars, were suspected of dealing heavily in drugs and were under surveillance by narcotics agents. The players were not named.

As a result of that report, The Associated Press polled NFL players, who unanimously denied knowledge of any fellow players using or dealing in drugs and generally said they felt the story gave the NFL a black eye.

The players association, during its three-day meeting in Chicago last week, met for several hours with Rozelle, apparently without resolving differences.

Then the 26 players representatives unanimously passed a resolution opposing "any unilateral action by the commissioner based on hurried over-reaction to sensational and unsubstantiated news reports of drug abuse in the NFL . . ."

The NFLPA resolution also said it is against "proposals lacking due process which would invade the privacy of gifted athletics and further violate individual right and freedoms enjoyed by other citizens."

Monday's opening of the weeklong session of meetings — all private—was limited to a coaches' conclave. It was, for the most part, a review and assessment of rules and contract and waiver procedures.

Child-Battering Leading Death Cause

NEW YORK (Reuter) — A New York pediatrician said today that child-battering is probably the leading cause of death among children, outnumbering deaths by any form of accident or disease.

Dr. Vincent Fontana, medical chairman of the New York Foundling Hospital, said child abuse is "a medical-social disease of endemic proportions" and is "becoming more entrenched on our population."

Speaking at the American Medical Association meeting here, he described child battering as "a symptom of the violence running rampant in our society" and warned:

"This generation's battered children, if they survive, will become the next generation's battering parents."

Children, he said, are injured and killed by their parents with "calculated finesse" behind closed doors and windows.

"On record there are thousands of childhood deaths attributed to sudden infant deaths (such as) falls, strangulation, burns, starvation, maternal deprivation, sexual assaults and gross battering."

700 A YEAR DIE

At least 700 children die annually in the United States under such circumstances, he said.

Drawing a profile of the type of family situation in which child abuse would most probably occur, he said the family would be marked by recurring mental illness, drug addiction, financial distress, divorce or alcoholism.

"These stress factors all play leading roles that cause the potentially abusive parent to strike out at a special child during a crisis situation," he said.

While child battering is not limited to any particular social or economic class, Dr. Fontana said, the root of the problem appeared to be in the battering parents' own childhood experiences.

"The parents' own lack of love, support and protection makes them unable to give love, affection and mothering to their own children," he said.

Although maltreatment of children may occur in any age group, children under three are most likely to be the victims.

Usually, it is the mother who inflicts the beating and her average age is 26 years.

PARK PLANNED

A 384-acre provincial park will be established at the north end of Chilliwack Lake, Recreation and Conservation Minister Jack Radford said Monday.

The Class A park will consist of 328 acres released by the B.C. Forest Service, 41 acres of Crown Land now under reserve for recreational purposes and 14.8 acres with 1,650 feet of lake-frontage purchased for $70,000 from a California resident.

A 100-unit campground and a picnic area are planned for the park, but a beach area is not being considered because of low water temperatures in the glacier-fed lake.

LOTTERY WOOING BEGINS

MONTREAL (CP) — Two officials of the Montreal Olympic organizing committee will meet government officials of four western provinces this week in an attempt to gain their support for an Olympic lottery fund-raising program, a committee spokesman said Monday.

Three of the four provinces, British Columbia, Alberta and Manitoba, have already refused to participate in the project. The fourth, Saskatchewan, has not announced it's official position.

"Two men are being sent out west to try to convince the governments to change their minds about participating in the lottery," the committee member said.

First prize in the lottery is $1 million.

Recess Signs Emerge

OTTAWA (CP) — With summer at hand after nearly six tense months of minority government in the 29th Parliament, signs of adjournment are emerging this week as the Commons rushes toward completion of several major bills.

Observers forecast, however, that the summer recess will not begin before the second week of July; some pessimists think late July is a more reasonable guess.

This week, after the House wades through the remaining 1973-74 budget estimates today with several votes in the process, attention turns first to proposed legislation aimed at raising funds for the 1976 Summer Olympics at Montreal.

The bill, ready for second reading, would permit the special issuance of stamps and coins to commemorate the Olympics and the government thinks $260 million can be raised to offset an anticipated deficit in the financing of the Games.

Of the total, $130 million would come from the sale of stamps and other postal products while the coins, with a market value of $200 million, would add the other $130 million after minting expenses have been deducted.

A national lottery also would be permitted, in the hope the rest of the $310-million cost of the Games will be covered. Ottawa has refused to balance any deficit the Olympics may incur.

HAD HOLIDAY

After losing a day Monday — the House didn't sit because it was St. Jean Baptiste Day in Quebec—more time will be lost next Monday when Dominion Day is observed.

Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week are to be devoted to committee of the whole consideration and, said Government House Leader Allan MacEachen, "hopefully third reading" of Income Tax Act amendments.

If time permits, the Commons also will take a run at amendments to half a dozen other acts.

13 Police Sentenced

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — Thirteen former members of the Newburgh, N.Y., police force have been sentenced to terms ranging from four years in prison to three years' probation after being convicted on conspiracy, attempted burglary and other charges.

The 13 sentenced Monday included former police chief Humbert Cappelli.

The police were indicted last year on more than 30 counts of alleged official misconduct.

During the trial, the prosecution charged the defendants, with planting narcotics on suspects, dividing money seized in gambling raids, attempted burglary of a Sears Roebuck store and concealing evidence.

CITY URGED TO ACT ON HERITAGE

Some of Victoria's fine old buildings have already been flattened by the inexorable onward march of apartment development, and city council is being urged to act swiftly to save those remaining.

The Advisory Planning Commission is suggesting the city take advantage of recent amendments to the Municipal Act which give municipalities substantial powers to emplement their own preservation programs.

The act allows a municipality, with cabinet approval, to designate buildings as heritage structures for the purpose of preserving an area's history, culture and heritage.

Once a building is designated it can't be demolished; neither can its facade or exterior be altered without the specific approval of city council.

Such "muscle" in undertaking an ambitious preservation program goes far beyond the present controls, which are limited to direct acquisition of the property concerned or impermanent zoning policies.

Most of Victoria's 1,200-plus buildings constructed prior to 1914 have little architectural value or historic significance, a city official said, but there are many well worth preserving.

The Canadian Inventory of Historic Buildings, compiled by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, breaks down Victoria's historic buildings into four age categories: pre-1881, 1881-1890, 1891-1900 and 1901-1915.

Old Town, on the inventory map, is liberally sprinkled with patches of blue indicating pre-1881 vintage.

One of the major residential groupings is the eastern part of James Bay, between Menzies and Beacon Hill Park, with scores of turn-of-the-century and some older homes.

The federal inventory is not complete, but meanwhile the city has begun its own heritage building survey.

This will list such details as buildings' age, historical significance, market value and structural condition.

The provincial legislation helps a municipality to exercise its new powers by allowing it to establish a Heritage Advisory Committee, and city hall sources believe early action will be taken by council to appoint such a body.

It will likely include architects, historians and other experts and it will be charged with recommending to council those buildings or areas which should be designated for preservation.

Lloyd's of London Agree To Re-Insure B.C. Policies

Lloyd's of London, the largest insurance company in the world, will be a "re-insurer" of B.C.'s new government-run Insurance Corporation.

Jast back from a trip to London, Transportation Minister Bob Strachan said Monday he met representatives of Lloyd's to discuss "the whole insurance field" as well as the part Lloyd's will play in the government insurance scheme, which begins March, 1974.

Re-insurance is usually taken out by every insurance company and means that the first company assumes a risk but then re-insures part of that risk with another company.

A local insurance company representative explained Monday a company may assume a certain percentage of the risk of every policy written by the first company or may simply agree to take some portion of some policies.

"We haven't decided how much we'll carry ourselves and how much will be re-insured," Strachan said.

"Re-insurance is part of every operating insurance company," said the minister, "and to have Lloyd's participating in that re-insurance is a good indicator of what they think of the company."

53 Students Perform for Parents

Taking the form of an ensemble fiesta, 53 students of the Josephine Butler School of Music performed for parents and friends recently.

Ranging in age from five years to teens, the students joined in various combinations of duet, trio and concertino.

Marguerite and Desiree Vanderwel, Jacquie Morin and Ken Seaman played a Scarlatti Sonata in double duet at two pianos. There were also two ensembles involving xylophone, glochenspiels, bells and gong, and three students performed their own compositions.

Taking part were Jonathan and Tim Archer, Margaret Batten, Carolyn and Bobby Bell, Gillian Barber, Shannon Dayton, Kathleen and Linda Dale, Ken Dosso, Charles and Grace Francis, Susan and Linda Ferne, Robbyn Finding, Jean Fowler, Garry and Roddy Frechette, Elaine Gagne, Kirsty Grant, Quita and Vicki Gray, James Hall, Kathleen Hogg, Alison Howard, Linda Hammill, Roderick King, Jackie and Jonathan Kirby, Bronwen and Mark Lewis, Catherine, Janet and Bruce Luney, Sandra and Paul Macpherson, Kaye, Andrew and Jenny Minter, Lauretta, Jacquie, Gerry and Greg Morin, Betty Newstead, Joanne Norie, Alison Peake, Stephanie Peter, Hanna Safkow, Desiree, Marguerite and Alan James Vanderwel and Malcolm Woodland.

$5.5M Advance Allocated

The government-owned Insurance Corporation of B.C. has been given a department of finance advance of $5.5 million to set up its operations.

The crown corporation which will take over all automobile insurance in the province in March, 1974, must repay the advance plus interest by March, 1975.

Three Miners Die

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — A cave-in and fire Sunday in a small copper mine about 30 miles west of the capital killed three miners. Seven others were rescued, officials said. Police said the fire apparently started accidentally in one of the galleries and the cave-in occurred as the wooden supports burned.

Cuba-Trained Pilots Signal Soviet Buildup in S. Yemen

WASHINGTON (WP) — Cuba has begun training South Yemeni pilots to fly the advanced MiG-21 jet fighters the Soviet Union is now supplying to Marxist-oriented South Yemen, according to well-informed Washington sources.

There are more than 100 Cubans in South Yemen, many of them military advisers training the South Yemeni militia and air force, the sources say. Also, an unspecified number of Yemeni pilots have gone to Cuba for training.

The arrival of Cuban military advisers in large numbers in South Yemen, the only leftist regime on the oil-laden Arabian peninsula, appears to be linked to a stepup in the delivery of Soviet aircraft and other arms to the country.

Strategically located at the Red Sea's entrance, although without any oil or gas reserves of its own, South Yemen, whose capital Aden was a former British crown colony, has provided the Soviets with their only toehold on the Arabian peninsula.

The military buildup there has become a major concern not only of U.S. officials but also of North Yemen and Saudi Arabia, which have turned to the west for diplomatic support and increased military assistance.

While the Soviets are supplying South Yemen and Iraq with more than $1 billion in military hardware, the United States has decided to sell massive amounts of arms and aircraft to Iran, Saudi Arabia and Kuwait.

The prospective and ongoing U.S. arms deals with these three oil-rich Persian Gulf states total about $5 billion, including training and service contracts.

The Soviet-American rivalry in the gulf is serving to aggravate the numerous existing intra-Arab conflicts.

ACTUAL SIZE WEIGHT: 750 GRAINS

Minted in Solid Sterling Silver.
Legal Tender in the Commonwealth of the Bahamas.

On July 10, 1973, the Bahamas will become an Independent Sovereign State. On that day, a new flag will be raised over the capitol in Nassau and the islands will officially be designated the Commonwealth of the Bahamas.

In commemoration of this historic event, the government will issue a new 10-dollar Independence Day coin—the first sterling silver commemorative coin of the Bahamas. The coin will depict Columbus' ship, the Santa Maria, which made its historic first landing in the New World at San Salvador in the Bahamas. This special commemorative coin will be issued only once—in a limited Proof edition—and will never be issued again. Proof-quality coins may be ordered individually or in first day cachets as specified below:

Individual Proof-Quality Coins

Each Proof of the 10-dollar sterling silver Independence Day coin will be housed in a deluxe presentation case. The official government issue price is $19.50 per coin (plus 50¢ for postage and handling). There is a strict limit of 4 individual Proof coins per order.

First Day Cachets

Each first day cachet will combine a 10-dollar sterling silver Independence Day Proof coin and a commemorative Independence Day stamp, both issued on July 10, 1973. Each cachet will bear the "First Day of Issue" postmark of Nassau, the Bahamas, July 10, 1973. This postmarking will forever establish the first day of issue status of the coin and stamp. Each cachet will be personalized with the subscriber's name and accompanied by a certificate of authenticity.

The official government issue price is $19.50 per coin (plus $1.50 for the first day cachet service). There is a strict limit of 1 first day cachet per order.

Deadline Date for Orders: July 10, 1973

Residents of the Bahamas may order from the Bahamas Monetary Authority. Collectors in Canada should send their orders directly to Wellings Mint Ltd., the Canadian affiliate of the official minter The Franklin Mint.

American Awarded $200,000 Damages

General damages of $200,000 have been awarded by B.C. Supreme Court here to an American crippled in a car accident near Ladysmith last year.

Lloyd Hans Skrenes, 51, of Las Vegas, Nevada, was a passenger in a car driven by Muriel F. Guyot, of Ladysmith, which collided Jan. 24, 1972, with a logging truck driven by Walter Rook Addison Jr., of W. R. Addison Lumber Co. Ltd.

Skrenes was partially paralysed from the waist down.

Skrenes, represented by Victoria lawyer Rodney Taylor, claimed damages against the driver of the truck, the lumber company, Mrs. Guyot, and her husband Louis Ivonnique Guyot.

A jury of six men and two women began deliberations at 8:45 p.m. Friday. After three hours Mr. Justice J. G. Ruttan said he would accept a verdict from any six jurors.

The jury found Addison 53 per cent negligent, ruling that he was driving at excessive speed and occupying more than his portion of the road.

Mrs. Guyot was found 43 per cent negligent for driving at excessive speed on the snowy road, and for "braking and locking her wheels, causing loss of control."

Four per cent of the blame was attached to Skrenes for failing to fasten his seat belt.

In his testimony during the five-day trial, Skrenes said since the accident he has suffered a great deal of pain, has "a lot of difficulty with bowel and bladder control," and is impotent.

At one point his weight dropped from 180 pounds to 126.

"I was just a bag of bones and skin," he said. "I was in bad shape. I might laugh about it a little bit now, but it's really no joke."

He told the court he began having emotional problems in June, 1972, and often broke into tears.

"I was faced with the sudden realization that I was going to be changed, my whole life," said Skrenes.

Mr. and Mrs. Guyot were represented by Lloyd McKenzie. Addison and the lumber company were represented by R. M. J. Hutchinson of Nanaimo.

STRACHAN RIDDLES HOVERCRAFT TALE

The provincial government has denied any interest in purchasing a giant $10 million hovercraft Transportation Minister Robert Strachan said Monday. "I know absolutely nothing about it, I think somebody's flying a hovercraft, looking for a sale."

James Mills, vice-president, Canadian operations, of Bell Aerospace Canada, was reported earlier in June to have said his firm was discussing possible sale of the hovercraft to the province.

The executive said his firm proposed a ferry service using Bell's $6 million Voyageur hovercraft, a 40-ton craft which can travel 70 miles an hour.

The Voyageur would provide training for crews in preparation for a much bigger Vancouver-Victoria ferry, to cost up to $10 million and carry 58 cars and 240 passengers.

"I read that story and it's the first I've heard of it," Strachan said.

Gas in Trunk Dangerous

It's better running out of gas than carrying extra fuel in the trunk of your car, a B.C. Automobile Association spokesman said today.

BCAA public relations manager Don Bruce said many motorists travelling to the U.S. are carrying extra cans of gas as insurance against running out on the highway.

"In case of an accident, what might ordinarily be a minor mishap could become disastrous under these conditions and if a chain reaction highway accident occurred, the result could be a holocaust."

Gasoline stored in cans inside a hot car trunk can expand and overflow, he said, increasing the risk of ignition by sparks from a crash or from a lighted cigarette.

A B.C. Ferries spokesman said extra gas cans are considered "dangerous cargo" — empty or full.

People carrying gas containers are not permitted to board a ferry without a "gas-free certificate," issued by the Ministry of transport, confirming the can has been steamcleaned, said the spokesman.

But B.C. Ferries officials have no authority to check car trunks, he said.

Under temporary export regulations imposed by the Department of energy, mines and resources June 15, the transport of gasoline from Canada to the U.S. is illegal.

A spokesman from customs said gasoline may be carried only in the vehicle's gas tank.

Driver Fined $1,060

DUNCAN — A series of driving offences cost Bradley Thomas of Tzouhalem $1,060 in fines in provincial court Monday.

Thomas was charged with hit-and-run, impaired driving, refusal to submit to a breath test, driving without a valid driver's licence, and failure to file an accident report within 48 hours.

He was stopped June 6 by police 20 minutes after an accident at the corner of Trunk and Brae in Duncan.

Police said Thomas ran into the rear end of a car driven by Glen Ridgeway of Duncan and did not remain at the scene of the accident. There were no injuries.

BOMB SWEEP ASKED

SAYWARD — Comox-Strathcona Regional Board has asked the national defence department to sweep for bombs on Tree Island and Henry Bay at the north end of Denman Island.

Army exercises were carried out in the area during the Second World War.

Courtenay Mayor Bill Morre said it involved mainly four acres, especially on the beaches where landings were practised.

Meanwhile, the regional board is waiting for confirmation as to when a sweep for bombs will be made on about 100 acres at the Comox Valley Exhibition grounds, just outside Courtenay.

The request for a check for bombs on the old army barracks site was made after grounds caretaker Bob Stark recently found a live mortar bomb, a smoke bomb and two segments of bombs.

Signs have been posted around the site warning residents to stay out because of possible hidden explosives.

LAKELSE EXPANSION

The provincial government has purchased 130 acres of land adjoining Lakelse Lake Provincial Park near Terrace.

The property, which will be bought for $215,700 from Little, Haughland and Kerr Ltd. of Terrace, has more than 1,500 feet of lakefront contiguous with the present park shoreline.

Lakelse Lake is the primary recreation site for area between Terrace and Kitimat.

'Tulip-Tree' Flowers Fascinating to View

The flowering tree unexpectedly booming for us this year is difficult to describe unless you already are familiar with it. Here's hoping you know it—Liriodendron tulipifera. The name comes from the Greek 'lirion'—a lily, 'dendron' meaning tree; and 'tulipifera' meaning tulip-bearing.

This fine tree is not, and need not be, at all rare here, nor need it be shunned for lack of winter hardiness. Native to the eastern states of Massachusetts, Virginia and Maryland, and north into southern Canada at Niagara, the liriodendron has only its ultimate size against it for single lot gardens.

Even then if it were given the whole lot, its 100-foot height would be a fine landmark.

Some of these trees were planted on Douglas Street north of Humber Green in 1963; others the same year and two years later on Fort Street in the Foul Bay Road area and on lower Government Street in James Bay.

★ ★ ★

Before flowering age is reached, probably the most outstanding characteristic of these trees is shape of the large leaves, bright green, paler underneath, turning to a fine yellow in fall.

They are best described as long stalked, about five inches across and deeply lobed, with the tip of each leaf appearing as though neatly cut across with scissors.

The lobing varies with different leaves, I notice; some have four lobes, others two, but the cut-off tip is a distinguishing feature of all.

Now that we see the flowers on our own tree for the first time (it is 10 years old), we can see why it was given the common name of Tulip-tree by the colonists who admired it in its eastern habitat. But we think the flowers resemble bells rather than tulips. They squat upright at the ends of the branches with broad leaves spread out below, They measure two to two-and-a-half inches in depth and as much across when fully opened.

★ ★ ★

Color is as fresh as early summer mornings—a clean yellowish green; each of the six heavily textured petals marked near the base with a rough triangle of orange, this coloring penetrating right through the petal to each side. Definitely lovely, but not "showy" until, we learn to appreciate the less obvious.

Now we find each day something new about this fascinating flower that we are seeing for the first time. Illustrations—yes; even excellent color-photos by courtesy of a reader a few years ago, but never before the live flowers.

Look for this tree during the current week; you too may come across the flowers. Look to the tips of the branches where the sun reaches, not at the top where the newer growth is. When you see them, you too will wonder why gardeners confuse them with the spring flowering Magnolia soulangeana; they are not a bit alike, although distantly related.

The range of boulevard trees on city streets is worth a summer's study. How about that for a project?

SOLUTION WEDNESDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FREDA KARPIN

One of the conventional bids that has come into prominence in tournament play during the past decade is the Flannery Two Heart opening bid. This bid, made on a hand that contains 12-16 high-card points, denotes a hand that contains five hearts and four spades.

An example of "Flannery" in action can be observed in today's deal, which came up in a team-of-four match.

Neither side vulnerable. North deals.

♠ A J 7
♡ K 7 5 4
◇ J 8
♣ 10 6 5 2

WEST
♠ 6 4
♡ J 6
◇ K Q 10 9 7 5
♣ J 7 4

EAST
♠ 10 8 3 2
♡ Q 2
◇ A 6 3

SOUTH
♠ K Q 9 5
♡ A 10 9 8 3
◇ 4 2
♣ A 3

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	2♡	Pass
4♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ◇.

If one were to use point-count as the criterion, North would have had no justification for bidding four hearts, since South's opening two-heart bid showed 12-16 high-card points. But with South's bid also announcing the possession of five hearts and four spades, North felt that his own holdings in the major suits would consolidate South's holdings. So he elected to gamble out a four-heart contract.

In the play, West opened the king of diamonds, and followed up by leading the diamond queen. East overtook this with his ace and laid down the king of clubs, South's ace winnng. When the king and ace of trumps were played next, and the four adversely-held trumps turned out to be divided 2-2, declarer conceded a club trick and claimed his contract.

Actually, declarer was fortunate, to fulfill his contract, since, in the above set-up, he would lose a trump trick more often than not. Nevertheless, the contract was a reasonable one, having better than a 40 per cent chance of success.

When the deal was replayed, North-South were not employing the Flannery Convention. South opened the bidding with one heart, showing nothing more than 13 points and four hearts. North's raise to two hearts denoted a hand containing 6-9 points and trump support. South, quite naturally, passed.

The play was identical to that which occurred at the first table, with declarer coming home with 10 tricks. So, at the first table, North-South scored 420 points, while at the second table their teammates lost but 170 points. So their gain on this deal was 250 points.

500 LAUNCH FLAG WEEK

A crowd of around 500 was on hand for the official proclamation of Fly the Flag Week by Mayor Peter Pollen Sunday in front of the Legislative Buildings.

Organizer Hugh Stephen said today he thought the crowd was good, considering the lousy weather. The ceremonies, which were attended by Lt.-Gov. Walter Owen, were organized by the Men's Canadian Club of Victoria.

Silver Lining for Eleanor

CLIFTON, Ariz. — The yellow-print dress that kept Eleanor Stacy from participating in her Grade 8 graduation ceremonies has turned out to have a silver lining. A Missouri man, Dean Bolton, has offered to pay the 13-year-old girl's tuition for four years of college.

Eleanor was not allowed to participate in graduation ceremonies at Clifton elementary school in May because her dress had pastel yellow flowers on it instead of being solid pastel like the rest of the class.

PEKING — China has discovered Charlie Chaplin and his antics may soon be seen in Chinese cinemas, sources here said Monday. The sources said Chinese officials concerned with cultural affairs have been seeking to acquire two Chaplin films — Modern Times and City Lights.

WASHINGTON — Former presidential adviser Samuel Irving Rosenman, whose suggestions gave rise to the brain trust and the new deal of the Franklin D. Roosevelt era, died Sunday at Lenox Hill hospital in New York. He had been hospitalized with pneumonia and died of lung congestion. He was 77.

SEATTLE — Five Russian Jewish scientists have ended a two-week hunger strike protesting Soviet restrictions on emigration to Israel, it has been reported here.

Dr. Edward A. Stern, physics professor at the University of Washington, said a sixth Jewish scientist, Anatol Libgover, 24, ended his fast last week and left for Israel after being granted a visa.

Stern said he had spoken with Prof. Mark A. Azbel, one of the five Soviet Jews, in an intercontinental telephone conversation Saturday night.

TRAIL — A minor inconvenience like a broken leg, traction, and a hospital bed won't stop a young couple determined to get married, so that's exactly what happened here.

Gwyneth Jones and her father, Evan, were both wheeled into the wedding ceremony in hospital beds. Miss Jones was married to John Zappavigna in a special room at the Trail regional hospital. About 100 persons attended the ceremony. The two were injured in a motorcycle accident a week ago.

WASHINGTON — Stephen King the bodyguard Martha Mitchell accused of manhandling her in California last year, will be given a new $25,000-a-year-plus job in the agriculture department, officials said today.

VANCOUVER — Most Rev. R. S. Dean, 60, diocesian archbishop of Cariboo and metropolitan of the ecclestiastical province of British Columbia, has resigned. He will take up a teaching position in Greenville, S.C.

WASHINGTON — The house select crime committee has cleared a corporation connected to entertainers Frank Sinatra and Sammy Davis Jr. of direct involvement in organized crime. The committee issued a report on Emprise Corp., a Buffalo, N.Y., firm which it said had invested in legal but suspected gambling ventures using "celebrities as fronts." It concluded that while the firm had done business with known Mafia figures, it had not itself been a part of organized crime.

TORONTO — Marlene Raymond, a 15-year-old Toronto high school student, claims a world record for limbo dancing by getting under a flaming bar 6⅛ inches from the floor. She performed the stunt at the Trinidad pavilion of Caravan '73, a multi-national festival held here.

TORONTO — Robert H. Moore, 63, vice-president of technical services for Falconbridge Nickel Mines, died Monday following a lengthy illness.

LONDON — A government junior minister startled the House of Commons Monday night when he produced what appeared to be three pistols and aimed one at opposition MPs. William Van Straubenzee, minister of state in the Northern Ireland office, explained that he was holding imitation firearms. He made the gesture to support the government's argument that possession of such articles should be banned in Northern Ireland, where sectarian feuding is going on..

SAN CLEMENTE — President Nixon announced Monday that he would confer in Washington July 30 with Australian Prime Minister Gough Whitlam, a sharp critic of his Cambodian bombing policy.

Earlier this year, Whitlam, who is the new Labor prime minister, angered Nixon with a blunt letter attacking U.S. policy in Cambodia. There had been reports that Nixon would refuse to see the Australian leader when he passed through Washington en route to the Commonwealth Prime Ministers' Conference in Ottawa in early August.

MONCTON, N.B. — Mayor Leonard Jones was returned to office Monday for the sixth consecutive time, but saw his majority slashed by his only opponent, businessman J. A. Keefe. Mayor Jones had 12,315 votes when the count ended Monday night to 11,686 for Keefe.

SANTA MONICA, Calif. — Actress Eva Gabor, 46, divorced her fourth husband, writer-director Richard Brown, 49, on Monday in what probably was the quickest divorce in Hollywood history. It only took 30 seconds for Miss Gabor to obtain the divorce on grounds of "irreconcilable differences," after 14 years of a childless marriage.

Soul singer Diahann Carroll, meanwhile, is being divorced in Reno from Freddie Glusman, a dress shop owner, after four months of marriage. And in Albany, N.Y., Sydney Poitier's ex-wife, Juanita Poitier, is suing the actor for default in support payments for her and their four children.

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — Gov. George C. Wallace confirmed Monday he has been treated secretly by a psychic healer, known as "Mr. A.," but Wallace did not say the man had significantly helped ease the pain from the 1972 shooting that left him partially paralyzed.

RAPID CITY, S.D. — Bond was set at $105,000 for American Indian Movement Leader Dennis Banks, who surrendered himself to authorities in Rapid City late Monday. Banks was charged on two indictments in connection with the 71-day occupation of Wounded Knee. The charges included burglary, larceny, assaulting of a motor vehicle and possession of an unregistered firearm and arson.

$12,000 FOR GALLERY

Close to $12,000 was raised for the Greater Victoria Art Gallery during 1972-73 by its women's committee.

This was revealed in the report of retiring president Doreen Burrows at the committee's recent annual meeting.

The committee raises money to support the gallery's many needs and promotes an understanding and appreciation of the gallery.

Among the activities that of the docent group, part of the women's committee, plays a significant part. Consisting of 25 members, they act as guides for groups of adults and children touring the various exhibitions.

During the past year, 3,220 school children have been conducted on these tours.

Particular tribute was also paid by Mrs. Burrows to the artists-at-work project which attracted 4,000 visitors to the gallery.

Retiring director Colin Graham will be the subject of a portrait to be painted by Myfanwy Pavelic on commission by the women's committee.

The portrait will have a permanent place in the gallery in tribute to Graham's long service.

Barbara Copeland was elected president with an executive consisting of Kaaren Cummings, first vice-president; Jean Murray, second vice-president; Joy Littler, treasurer; Patricia Alexander, recording secretary; Judy Stewart, chairman of picture rental, and Shelagh Aldous, membership.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 28-year-old driver, charged with criminal negligence in the death of 51-year-old Gordon A. Baker, of 3041 Albany, has been committed for trial in higher court.

Provincial Court Judge William Ostler issued a no publication order when Larry Howard Caton, of 15 Midwood, appeared in provincial court Monday for preliminary hearing.

Baker died March 2 in a two-car collision on Burnside Road.

★ ★ ★

A 23-year-old woman who pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana because "I don't have the time to await trial" was fined $25.

Susan M. Scott, of San Francisco, said she was not guilty of possession. She was in Seattle for a business trip and came to Victoria for a two-day holiday.

Police found a plastic bag of the drug in her shirt pocket when she was stopped at the bus terminal Saturday.

She said the shirt was not hers.

"I sent my good clothes back on the plane, with my co-worker."

She said she had been in jail since she was arrested, and asked if her "incarceration" could count against the usual $75 fine.

Ostler agreed.

★ ★ ★

A total of $505 in fines and six months' probation was ordered for Stewart Duncan Robertson after he was found guilty of five Vancouver charges and two Victoria charges.

Robertson, 28, of no fixed address, was also told to make retribution to the Executive House for obtaining a total of $316.28 worth of food and lodging by fraud.

Other charges included two counts of false pretences under $200, two counts of being unlawfully at large, failing to remain at the scene of a Vancouver accident, a parking meter charge and one count of having no car insurance.

★ ★ ★

James W. Mertins, 22, of California, was fined $75 for possession of marijuana after he was stopped by custom sofficers at a ferry terminal June 23.

★ ★ ★

A $150 fine was ordered for a 17-year-old Nanaimo youth after he admitted having seven tabs of LSD in his possession June 23.

Ostler told Donald Barrett that "all courts categorize that drug as vicious and destructive."

Barrett was given three months to pay.

★ ★ ★

Victor Low, 38, of Chemainus, was fined $300 for shoplifting fishing tackle valued at $16.95 from The Bay, June 23.

W. D. Nivens, 19, of 849 Kindersley, was fined $350 and prohibited from driving for three months after an impaired driving incident Sunday at Wharf and Broughton.

★ ★ ★

Four persons charged with possession of heroin for the purpose of trafficking were committed to a higher court following a preliminary hearing by Judge Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre.

Charged April 16 in Victoria were Allan Dunn, 21, Linda Kimberley Hasser, 19, both of Vancouver and Larry Douglas Hurdle, 21, and Cheryl Anne Greening, 19, both of 1731 Cook.

★ ★ ★

Carson Van Johnson, 22, of 1732 Bay, was put on two years probation after he pleaded guilty to contributing to juvenile delinquency by having intercourse with a 14-year-old girl May 11.

When Sanders Smiles for Camera He Says 'Chicken'

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

The colonel was in Victoria to see the general Monday.

They met at Queen Alexandra Solarium where Colonel Harland Sanders turned over a cheque for $800 to solarium patron Gen. George Pearkes, former lieutenant-governor of British Columbia.

Following the presentation Colonel Sanders paused for interviews and the inevitable press photographs.

When he smiles for the camera he doesn't say "cheese." He says "chicken."

And well he might smile for it has made him a millionaire twice over and given him a comfortable retirement pension of $75,000 per year.

He got the $2 million in 1964 when he sold the American rights to Kentucky Fried Chicken and was granted $75,000 per year to continue to travel and promote his product.

He retained the Canadian chain for himself but at 82 realizes his family would lose most of it to succession duties after he's gone.

So the Canadian chain became the Harland Sanders Foundation and all the colonel's profits now go to charity.

On his current swing through British Columbia, he is distributing more than $15,000 in cheques to charity and will give away about $1 million this year.

He waved a handful of cheques at the press and winced slightly when a reporter remarked that they looked finger lickin' good.

He said there are only three things that interest him in life: charity, travelling and fried chicken.

The colonel looked a little weary but game and said he would chalk up about 250,000 miles during 1973.

While the colonel is working for charity (and his $75,000 per year salary), the franchise holders get to keep the profits beyond the nickel-a-bird royalty.

The colonel lives in Toronto to supervise his Canadian holdings.

Harland Sanders was born in Indiana and was the family cook from age of six after his father died and mother had to work night and day to support three young children.

He moved to Kentucky and tried a variety of jobs with only modest success and considered cooking a fun thing, not a money-maker.

Finally to raise money he tried to sell his chicken recipe to restaurants. After two years of travel he had signed up five cafes.

However, in 1960 it had grown to 200 and in 1963 there were more than 600. In 1964, when he was 73, Harland Sanders sold his franchise and became a millionaire.

Fishermen Near Vote —Stevens

The time is rapidly approaching when union fishermen on British Columbia's west coast will have to take a strike vote, Homer Stevens, president of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union, said today.

Both shoreworkers and tendermen have approved strike action and set July 6 as the deadline.

Stevens said the fishermen, — gillnetters, draggers and trawlers — have voted 82 per cent to set July 6 as the deadline for reaching a new agreement but so far a strike vote hasn't been taken.

"Obviously if the shoreworkers strike it will tie up the industry. But we are rapidly approaching the situation where we will have to take a vote," he said.

The union is to meet company representatives Wednesday and Stevens said there is an indication a new offer will be made.

The union has asked for 52 cents a pound for sockeye this year and 57 cents next year and were earlier offered 46 cents and 48.

For coho, they want 48 and 52 cents a pound this year and next and have been offered 36 and 38. They want 24 and 28¼ for pinks and have been offered 18½ and 19¼ and they are seeking 37 and 40½ for chums and have been offered 20 and 21.

The shoreworkers have been seeking a wage increase of $1 an hour this year and $1 an hour next year, said Stevens. The majority of the workers, those earning less than $3.50 an hour, have been offered 30 cents this year and 25 cents next year while those earning over $3.50 have been offered 40 cents this year and 35 cents next year.

Another issue involving plant workers is equal pay for women. Stevens said women now are being paid 45 cents an hour and more below men.

The shoreworkers are to meet company representatives again this week and tendermen were having a negotiating meeting today.

Meanwhile, the non-union Pacific Trollers Association is planning special general meetings if a strike occurs. PTA manager Merv Ellis said members would be asked if they want to support a strike or consider alternatives.

Academic awards were won by Annette Ullrich, Lori Ngai, Roni Sidhu, Shirley Kum and William Booth, Grade 8; Pauline Vandenberg, Maple Melder, Deborah Pynn, Anne Chu and Darrell Braun, Grade 9; Susanne Ullrich, Carson Leong, Annie Tsang, Helen Lee, Elaine Lett, Philip Chow and Douglas Say, Grade 10.

Producers Urge Gas Price Hike

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Independent Petroleum Association of Canada said Monday that benefits from British Columbia's natural gas resources belong to all B.C. residents and not just the users of the fuel.

In a submission to the B.C. Energy Commission, the association said prices should not be held down for the "fortunate" domestic consumers.

Instead, prices should be allowed to rise, particularly at the wellhead, and the benefit should be passed back to the general public through royalties, the association said.

It suggested a rising scale of royalties from 14 to 23 per cent, related to the field price of gas. The current royalty is 15 per cent.

Field prices are far too low and should be allowed to rise through free market action, the brief said.

TRUCE TEAM'S 75-DAY HELL

BIEN HOA, South Vietnam (CP) — "I've been in tough spots before but it's never been this bad for this long. At times it was hellish."

Capt. Doug Coddington of Ottawa, normally a non-drinker, downed two double whiskies in 10 minutes as he spoke of his 75 days on a truce observer teamsite in the besieged provincial capital of An Loc, 60 miles north of Saigon.

Coddington, 42, and Capt. Michael Dion, 25, also of Ottawa, took up their positions with the International Commission of Control and Supervision in An Loc April 5.

Their commanding officers were unable to relieve them until June 19 because of difficulties in getting Viet Cong clearance to fly over territory which they control around the rubble-strewn capital.

When ICCS helicopters finally were given clearance for the relief flight, they came under ground fire as they flew to An Loc from Bien Hoa, near Saigon, and again as they returned.

"The worst part of it was that we couldn't go anywhere or meet other Canadians," Dion said. "We were cut off from all news."

Coddington, a veteran of the Korean war, said: "We had a brief taste of what the guys (American prisoners of war) in the Hanoi Hilton must have put up with."

Both Coddington and Dion were suffering from vitamin deficiency as a result of not having fresh food. They became visibly drowsy within an hour of returning here and having a drink.

In all their time at An Loc, the two Canadians, along with Polish, Hungarian and Indonesian colleagues, were able to carry out only two investigations of reported ceasefire violations because of intense fighting and restricted movement in the area.

For most of the time they lived in tents, with the temperature hovering around 120 degrees. Thick red dust in the area turned into a sea of mud during the daily monsoon. Rockets and mortar shells once landed 150 yards from their bunks.

107 Asians Sit-In On Plane

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — A group of 107 East African Asians faced criminal trespass charges Monday after being forcibly removed from a crowded jumbo jet where they had staged a 17-hour sit-in demanding to be flown to Britain.

Later, police arrested the manager and managing director of a local travel agency in connection with the sit-in, which took place Sunday at New Delhi's Palam International Airport. They are charged with fraud.

The sources said the agent had instructed the Asians to remain aboard the plane at New Delhi and insist on being flown to London.

The agent had told them that under Indian law they could not be removed from the Pan-American Airways Boeing-747 against their will, the sources said.

'Sausage' Apartment Approved

A land use contract for an apartment recently described as a "sausage" was granted Monday by Saanich council.

Mayor Hugh Curtis and five aldermen were unanimous in approving an application by Racquet Club of Victoria Holdings Ltd. for a land use contract governing development of a 90-suite block at the northwest corner of McKenzie and Gordon Head.

The land and contract will be sold by the club to a developer yet to be selected, said president Gordon Reeson.

At a previous meeting, aldermen made derogatory remarks about the plans submitted for consideration in the land use package, and recommended alterations be made before the matter was placed before a public hearing.

"It looks like a jail," one had said; another thought it was too massive.

At Monday's public hearing 13 people showed up besides spokesmen for the proposal.

Three persons spoke against the proposal, one of them concerned about the increasing density of population in the university area.

Ald. Edith Gunning said: "It seems to me the proposal is now for a very handsome building."

Curtis agreed, noting the council had been "somewhat unhappy with first attempts," and added:

"I would congratulate Mr. Reeson, Mr. (Peter) Crisp and Mr. (David) Warner for the manner in which they paid heed to our earlier comments and attempted to accommodate the wishes of council."

He was referring to Racquet Club vice-president Crisp and to Warner as architect of the scheme.

John McDonald, 1815 Teakwood, said: "It seems irregular" the club is not developing the property itself.

Curtis said the procedure was not uncommon, and whoever developed the site would have to adhere strictly to the land use contract.

McDonald then referred to the service station on the northeast corner of the intersection, which is also in the university development area: "If that's an example of municipal control in land use contracts, then I'm a little skeptical."

Mark Sproule-Jones, 3940 Ansell, a member of UVic political science department, said the area had been subject to "massive increases in density in the past four or five years, and maybe some caution should be exercised."

Crisp, a planner for the city of Victoria, said the university is a special generator of population and the area should sustain a mixture of housing types.

Reeson later said the club had reached an optimum point in its development, that the existing 800-plus members would be allowed to grow only to about 900 and that money realized from sale of the land package would be used to improve existing amenities.

He said there would be more off-street parking and consideration given to such things as roofing the swimming pool.

Edmonton Hits Drug Big-Time

EDMONTON (CP) — City police and RCMP drug squad officers say they can see no end to the staggering increase in heroin use which has made the drug an estimated $10 million to $20 million annual business here at street level.

Police estimates of the number of addicts in Edmonton range from 800 to 2,000 compared with an estimate of only 100 three years ago. In 1971 there were only 34 arrests for opiate possession and trafficking; in the first five months of 1973 there were 83.

"We can't stop it ourselves, society must reverse the trend," is the pessimistic prediction of Insp. A. W. F. LeFeuvre, city police special investigations chief.

The amount of heroin seized is also increasing rapidly. In 1971, police seized 249 capsules. For the first five months of this year, the seizure count stands at 6,189 caps of heroin, close to a full pound. On the street, that is worth almost $250,000.

Insp. Lefeuvre says that with the minimum cost of heroin to an addict at $25 a cap, sometimes ranging as high as $75, addiction is costly in terms of increased crime.

City Hall Picketing Halted

EDMONTON (CP) — An injunction halting picketing of city hall by striking Royal Alexandra hospital workers was issued in Alberta Supreme Court Monday.

An application for an injunction was first made by the city Friday when 75 hospital pickets virtually stopped city hall operations for four hours before being withdrawn. Only a few of the 2,000 municipal workers, members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees Local 51, crossed the lines of CUPE Local 41, the hospital workers.

University Staff Pay Hiked

LETHBRIDGE (CP) — A two-year agreement providing wage increases for non-academic staff has been signed by the University of Lethbridge and the Civil Service Association of Alberta.

The association reported the average increase is 9.5 per cent for this year, 7.5 per cent for 1974.

It said the support staff of the University of Lethbridge achieved parity in this contract with the wage agreement at the University of Calgary plus an extra amount for the second year.

Rail Dissidents Criticized

EDMONTON (CP) — Dissidents within the ranks of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and the Canadian Railway Employees Pension Association have no authority to attack the union's negotiated pension position, the general chairman of the BLE for the CNR's prairie and mountain regions said Monday.

In an interview, Joe Speare of Edmonton, called such dissidents "instant experts with deaf ears" charging them with failing to read literature put out by the unions.

Political Crimes 'Common'

REGINA (CP) — The relationship between crime and politics in North America is "as common as toast for breakfast," an associate professor of political science said Monday.

"It is so common the majority of people in both Canada and the United States expect their politicians to be involved in some shady dealings," said Dan de Vlieger of the University of Saskatchewan in Regina.

The Watergate scandal in the United States is a reminder of this close association, he told the Canadian Congress of Criminology and Corrections.

De Vlieger, however, said such associations do not normally involve "political crime."

"When I talk about crime as a political weapon I mean conscious use of activities defined by the society in which they are utilized as illegal and designed to challenge the existence of the political system."

He said the common belief that political crime is increasing may not be accurate.

"Our awareness of political crime has been increasing but I think it is terribly difficult to gauge its frequency with any degree of rough accuracy."

In comparison with "normal" crimes against the persons or property not associated with the state, the rate of political crime probably is small, de Vlieger said.

"There are probably several murders per week but none of these warrants as much exposure and attention and fear as did the killing of Pierre LaPorte in 1971."

Political crimes are given extraordinary attention by the news media and by the state, he said.

"The state's aim in giving such widespread publicity to challenges against its own authority is to persuade the population it governs that such political crimes are so terrible that the total population should actively support the state against the perpetrators of such crimes."

In a way, these desires for publicity are the same as those of the political criminals, de Vlieger said.

"One of the main reasons why activities called political crimes are engaged in is to emphasize that the coercive power of the state can be challenged and has lost its effectiveness."

Law enforcement agencies normally would prefer to deal more harshly with those who commit political crimes than with those who commit "normal" crimes, he said, because those who commit political crimes challenge the total authority under which law enforcement agencies operate, whereas the "normal" criminal accepts the authority of the state system.

'We Get Worst Eight'

REGINA (CP) — A deputy commissioner of the Canadian penitentiary service complained Monday that although federal prisons get the worst eight of every 100 criminals, the public still demands "a gleaming record of success."

"The fact that we fail at times is almost looked upon as a dereliction of duty, resulting not only in criticism but almost in castigation," said John Braithwaite, deputy commissioner in charge of programs for prisoners.

Braithwaite said "they are failures as citizens and, as a result of their incarceration, they are also failures as criminals."

ECLIPSE WATCHER ROUTED

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Americans preparing to study a solar eclipse encountered witchcraft Monday among spear-carrying tribesmen suspicious that the scientists were about to blank out the sun.

Thousands of amateur eclipse-watchers began travelling north into Kenya's frontier desert. Nairobi rent-a-tent operators said they were booked full, and authorities trucked water and gasoline supplies to remote camp sites.

The longest total eclipse of the sun for the next 177 years will sweep eastward across Africa Saturday in a 9,100-mile path from Brazil to the Indian Ocean. Hundreds of astronomers from a dozen countries will observe the eclipse in northern Kenya and Mauritania, on ships in the Atlantic Ocean and in airplanes flying along the eclipse path. The eclipse will not be visible in North America.

Scientists and Roman Catholic mission priests attempted to calm tribesmen at Loyengalani, an oasis beside Lake Rudolf where about 80 American astronomers have set up equipment on a point of land.

A spokesman said a witch doctor among the warlike Samburu and Turkana had spread the word that the foreigners were going to cause the eclipse, not merely study it.

Primitive Kenyan tribes regard eclipses as omens of drought and disease. The terrifying darkness when the moon passed between the earth and sun nearly 100 years ago is still told in legends as "the day the sun stopped shining."

The spokesman said the unexplained burning of a few Samburu huts added to the tension. One camel-mounted warrior chased off a scientist who tried to snap his picture, the spokesman added.

Tax Money for MP Offices

OTTAWA (CP) — The Trudeau government has decided to use tax money to finance constituency offices for members of Parliament. But it may be late this year before the money is available.

Social Credit MPs have been the most persistent advocates of the idea. Conservatives and New Democrats have appeared lukewarm, publicly at least.

Those who support the plan say it would enable MPs to maintain better contact with their constituents by setting up a permanent office with a full-time secretary. Some editorial writers have seen it as a move to give MPs the effect of a salary increase without calling it such.

Government House Leader Allan MacEachen told the Commons last week the idea has been approved by the commissioners of internal economy, a committee that includes some cabinet ministers with the Commons Speaker as chairman. But he said the money would have to be specially voted as a supplementary estimate. This could delay things until December.

The Conservatives, in particular, have criticized a $20-million budget boost to $80 million in the contingency fund for the current fiscal year. They see it as an opportunity for the government to spend money on its own causes without accounting to Parliament.

The estimated cost of constituency offices for 264 Commons members varies. Some MPs already maintain such offices at their own or party expense. One over-all annual figure is $2,217,600, based on an average of $6,000 for a secretary and $200 a month or $2,400 a year for office rent.

Convicts Release Four Hostages

EDDYVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Three Kentucky state penitentiary convicts released four hostages unharmed Monday after holding them for 18 hours in the canteen of the prison.

The three surrendered and turned in two long knives and a soldering tool they had used to hold a prison guard, a civilian employee and two fellow prisoners.

N.B. Byelection Recount Looms

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — Progressive Conservatives are not expected to make a decision until next week on an application for a recount following a slim Liberal victory Monday in a New Brunswick provincial byelection here.

Liberal John Turnbull, 37-year-old lawyer, captured Saint John Centre from Premier Richard Hatfield's Conservative government by defeating Dr. George Bate, 49-year-old Conservative candidate, by a margin of less than 100 votes.

J. B. Cronin, Saint John Centre returning officer, said today he considered a decision on a recount application unlikely until next week.

He said he will tabulate his official vote totals July 3, and either party will then have 96 hours to make application for a recount.

About 14,000 voters turned out at the polls Monday, about 40 per cent of those eligible to cast ballots.

TROUBLESOME TURBO UNTRACKED AGAIN

TORONTO (CP) — Only four days after Canadian National Railways' Montreal-Toronto Turbo train returned to regular service, CN announced Monday that scheduled Turbo trips today and Wednesday have been cancelled.

Two of CN's three trouble-plagued trains suffered serious breakdowns during the weekend and have been towed into Montreal shops for repairs.

CN has replaced the scheduled Turbo trips with conventional trains which take about 90 minutes longer.

The Turbos, scheduled to make the 400-mile trip in four hours, 10 minutes, are owned by United Aircraft and leased to CN, which has the option to buy them after three years of operation.

Friday, the Turbo from Montreal experienced a failure in its air conditioning and lighting system that delayed the trip 56 minutes.

Saturday, 315 passengers had to be transferred to a regular train after the Turbo came to a halt shortly after leaving Montreal.

Then, on Sunday, the Turbo from Toronto reached Cornwall before breaking down and forcing more than 300 passengers to transfer to a special backup train which got them to Montreal one hour and 10 minutes late.

N.Y. Youths Kill Girl, 9, Boy, 3

NEW YORK (Reuter) — A nine-year-old girl was raped and thrown 20 storeys to her death by two 13-year-old boys and a three-year-old boy was garrotted and thrown into a water tank by a 14-year-old boy in separate incidents in city housing projects Monday night, police reported.

Police said the two 13-year-olds assaulted the young girl sexually on the roof of a housing project in the South Bronx, then threw her down into a courtyard. Police said the boys then went to the police to report they had found the girl's body.

After questioning, police said, they admitted the crime.

Earlier, in the Canarsie section of Brooklyn, the 14-year-old boy, who had run away from a juvenile detention home, allegedly garrotted the three-year-old boy with an electric cord.

Police said he then threw the child's body into a four-foot-deep water tank in the basement of the apartment building.

According to police, the boy said he killed the younger child because of a remark he regarded as an affront. When the child's nine-year-old brother went looking for him, the older boy led him to his brother's body, police said.

The 14-year-old and two 13-year-olds were charged with homicide.

2½ Million Income Tax Returns to Go

OTTAWA (CP) — The revenue department has 2,529,562 income tax returns still to process, a department spokesman said Monday.

Two weeks ago Revenue Minster Robert Stanbury said "even the problem returns" would be sent out within two weeks.

The department, said the spokesman, processed 7,868,155 of 10,397,717 tax returns received as of June 21. He said 6,202,793 refunds totalling $959,875,606 had been sent to taxpayers by that date.

An official in Stanbury's office said Monday most returns will be handled by the end of the month.

$14B CUTBACK NO DANGER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Several former high-level U.S. national security officials have told Congress that President Nixon's fiscal 1974 defence budget request could be trimmed by as much as $14 billion without endangering U.S. security.

The group, headed by former assistant defence secretary Paul Warnke, made its recommendations in a report to Congress titled "Military policy and budget priorities."

"With the end of our Vietnam involvement and the negotiation of the Moscow arms agreements, we were entitled to expect a major reduction in the military budget for fiscal 1974 similar to massive reductions achieved upon termination of World War and the Korean War," the group said,

"Even a conservative analysis shows that some $14 billion can be saved from the Nixon proposal while fully preserving our national security and starting a return to a peacetime national budget."

Nixon has asked Congress for $98.1 billion for national defence, including $80.5 billion for the defence department.

The $14 billion in specific cuts recommended by the group included:

—$3.1 billion for southeast Asia operations.

—$4 billion for general purpose forces and weapons systems.

—$3.3 billion in manpower efficiency programs.

—$3 billion in strategic forces programs, including cuts in the Trident and Minuteman missile, the B-1 bomber and the ABM system.

—$600,000 in foreign military assistance.

"We must call a halt to the administration's seemingly incurable preference for extravagantly expensive, overly complicated weapons systems and for unjustifiably high force levels, sustained more by tradition than need," the report said.

Besides Warnke, the group included William Foster, former director of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency; Roswell Gilpatric, former deputy secretary of defence; Herbert Scoville, former deputy director of the Central Intelligence Agency; Townsend Hoopes, former undersecretary of the air force, and George Kistiakowsky, science adviser to President Eisenhower.

Where Have All the Graduates Gone?

By JEFF GARRUTHERS
Special to the Times

OTTAWA — Where have all the university graduates gone?

Do some provinces suffer more from "the brain drain" than Canada as a whole?

And should Canada import scientists and professors?

The federal science ministry and Statistics Canada are combining forces this fall to find some of the answers to these and other questions that are vital to a country so dependent on technology and brainpower.

The agencies are launching a $1.5-million survey of Canada's university graduates, to determine what they were trained in and what they are now doing with that costly government-subsidized education.

"Nothing quite like this, connecting education to jobs, has ever been done in Canada," says A. S. Bandzierz, a science adviser to the science minister and one of the men in Ottawa organizing the unique survey.

About 150,000 of the country's estimated 500,000 university graduates will receive a detailed six-page and 10-question survey in the mail.

Called the "highly qualified manpower survey," it will ask for the individual's level and specialty in university training. More important, it will also ask for the individual's present employment.

This latter information will give important clues to such things as how many female university graduates are presently not using their education directly as housewives; or how many physicists are teaching high school instead of doing research at a university as they had perhaps hoped.

The federal survey is a first step in a larger federal effort to determine better the supply of Canada's experts in various fields and should provide a basis for future forecasting of the country's requirements and supply in various fields.

The aim of the survey is to provide Ottawa and the provinces with valuable information about an important and rapidly-growing segment of the labor market. This information could then be used for trying to improve regional and national production, use and distribution of university graduates.

Federal officials in charge of the survey argue that the country's highly-qualified manpower — its university graduates — make a proportionally larger contribution to the gross national product than other segments of the labor force. They therefore represent a relatively more valuable economic resource.

In the past, manpower surveys and employment surveys have tended to focus on other elements of the labor force and have not focused on the educational component of the labor force.

Just as important imbalances in the highly-qualified manpower segment of the labor force are costly, are capable of becoming serious quickly and have more serious effects, and tend to be more difficult to rectify. For one, it takes a lot longer to produce a university graduate than a laborer.

Another problem is that university graduates tend to be highly mobile. Probably one-third change jobs regularly. Often, they move from one province to another, if not from one country to another.

Many provinces pay the costs of educating such individuals, only to see them move to Ontario, for example, to put their talents to work.

This mobility, and its related problems, makes development and regulation of supply of university graduates more of a federal problem.

First results of the survey should be available from Statistics Canada's computers next spring. The results will be made available immediately to the provinces, who have been consulted on the project and who have expressed interest, according to federal officials.

There are plans to update the survey in future years. And eventually community college graduates will be included.

A $500,000 pilot study has already been conducted, with a high response from the 8,000 surveyed.

Vancouver Man Killed Up-Island

A Vancouver man was killed Saturday when his convertible crashed into a rock bluff on Highway 19, 14 miles south of Kelsey Bay.

RCMP said Michael Gould died of head injuries shortly after 2 p.m. His daughter, Jane Foster, 25, also of Vancouver, was treated for minor injuries at Campbell River General Hospital.

The two were travelling toward Kelsey Bay when the car went off the road, said the police. An inquest has been ordered.

Tiny Welsh Schools Pay Off in Quality

By FRANK JONES

TREFEURIG, Wales — Some of the 20 children attending the old stone village schoolhouse here walk across the mountain top from remote farm homes, and the school itself is so isolated hours can go by and no sound outside louder than a bee.

Yet the school principal, Mrs. Valma Jones, is confident that four of the eight children in her senior class will eventually go to university.

That's nothing unusual for the lonely villages lost in the valleys of this western Wales county of Cardiganshire.

Entire Eglwysfach school sits on village wall

Higher Education

On the average, only 22 per cent of the children who leave British schools go on to university or some other form of higher education. But for years tiny, remote Cardiganshire has topped the charts in Britain, and last year 48 per cent of its school leavers went on to university, teachers' colleges or the equivalent of Canadian community colleges.

Local education officials put it down to three factors: A strong cultural heritage with almost as many harps as television sets in those Welsh living rooms; a dearth of local jobs, which encourages youngsters to stay on at school; and, perhaps most important, an active policy of preserving the little village schools.

A British education commission said five years ago that any school with less than 50 children was uneconomic. Since then, Britain, like many other parts of the world, has been busy closing its small schools and busing country children to central schools.

Urban Benefits

Cardiganshire, partly through intention and partly, some think, through sloth, kept its small schools. Today 59 of its 93 public schools have fewer than 50 children.

Instead of putting its money into building larger central schools and buying buses, the county pays some of the highest teacher salaries in Britain and tries to provide its country teachers with all the benefits of urban schools.

The result, in many cases, is the kind of schooling only the richest parents can afford by sending their children to private schools.

Mrs. Jones has another teacher working with her, which gives the school a teacher-pupil ratio of one to 10. The handsome stone building was built when there were many more children in the area, so while city parents in Britain are screaming about deteriorating space standards in schools, the Trefeurig children have space to spare.

In addition, the county education department provides specialist music, drama and physical educaton teachers who visit the village schools regularly.

Hard to Define

Unlike country children in many parts of Britain, the Trefeurig children face no long journeys at the beginning and end of the day.

Charles Suff, principal of the high school at Aberystwyth, says children who come from the tiny country schools "have a certain quality that's hard to define. They lack the sophistication of the town children, but if they reach a certain standard they are far more profound. If we lost those schools we would lose a lot of quality."

Every little village in Cardiganshire can point to far more than its fair share of doctors, lawyers, and most of all teachers, who have emerged from the little stone schoolhouses.

"Nearly all of them have to go away, usually to England, to get jobs," said Mrs. Jones. "We've been skimming the intellectual cream off these little villages for generations, and yet there always seems to be more cream there."

The results are all the more surprising because not only do the village teachers have to teach children of various ages and abilities, they also teach in two languages, Welsh and English.

Sitting at Mrs. Jones' table for school lunch this week was Mark, six, whose English parents moved to the village last September.

"I like talking in Welsh better than English," said Mark, who couldn't speak a word of Welsh when he arrived. "I'm teaching my mother and father Welsh now."

The easy mixing of different age groups and abilities also has surprising results. At the village school in Eglwysfach, which has only 15 pupils, doll-like, 4-year-old Jennifer (they all call her Titch), was beating children one or two years older at reading words off the flashcards teacher Hazel Jones held up.

Single Teacher

Children in Cardiganshire start school as soon as they pass their fourth birthday. "Jennifer used to play a lot when she first came here at Christmas," said Miss Jones. "But she saw the others working and she wanted to do that too, so I didn't stop her."

Miss Jones, 39, is the only teacher at the school, and finds it a lonely job. "The ideal would be to work in a school with three or four teachers," she says.

But she doesn't mope: She drives four of the children to and from school, gives music lessons in the school in the evenings, and has started a youth club. The school is also used for a number of community activities by the 200 people in the village.

"Most of the people here feel that once the school closed the village would be dead," said Miss Jones.

Trefeurig school almost did close three years ago when the number of pupils dropped to 15. "It's hard to decide when a school becomes just too small to operate," says the county education officer, William Phillips.

Bitter Battle

Luckily for the clutch of hamlets that the school serves the local councillor chose the worst possible time to announce the closure—right at the end of a school Christmas concert to a hall packed with proud parents and friends who had just heard singing that you don't hear outside the Welsh valleys.

There were shouts of "No, no." But the decision had already been taken, and Mrs. Jones was assigned elsewhere. It was only after a bitter battle by parents that the education authority kept the school open on a temporary basis, even though it is officially closed to this day.

Now the school population seems to be climbing again, and there is no talk at present of closing it.

And then small schools have other advantages. At Eglwysfach the children were very taken with my Canadian car at recess.

"Give us a ride," said one of the boys, so I did. It's not often you can take a whole school for a ride in one car.

CHARGES DROPPED

CAERNARVON, Wales (CP) — Magistrates freed nine members of the Welsh Language Society charged with criminal damage and then rose to sing the Welsh national anthem with the accused. The charges involved the sabotaging of an English-language television transmitter, and the trial was conducted entirely in Welsh.

Food Study Released

By WAYNE HARDING
Times Staff

Sometimes the lethargy of complaining consumers annoys Peter Arcus.

A professor of agricultural economics at the University of B.C., Arcus is one of the authors of The Cost of Food, a new study of merchandising in British Columbia prepared as a guide for consumers.

Arcus was also one of five instructors in a course for consumers on food costs conducted last year by UBC's Centre for Continuing Education.

"We perceived that there was a need for this sort of information, that people genuinely wanted to know why prices are what they are, and the success of the course and the success of the book indicate we correctly recognized this," Arcus said in an interview.

His experience in consumer education suggests that the lack of consumer knowledge exists not only because the facts are not made available to consumers but also because people don't bother to seek the facts.

"Consumers want to get information abouts the products they buy and about the reasons behind the costs," Arcus said. "But often this information stops at the retail level. That's partly because of corporate images, I suppose. But it's also, in many cases, partly because people just don't take the time to find out."

He said he can "understand the difficulties when people are prevented from getting information. But sometimes the lethargy of complainants in finding out what they're complaining about really bothers me."

He said it would be difficult to say whether or not the modern consumer is better able to defend himself in the marketplace. "That brings up the question of the whole educational system. Certainly we can always do better."

Consumer organizations have done much to raise the interest of the public in consumer education.

But "at the present time, I don't think they have the resources to do much (research) in the way it should be done. Certainly they want to."

The Cost of Food, which Arcus wrote with fellow professor Roslyn Kunin, has been on sale for the past two weeks and sales are "excellent," he said.

Merchandisers, as well as consumers, seem interested in the "real facts" about food costs being known, Arcus has found.

"They have responded with pleasure, I would say. They often have a difficult time putting across to the public the facts and often the facts are that they are faced with costs over which they have no control," says Arcus.

The book, which is based on the Centre for Continuing Education's course and published by the university, traces the movement of merchandise from the producer to the consumer. It outlines, concisely, the role of farmer, processor, wholesaler and retailers as the price of a product gradually snowballs towards the tag on the counter shelf.

Martha's Road Narrows

WASHINGTON (AP) — Martha Mitchell, once the darling of the Nixon administration, now travels a lonely, bitter road.

"Give 'em hell, Martha," Nixon said as she attacked his critics in the days when her husband was the attorney-general.

But now she has said that the president should resign over Watergate . . . that he was surrounded by liars . . . that her husband John is protecting him.
tecting him.

Mrs. Mitchell was last seen Thursday, apparently heading out of New York to escape reporters. It was different a few years ago.

Her gabbiness grabbed headline after headline. She spoke of anti-war demonstrators as "liberal Communists" and phoned the Arkansas Gazette and asked them to "crucify" Senator William Fulbright.

'FUN AND GAMES'

"Good fun and games," her husband later described it. Nixon was delighted, and Mrs. Mitchell returned the affection.

That mood changed a few months later, after the Watergate raiders were caught inside Democratic headquarters.

Mrs. Mitchell threatened publicly to leave her husband unless he quit as Nixon's campaign chairman. Without being specific, she spoke darkly of dirty doings.

Mitchell quit shortly after that. Now he is accused in sworn testimony of helping plan and cover up the wiretapping, which he denies. He has pleaded not guilty to charges of conspiracy, perjury and obstruction of justice in a somewhat-related case.

Mrs. Mitchell briefly dropped from sight after the Watergate raid and 10 days later told reporters she was a political prisoner and "they don't want me to talk."

The fun and games are over. The blame for Watergate belongs "right on the White House," she said in an interview.

Sauce Heightens Flavorful Ribs

By MARY MOORE

"The nearer the bone the sweeter the meat" is an old saying that is true.

Maureen made this dish of Barbecued Braising Ribs and said it served four generously plus the serving she brought to me for test-tasting.

OVEN BARBECUED BRAISING RIBS
(serves 4 or 5)

2 lbs. braising ribs cut into two-inch pieces (between the ribs)
3 tbsp. oil
¼ c. corn syrup
1 clove garlic minced or ½ tsp. bottled minced garlic or powder

Barbecue Sauce

¼ c. vinegar
1 c. catsup
1 c. water
1 tbsp. Worcestershire sauce
½ c. brown sugar
½ c. finely chopped onion
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
1 tbsp. butter
dash of Tabasco sauce

To make Barbecue Sauce combine all sauce ingredients in a small pot. Simmer over low heat 15 minutes. Remove from heat and set aside.

In large frying pan heat oil. Brown ribs on both sides. Remove ribs to large casserole and using pastry brush or new narrow paint brush, brush both sides of ribs with corn syrup. Sprinkle ribs with minced garlic then pour over barbecue sauce evenly. Cover and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 1½ to 2 hours or until tender. Serve over Beef Flavored Rice: In a large pot saute ½ cup finely chopped celery, ¼ cup finely chopped onion, ¼ cup finely chopped green pepper in 3 tablespoons oil until limp but not browned. To vegetables add 3½ cups water, 3 tablespoons beef bouillion cordial and 1 teaspoon salt and bring to a boil, Add 1½ cups raw long grain rice, stir to blend, reduce heat to simmer and cook, covered, 25 minutes or until all water is absorbed.

Spoon remaining sauce over all.

Chronic Lung Ailments Cause Most Sick Days

CALGARY (CP) — Chronic lung conditions cause more missed working days than any other physical ailments, says Dr. J. J. Laurier, executive director of the Canadian Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association.

Diseased lungs, such as from chronic bronchitis and emphysema — the two "smokers' diseases" — cannot cope with even simple colds and these cause more days off work than anything else, he said in an interview.

His association, which meets from Monday through to Wednesday, is the major voluntary association in the fight against lung diseases.

"Most people think of us as a tuberculosis organization," he said.

The organization is associated with the Christmas Seal campaigns, but these raise money to fight both TB and respiratory diseases, he said. The organization was first set up 73 years ago to fight TB.

Tuberculosis is not the major disease that it was, Laurier said. So the association is paying more attention to all lung diseases.

However, it stopped short Sunday at a change of name to the Canadian Lung Association. Laurier said the executive council debated the change but it was defeated.

"People were just not prepared for it," he said.

During council sessions Sunday, the annual problem of budgets also was discussed, Laurier said.

The council had to reduce a request for funds from an international tuberculosis research unit that it has supported in the past, he said. The Canadian association had been asked for $12,000 this year, up from $10,000, he said.

DEAR ABBY: After my mother died 15 years ago, my oldest sister got all the family pictures. Among them was my mother's wedding picture which was in a beautiful antique frame. I always loved that picture.

Six months ago my sister died and left everything to her daughter. I asked this daughter for my mother's wedding picture and she refused to give it up. Abby, this girl hardly knew my mother. (I think she just wanted to keep it because of the frame.)

She offered to have a duplicate made for me, but I want the original.

Who do you think the picture rightfully belongs to? And how should I get it? Family Fight.

DEAR FIGHT: Since the daughter inherited all of her mother's possessions, and the picture was among them, it belongs to her. Quit fighting, and ask that the duplicate be made by an expert. It could be every bit as good (or better) than the original.

DEAR ABBY: During history test, my friend, who sits across from me, said, "Gee, this is hard."

I replied, "I know."

Just then the teacher came up the aisle and accused us of cheating. Then he said, "I am going to add your two scores together and divide by two."

When we got our papers back, I had only one wrong and my friend had three wrong, but instead of getting 90 like I deserved and my friend getting 70 like he deserved, we both got 80. I don't think this is fair. Should I go to the counsellor? —Mad.

DEAR MAD: If you feel falsely accused and don't want it on your record, appeal the charge to a higher authority. You have "rights," too.

DEAR ABBY: What would you say about a guy who is so egotistical he flies the flag on his birthday? He was in the Second World War and all he ever did for his country was get a dishonorable discharge.

Isn't there a law against flying the flag whenever you feel like it? And if so, what is the penalty, and where do I turn this conceited bum in?

Nothing would give me more peasure. Thank you. — Galveston

DEAR GALVESTON: You'd better find another way to punish the guy. There is no law against flying the flag anytime or all the time.

DEAR ABBY: Re the letter from the housewife who said her husband got all kinds of offers from willing women to have coffee and "something" while making a delivery: I've been installing phones for five years, and the most I've ever been offered was a cup of coffee and a piece of cake.

I hope all wives whose husbands make deliveries and service calls don't think their husbands are fooling around. They aren't. Believe me, I know. — Nothing On The Side

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Forecast for Wednesday, June 27
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Accent on visits, relatives, short trips, calls and messages. You are active as special relationship is put to test. Don't scatter efforts. Finish what you start. Libra individual is in picture. Develop ideas into working concepts.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Money picture is bright if you strive for greater originality. Present ideas, products in new way. Lead rather than follow; take initiative. Leo, Aquarius persons play prominent roles. Give full play to creative abilities.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Lunar cycle is such that your judgment, intuition are on target. Rely on sense of timing. Emphasize personality and personal appearances. Emerge from shell. See and be seen. Member of opposite sex pays valid compliment.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Clandestine meeting could be featured. This takes form of social liaison. Don't risk reputation on mere promise. Get something in writing. Sagittarius, Gemini persons could play important roles. Look behind the scenes.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Accent is on friendship which could blossom into romance. You tear down many concepts and replace them with fresh attitudes. New hope for happiness is on horizon. Refuse to be painted into emotional corner.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Emphasis is on advancement, special civic project. Make room for added assignment. Combine work and play. Leo, Aquarius and Scorpio persons are in picture. You could travel in connection with quest for more information.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Good lunar aspect now coincides with valid philosophical concepts. Your message gets across as you find unique means of distribution. Obtain hint from Virgo message. Write and read. Correspond with key people.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Mystery seems order of day for you. There is layer upon layer to penetrate. Money and partnership, investment and advice, special agreement and partnership — these comprise part of those layers. Pisces and Virgo are involved.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Accent is on legalities. There is pressure. Key is to withhold judgment. Don't be stampeded into specific course of action. Capricorn can offer good money advice. Be receptive. You gain most now by listening, reading, being patient.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Co-operate with Sagittarian. Finish. Find ways of reaching more persons. Aid those who confide problems. However, refuse to be used by one who is cynical. Your work and health are emphasized. Avoid extremes.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Good lunar aspect now coincides with children, romance, change, vacation, relief from everyday routine. You draw compliments from opposite sex. Personal magnetism soars. You get what you want — even if it's not good for you.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Home front dominates. Your sensitivity serves as asset or deficit, depending upon degree of maturity. Deal with family member in grown-up manner but without laying down arbitrary rules. You will understand.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you help people in trouble. You solve dilemmas. But you are not always as skillful when it comes to aiding yourself. September should be your most significant month of 1973. You draw to you many persons born under Aries and Libra. When overwrought, you suffer severe eyestrain, headache. Recent changes were beneficial.

If you have visited Italy or have eaten in an Italian restaurant, you know that Italian cuisine makes use of a large variety of flour products, such as spaghetti, macaroni and so on.

A beautifully illustrated 16-page booklet features two dozen exciting Italian recipe ideas, all using flour products as an ingredient. Many of these dishes will grab your fancy.

You know, of course, how easy it is to cook noodles. The booklet suggests you use them for an easy to fix Savory Cheese Pie or a delectable Spinach Noodle Casserole! Or, if your family does not care for vegetarian dishes, you may want to surprise them with Lasagne Florentine which, in addition to the traditional cheeses, also calls for minced meat.

Another interesting recipe is the Italian version of a Beef Stew. Despite its lip-smacking goodness, it needs little preparation.

And, according to this booklet, to fully appreciate a good pasta dish, such as spaghetti, ravioli or any of the other varieties, a good dry red wine is as important as a good sauce.

SUDDEN SHOWER

MONTREAL (CP) — A Montreal bus driver was hard put to keep his mind on the job when passengers on the regular express run between downtown Montreal and the suburban Ville d' Ahjou decided to throw a shower for a female passenger who was getting married. Passengers invaded the bus just before it was ready to leave, decorated the inside with bells and streamers, piled up gifts and gave a big welcome to the lucky lady as she stepped aboard for the trip home.

PLANTING ALONG EDGES of the random width steps softens the masonry and relates both the house and the steps to the contour of the site. Low plants are by the steps, small trees and bushes by the house.

Stairs That Float

By PAULINE GRAVES

Many times you can give a flair to your house, be it the exterior or interior, if you try a new approach rather than following conventional concepts. To reach a house from the street you need a walk. Instead of the usual straight concrete ribbon, vary its path and change the materials. Steps to reach a house that is elevated above street level can be dealt with imaginatively, too.

Here is a sumptuous house that demonstrates handsome design for architectural necessities, a walk and a short flight of steps. In fact, the steps have taken over both functions. However, the idea can be used on a scale for smaller homes, too. A series of shallow platforms comprise the steps, and they start at the city sidewalk, continuing to the house entrance. Each platform is a different size, ranging from two-feet deep by four feet wide, to three feet deep and ten feet wide, and their irregular placement has great design interest. Also, while some are of smooth concrete, others contrast with textured, exposed aggregate surfaces.

Two things the platforms have in common. One is that they have a 'floating" look. In other words, the risers, or supports, are tucked back of the front edges and cannot be seen. This makes for a "light" appearance and belies the heaviness of the masonry materials used.

The other is that they share a three-inch thickness as well as a three-inch riser, so that the step heights are uniform. This is a matter of safety. Were the steps of varying heights, it would be easy to trip.

Pupils Learn in Hospital

PORT ALBERNI (CP) — Children in hospital at the West Coast General in this central Vancouver Island community do not have to worry about boredom.

Nor do they have to worry about catching up on their work when they return to school.

The school board of District 70 has taken care of both those problems by finding a teacher to kill the nothing-to-do blues with projects which also keep the youngsters up with their classes.

Myrna McFadden, who also gives free home instruction, has the job.

When Projects Vanish Vacation Blues Arrive

During the past two months, our son thoroughly planned what he intended to do when school was out. He decided to build a tree fort, make a lemonade stand, construct a go-kart out of an old lawnmower, paint his bicycle purple, and look at pond water under his microscope.

Unfortunately, he completed all those projects by 11 on the first morning of summer vacation and appears doomed to spend the next two and a half months lying flat on his back in the middle of the dining room floor, staring at the crack on the ceiling, and whining "There's nothing to DO!"

After the first three days, he was definitely beginning to get on my nerves. Every time I sat down to have a cup of coffee I would catch him gazing at the space between my eyes and humming.

"I wish that I could earn money somehow," he mused. I was sorely tempted to reply "I'll give you a dollar to get the heck out of the house."

"Why don't you play baseball, ride your bike, or lie on the driveway and count ants?" I suggested.

"Are you kidding? It must be two thousand degrees out there!" Summer, I have discovered, is the time of year when it's too hot to do all the things that it was too cold to do last winter.

"Mumbletypeg!"

"I beg your pardon?"

"Mumbletypeg. Go play mumbletypeg."

"What's that?"

"It's a game boys play when they're bored. You take a jackknife . . ."

"I'm too little for jackknives," he interrupted reproachfully. "You don't want to have to take me to the emergency ward, do you?" I certainly didn't. I'd already had to take him with me when I went grocery shopping, to the beauty shop and to my Great Books discussion group.

I think that I have finally solved the problem by giving him a pad of paper and a pencil. For the next two months he's going to be busy planning. Planning what he's going to do as soon as school starts.

8 CARD OF THANKS

Our grateful and sincere thanks to all our friends and relatives for their words of sympathy and acts of kindness in the loss of our beloved son and brother Gregory Dorian — To Dr. Welsh and Dr. Forth of Sidney and Victoria; Dr. Munro, Vancouver General Hospital and the nursing staff Royal Jubilee Hospital; to the Headmaster, teachers and boys of Grade 6-2, St. Michael's University School; and Esquimalt Legion No. 172 Junior Pipe Band. Our special thanks to Reverend Robert A. Sansom for his words of sympathy, courage and support, and to the choir of St. Andrew's Anglican Church — Maddle, Maura and Maurice Slegg.

I wish to express my sincere thanks to our friends and neighbours for their kindness and sympathy on the death of my dear wife, Mrs. Isabel Rank. Special thanks to the Nursing Staff 3rd floor at Gorge Extended Care., Dr. J. E. Peterson, Reverend Calder and the First Memorial Service.
—Tom Rank.

9 IN MEMORIAM

FLETCHER — In loving memory of Patrick (Paddy) Fletcher, who left us June 26, 1972.
What we would give if we could say,
Hello, Dad, in the same old way,
To hear your voice, see your smile,
To sit with you and chat awhile.
So you who have a father, cherish him with care,
For you'll never know the heartache,
'Til you see his vacant chair.
—Sadly missed by his daughter Patricia, Mitchell Hodge and his grandchildren of Prince George, B.C.

STEWART — In loving memory of our Dear Mother and Nana, Anne Stewart who passed away June 26, 1971.
Loving and kind in all her ways,
Upright and just, to the end of her days;
Sincere and true, in her heart and mind,
Beautiful memories, she left behind.
—Always remembered, Brian, Joan, Lori, Darin.

STEWART — In memory of our dear parents, Mother Annie, passed away June 26, 1971; and father Gordon Smith, passed away May 7, 1969.
"Loving memories keep them near."
—Sadly missed by Norma and Ray, and Gordie, Randy, Glen, Michelle Creed.

Tuesday Movies and Specials

Movies

Hitched (xx), on 2 and 6 at 8. Sally Field and Tim Matheson play young marrieds accidentally separated and bound for misadventure in the Old West in this lighthearted comedy-western — an unsold TV pilot.

Baffled (xxx), on 5 at 8. ESP and the occult forms the plot for this 1972 TV drama about a race driver who sees visions of people in trouble starring Leonard Nemoy, Susan Hampshire and Vera Miles.

The Lion (xx), on 11 at 8. In Africa a young girl becomes the centre of a custody dispute in this 1962 English-made drama that stars Willian Holden, Trevor Howard, Capucine and Pamela Franklin.

Battle Hell (xxx), on 13 at 8. A well-made 1957 English semi-documentary about the HMS Amethyst trapped in the Yangtse River in 1949 by the Red Chinese. An excellent cast includes Richard Todd and Akim Tamiroff.

Divorce His - Divorce Hers (xx), on 4 at 8:30. (Part 1). Richard Burton and Elizabeth Taylor play a sophisticated couple plagued by separate interests and mutual indifference in this 1973 made-for-TV drama filmed on location in Munich and Rome. (Part 2 will be shown tomorrow evening, same time and channel.)

The Appointment (xx), on 7 and 12 at 11:30. On-location filming in Rome highlights this 1969 romantic tale starring Omar Sharif and Anouk Aimee.

Red Lanterns, 2 at 11:50. No rating available on this 1963 Greek-made drama about life in a brothel in Piraeus.

The War Lord (xxx), on 6 and 8 at midnight. Well-made and colorful tale of adventure and romance in 11th-century Normandy highlighted by good performances from Charlton Heston, Rosemary Forsythe and Richard Boone —filmed in 1965.

The Goddess (xxx), on 13 at midnight. A superb performance by Kim Stanley highlights this excellent 1958 drama about an actress's rise from poverty to stardom. Paddy Chayefsky (Marty) wrote the screenplay and the supporting cast includes Lloyd Bridges and Steven Hill. Worth staying up for!

10. Highlights of Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip's two-day visit to Toronto. (30 mins.)

Early Wednesday Movies

My Darling Clementine (xxx), on 4 at 9:30. John Ford directed this excellent 1946 western about Wyatt Earp and the doings in Tombstone, Arizona, starring Henry Fonda, Linda Darnell and Victor Mature.

Women's Prisons, on 13 at 10:45. No rating available on this French-made 1938 story on the effects of prison life on women.

Bonjour Tristesse (xx), on 13 at 12:15. A lavishly produced 1958 romantic drama based on Francoise Sagan's best-selling first novel about a young girl who hero worships her father and resents his mistress. A good cast includes David Niven, Deborah Kerr and Jean Seberg.

Living It Up (xx), on 6 and 8 at 12:45. Dean Martin, Jerry Lewis and Janet Leigh star in this 1954 comedy about a railroad attendant whose sinus trouble is mistaken for radiation.

The Prince and the Showgirl (xxx), on 5 at 3:30. Laurence Olivier and Marilyn Monroe star in this English-made 1957 film adaptation of the Terrance Rattigan play about the romantic affair between a nobleman and an American showgirl.

Now You See It, Now You Don't (xx), on 7 at 3:30. An inept 1968 Made-for-TV comedy about an art appraiser who plots to steal a Rembrandt starring Jonathan Winters, Steve Allen and Jayne Meadows.

Specials

Billy Graham Crusade, on 7 at 7 and 12 at 9:30. The evangelist answers the question, "Why So Much Love in the Bible?", in tonight's program from California. (60 mins.)

Army-McCarthy Hearings, on 9 at 7. A look at another Senate investigation — the 1954 army-McCarthy hearings. (60 mins.)

International Performance, on 9 at 9. Phedre, a tragic ballet adapted from the Greek legend. Slow-motion photography accents the stylized quality of the work starring Claire Motte in the title role. (60 mins.)

NBC Reports, on 5 at 10. American Communism Today is the topic of this special report that looks at Communist activities, part underground, part public, in New York, Chicago and several other major U.S. cities. (60 mins.)

Royal Visit, on 2 and 6 at 10. Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip's visit to Toronto. (30 mins.)

CBC-TV SUMMER MOVIES — Sally Field and Tim Matheson star in the western comedy Hitched on CBC-TV's Summer Movies tonight at 8 p.m. on Channel 2 and 6.

COUTURE PATTERN

By LOIS HOLMES

In the crocheted fashion portrayed today, full-blown dahlias appear outlined in subtle squares that are joined together as you work.

A summer masterpiece with a new square neckline quickly emerges from easy beginner stitches. Mitered corners give the edge that extra couturier touch.

Directions are also given for an exciting sleeveless tunic in the same matching squares as well as a baby coverlet and beautiful bedspread.

Any four-ply knitting worsted or synthetic can be used and sizes small, medium and large are all given for each garment.

To order CR 807 dahlia square jacket and tunic, send $1.50 in U.S. funds plus 15 cents for mailing for the pattern (25 cents for air mail) in currency, cheque or money order to Lois Holmes of California, Victoria Times, Box 1005, Gardena, Calif., 90249. Please print your name, address and pattern number plainly.

U.S. Gas Price Rollback Ordered

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Cost of Living Council said Monday that more than 1,100 service stations had been charging two cents a gallon more for gasoline last week than they were permitted to under the president's price freeze.

All of the stations agreed to roll back their prices, after visits by Internal Revenue Service agents.

According to James McLane, director of the freeze group at the Cost of Living Council, 365 of the stations were owned by major companies and 741 were independently owned.

In Seattle, some food processors in the U.S. northwest said they are caught in a price freeze — prohibited from raising their rates while shelling out more and more money for raw agricultural products not affected by the federal controls.

It's too early to determine whether the cutbacks will lead to food shortages, according to most food market spokesmen. However, a spokesman for the Oregon division of Albertson's food centres said a shortage could develop this summer if prices continue to go up on raw products.

Meanwhile on a national level, Earl Butz, United States secretary of agriculture, has predicted shortages of meat and poultry in the United States, but other economic officials say the possibility of food rationing is "extremely unlikely."

Butz told the Senate banking committee Monday that President Nixon needs standby authority to reduce agriculture exports to solve the shortage problem.

He said the squeeze between high feed prices and the freeze on prices of food at the consumer level is hurting poultry raisers, forcing hog producers to sell off breeding stock, and causing cattlemen to keep beef off the market.

Train Theft Unconscious

SANFORD, England (CP) — A 25-year-old mother of four was charged with theft after she climbed into the locomotive of a 28-car freight train and drove it 30 miles until railway switchmen derailed it. Mary Pipkin was found slumped over the controls and, when she woke up, told police that she didn't remember anything of the incident.

Saanich Trims Engineer Applications

Applications for the post of assistant Saanich municipal engineer have narrowed to three following interviews Monday.

A decision is expected before the end of the week to replace John Cowlin who resigned in the spring to go into private consulting work.

Final candidates are from the Greater Vancouver area, northern B.C. and Alberta.

Meanwhile, Ronald A. Porter, 30, senior accountant in the municipal treasurer's department since December 1970, has been promoted deputy controller-treasurer.

Man 'Fair' After Crash

A 24-year-old Victoria man is in fair condition at Victoria General Hospital with head injuries suffered in a motor vehicle accident Monday night.

Police said Henry R. MacKeigan, 540 Selkirk Ave., was westbound when his car left the road and struck a pole at 800-block Esquimalt Road.

Quebec Artists To Board Free

QUEBEC (CP) — The cultural affairs department has a new scheme whereby a Quebec artist can spend a year at the Cite Internationale des Arts de Paris. The scheme includes a studio with a bedroom, kitchen, wash room and workshop which will be offered to a Quebec artist on a yearly basis — free of charge.

Marina Opponents to Fight On

Opposition to a proposed $600,000 marina at Sidney will be pressed further following a public hearing that lasted just over an hour Monday night.

Spokesman G. L. Baal, 10025 Third, said today those who object to the development intend to follow up, possibly with legal advice, before Sidney council makes a decision on rezoning.

Some 25 waterfront residents of Second and Third streets north of the government wharf had petitioned against the rezoning of a crown water lot to make the development possible.

About 30 attended the public hearing, concerned that a marina development, along with a protective breakwater proposed as a federal government project, would spoil the beach and sand flats, offend the view and reduce property values of adjoining land along the shore.

It is expected council will deal with the application at its July 8 meeting after the developer, Island View Marina Ltd., clarifies its plans and provides more detailed information.

Mayor Stanley Dear and aldermen F. A. Robinson and Chris Anderson supported the applicant, while aldermen Pat Merritt and W. W. Gardner reserved comment.

Two speakers from Sidney Chamber of Commerce spoke in favor of the marina, but Baal questioned their authority because he said there had been no instruction from a membership meeting.

Council expects to hold a private meeting with the developer to hear clarification of the plan.

Noting there are marinas in the district which are not fully developed, petitioners questioning the need for another one. The proposed marina would in effect be an expansion of Smitty's Marina adjoining to the south.

The area also is a bird sanctuary and opponents expressed fear that emission of gas and oil would cause "irreparable damage."

Greek Arms Cut-Off Threat

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — The Senate, challenging the president on foreign and domestic policy, voted Monday to threaten Greece with a military aid cutoff and to require Senate confirmation of the future directors and deputy directors of the Office of Management and Budget (OBM.

By a 46-41 vote, the Senate attached to the $740 million foreign military aid authorization a provision barring any military aid to Greece unless Nixon certifies to Congress that Greece is following the "political principles" of NATO and will fulfill its military obligations to NATO.

Sponsor Claiborne Pell (Dem—R.I.) and Henry Jackson (Dem—Wash.) said the authoritarian regime in Greece had so harmed the population and debilitated even the armed forces that, in Jackson's words, "the military competence of the Greek government is a hollow shell . . . Criminals are driving out of Greece in a diabolical way their best people . . . Their contribution to NATO will be zero."

By a vote of 72 to 12, the Senate passed a bill sponsored by Lee Metcalf (Dem—Mont.) requiring future directors and deputy directors of the Office of Management and Budget to be confirmed by the Senate.

The House of Representatives, meanwhile, today turned its attention to amendments that would block any new money for U.S. bombing in Cambodia.

One proposal would prohibit any new spending for the bombing. Another would ban use of new spending for any U.S. war activities in Indochina.

A choice between the two was offered in a continuing resolution before the House that would give the Pentagon and other federal agencies stop-gap authority to continue spending until Congress passes its regular appropriations bills.

The amendments were defeated in the House appropriations committee, but bombing opponents announced they would carry the effort to the House floor today.

Nixon has 10 days after he receives the $3.4-billion supplement money bill containing the cutoff amendment to either halt the bombing or veto the bill. If he does not act within that time the bill becomes law.

The measure is expected to go to the president before the end of the week.

Canada Logging Lagging

GRAND FALLS, N.B. (CP) — Nelson Williams, manager for Price Newfoundland Co. woods operations, said a high degree of mechanization has put Sweden many years ahead of Canada in the logging industry.

He said a recent visit to Sweden left him and other industry delegates from Canada "flabbergasted" by the array of logging equipment which included mechanical harvesters "with computers in them."

He said there was equal surprise at the sophisticated equipment in paper mills.

Williams said the only way Canada can catch up with Sweden in the industry is through a program of mechanization with co-operation from governments at all levels.

$625,000 DEGAS VANISHES

Manchester Guardian

LONDON — A $625,000 painting by the French impressionist Degas has vanished in shipment from London Heathrow Airport to Zurich.

The painting, one of a series of six by Degas all called "Les Blanchisseuses," was found to be missing at Zurich Airport June 15. But it was not until June 22 that Scotland Yard's art squad was informed of the theft by the Airport Police at Heathrow. The reason for the delay was unclear and Heathrow police refused to make any comment about the painting.

Zurich Police said, however, that Interpol had been informed and an investigation begun the moment the painting was found to be missing. The picture had come to London from New York and was last seen at Heathrow being loaded onto a Swissair cargo flight for Zurich.

400 Yachts To Compete

Some 400 yachts will compete this weekend in the Pacific International Yachting Association's Regatta activities sponsored by the Royal Victoria Yacht Club June 30 to July 3.

Events include races from Port Townsend and Bedwell Harbor to Gonzales Point, Saturday; a three-day wind pennant series starting Sunday for large cruising classes at Calibóro Bay and a course racing series for small cruising and one-design keel boats also starting Sunday.

All entries must meet 1973 PIYA requirements.

Gov't Slows Science Spending

By JEFF CARRUTHERS
Special to The Times

OTTAWA — Science spending by the federal government has slowed down noticeably in recent years compared to the past 10 years.

But in spite of the trend, another record has been broken. For the first time ever, Ottawa has spent more than $1 billion on the natural sciences this fiscal year — $1.03 billion to be more exact.

And the total federal science budget, including the human sciences along with the natural sciences, has now reached $1.3 billion.

According to statistics released by the federal science ministry Monday, the federal government this year will spend about $659 million on natural science activities in its own laboratories. Of this, some 63 per cent of $417 million are being devoted to research and development. The rest is being spent on "related scientific activities" such as scientific data collection, standards keeping, feasibility studies and scholarships.

In-house spending continues to increase at the same rate — about 11 to 12 per cent per year — as it has since 1965.

The amount of federal science money going to the industrial sector this fiscal year is about $185 million, of which $164 million is for research and development.

Similarly, about $159 million of federal science money is being used by the universities this fiscal year, including $141 million for research and development.

This year's science budget is about 9 per cent higher than last year's and it has grown at a slower rate than the 12.2 per cent average per year during the period 1965-74. Federal officials say the trend will likely continue into the next fiscal year.

Much of the slowdown involves federal spending on extramural science, which grew by less than 8 per cent compared to an average annual growth rate of 21 per cent during the 1965 to 1971 period.

At the same time, a greater portion of federal funds for science are being spent outside the government's own laboratories and agencies.

For 1972-74, some 64 per cent of the funds are destined for in-house research and development use while 68 per cent was so destined during the preceding eight-year period.

The statistics suggest that universities have profited most from this redistribution of the federal research dollars. The university share rose three per cent from the 1965 to 1971 period to a total of about 20 per cent this fiscal year.

Hotel Faces Charges After Fire

VANCOUVER (CP) — Fire Chief Armand Koenig said Monday charges will be laid against the downtown Georgia Hotel following a fire earlier in the day that burned out two rooms and caused an estimated $50,000 damage.

He said that when firemen arrived at the blaze on the fourth floor they found "house" hose lines fastened in their compartments by clothesline wire. He said charges of improper protection would be laid as soon as the wording of the accusations could be decided.

"My men had to take a beating fighting that fire because they couldn't get at the house lines," Chief Koenig said. "They had to wait for water from our pumper before they could attack the fire."

"The hotel has a responsibility as well to protect their guests."

It was reported the compartments had been wired to prevent vandalism and tampering by drunks.

A hotel spokesman said the fire was apparently caused by a television set in one of the rooms exploding. There were no injuries.

MICA CREEK (CP) — Two Vancouver men walked to safety Sunday after their helicopter crashed and burned on a mountain side on the outskirts of this community north of Revelstoke, near the British Columbia-Alberta border.

Perry Cunningham, pilot of the craft owned by Westcoast Aviation, and Bridge Sharan were inspecting a power line right-of-way when the main rotor blade hit a tree. Neither man was injured.

BURNABY (CP) — Edward McWhinney, a professor in international law and relations at Simon Fraser University, will be the first Canadian jurist to lecture on public international law at the Hague Academy of International Law in Holland. He will lecture July 1-2 during the 50th anniversary session of the academy.

★

VANCOUVER (CP) — Henry Reid Franklin, 75, of Vancouver was acquitted Monday of non-capital murder in the shooting death April 3 of Kurt Osland, his partner in a cribbage game.

Mr. Justice J. G. Gould and the jury of eight women and four men were told that the two men had been card-playing friends for nearly 40 years, that the pair began playing cards at Franklin's home and Osland purportedly started a one-sided argument when he lost a game and the $1 stakes that went with it.

Franklin told the jury he shot in self-defence when Osland, who had consumed a bottle of brandy during the game, knocked him to the floor and followed him in his attempt to escape.

★

VANCOUVER (CP) — An east-end Vancouver community group, People's Aid, Monday sent a petition to federal Justice Minister Otto Lang urging the government to outlaw panhandling and the carrying of knives.

The petition, signed by 3,800 Vancouver residents, asks that laws against begging and carrying of knives with blades longer than 2½ inches be reinstated in the criminal code.

It follows concern expressed by other community groups about begging on Vancouver streets.

Drinkers: 72-Hour Wait Urged

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto drug researcher said Monday people should not drive for at least 72 hours after they stop drinking.

Eugene LeBlanc, a scientist for the Ontario Addiction Research Foundation, said in an interview too many people don't realize the hazards they face, not only during or immediately after drinking, but also during withdrawal periods.

He said there is a significant disruption of the ability to concentrate on two things at a time, a faculty needed when driving.

In an address prepared for delivery Thursday in Charlottetown to the annual convention of the Canadian Foundation on Alcohol and Drug Dependencies, he says there is also a disruption of functions after people quit smoking or taking tranquilizers.

ALLERGY LIST DELAYED

Special to the Times

OTTAWA — Federal concerns about problems of legal liability have delayed and could even kill a plan to publish regional food allergy index lists.

The first of the lists was supposed to be published by the health department this summer. Designed as a guide to the thousands of Canadians who are allergic to certain food incredients, the lists would have told residents of various regions of the country what foods were available in local stores that did not contain nine major allergy-causing ingredients.

But the health department revealed Monday that work has not yet started on the lists.

Federal officials it seems, are concerned about the possibility of legal liability should Ottawa publish such lists and then discover that foods on the list actually contain the allergy-causing ingredients they are listed as not containing.

Consumers, believing the government lists, could suffer severe allergic relations and might try and sue the Crown for damages.

One federal health department official noted Monday that the federal government would have no control over food manufacturers, to make sure they don't add ingredients to products listed as being free from the specified ingredients.

At the same time, the officials say they're still trying to find a way round the legal problems.

Under the plan, foods not containing the following major allergens would have been prepared regionally by the health department and made available free: milk, gluten, wheat, egg, corn, peanuts, citrus fruits, tomato and chocolate.

Clean Mill Offer

Rayonier is willing to build a $32.5 million recovery boiler to reduce pollution at its Port Alice pulp mill, counsel for the firm told the Pollution Control Board today.

About 100 people were on hand at the law courts this morning to hear Rayonier open its appeal of restrictions set earlier by William Venables, the province's director of pollution control.

The appeal, expected to take three or four days, is being heard by a three-member board chaired by Valter Raudsep.

Charles Locke, counsel for Rayonier Canada (B.C.) Ltd., said that while the company will build the recovery boiler it will need an extra six to nine months past the deadline of Dec. 1975 set by Venables.

Rayonier, he said, will also be asking that the water standards Venables wants met immediately be postponed until the recovery boiler is operational.

Venables, in issuing a revised permit to the pulp mill earlier this year, also instructed it to meet stricter pollution control standards by Dec., 1978.

Locke said the company will oppose these conditions and ask the board to reconsider them.

Meeting the stricter effluent controls would cost the company an additional $12 million and the firm will argue the standards are not necessary in the mill's location.

Hearing the appeal with Raudsep are board members E. H. Vernon, chief of fisheries management with the provincial department of recreation, and conservation and J. S. Allin, an official with the provincial department of agriculture.

Parkland Cash Approved

A special warrant of $2 million for buying parkland was approved by the provincial cabinet Monday.

The money was not previously included in the 1973-74 budget, according to parks branch director Bob Ahrens, because the government "thought land acquisition for provincial park purposes would be accomplished by the Land Commission."

"But in view of all the debate (over the Land Commission Bill) and since the commission is not moving as fast as planned," Ahrens said today, "land buying will be through the parks branch.

Ahrens did not disclose what areas were involved in parkland acquisition but said his branch hopes to acquire 15 to 20 new properties by the end of the year.

The properties will form new parks as well as additions to existing provincial parks.

Brezhnev Holds French Summit

Nixon 'Aided Cover-Up'

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — President Nixon not only knew about the Watergate cover-up as early as last fall, but also helped to keep the scandal quiet, ousted White House counsel John Dean testified today.

Outwardly calm, his voice hoarse after reading a 65,000-word statement to the Senate Watergate Committee Monday detailing his own knowledge and participation in the plot, Dean answered "that is correct" several times when asked if he was charging Nixon with complicity in a massive White House effort to cover up the Watergate scandal.

Nixon, meanwhile, remained mute and in seclusion in the western White House in San Clemente, Calif. A spokesman said he was not watching the committee hearings on television, but was being kept informed on the relevant details.

Dean testified he became sure of the president's involvement Sept. 15, the day seven men — none of them White House officials — were indicted for the Watergate bugging, when the president called him in to congratulate him for his handling of the case.

"Did you have any doubt in your mind what the president was talking about?" asked Samuel Dash, the chief committee counsel.

"No, I did not," Dean replied.

"Therefore, Mr. Dean, whatever doubt you may have had prior to Sept. 15 about the president's involvement in the cover-up, did you have any doubts with yourself about this after Sept. 15?" Dash asked.

"No, I did not," Dean replied.

While Dean conceded he had actively participated in the cover-up himself — which he said involved perjury, payoffs to the original Watergate defendants to keep them quiet and impeding the FBI investigation — he denied that he was implicating Nixon in an effort to gain immunity from criminal prosecution.

"Mr. Dash, I have been asked to give testimony," Dean said. "That testimony happens to involve the president of the United States. I have no motive of using that testimony to obtain immunity from prosecution."

Dean has been granted immunity for what he tells the Senate investigating committ-

ROYAL ROUTE LINED

Times News Services

TORONTO — Crowds, standing three to four deep, lined the route to the Ontario legislature today to see Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip arrive in a motorcade for a loyal address from Premier William Davis. (Pictures, pages 3, 37).

The crowds were in a cheerful mood as the Queen, in her reply to the loyal address, said that no matter what differences Canadians share in creed, color and tradition the law was the "one powerful, unifying force."

"Under the protection of the law and the system of parliamentary democracy, people from all over the world have been able to choose their various ways of being Canadian, respecting others but not forsaking their inheritance."

The Queen, making her first visit to Toronto in 14 years, was to spend the entire day in the city.

Her reference to the rule of law was made in French. She described Canada as a mature and independent nation and the people of Ontario as recipients of "a rich endowment of wisdom and nature."

Davis said the Queen's personal example "cast a civilizing influence upon all of our deliberations in meeting the challenges of an increasingly complex world."

"While Your Majesty's position commands respect in itself, it is Your Majesty's gracious and humane occupation of that position which evokes devotion and loyalty on a very immediate and personal level."

Earlier, a crowd of about 500 greeted the Queen and Prince Philip as they left the Royal York Hotel.

Allmand Firm On Hanging Ban

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General Warren Allmand will not back down from political pressures to have his recently-introduced proposals for the complete abolition of capital punishment withdrawn.

A spokesman for the solicitor-general's office said today that despite reports the federal cabinet has instructed Allmand to withdraw the proposed amendments, the solicitor-general will not back down."

"He believes in these proposals," said the spokesman.

Allmand told the Commons justice committee last Thursday that the government will introduce amendments to its capital punishment bill that will take away the hanging penalty for all murderers.

The Commons recently passed in principle a five-year continuation of the partial ban on hanging. But retained hanging for killers of prison guards and policemen.

In making his announcement, Allmand said the amendments would do away with the five-year partial-ban and also tighten parole procedures.

In another proposed change, murderers might not become eligible for parole until 20 years.

Allmand said a "thorough debate" across the country on the question of capital punishment prompted the government to propose the amendments.

But, he said, it would still be a free vote. Each MP would vote according to his or her own conscience.

The proposed ban brought a hostile reaction from some members in the Commons Friday.

Social Credit Leader Real Caouette, an advocate of capital punishment, asked whether the government also is planning to "distribute medals to Canadian murderers."

Robert Coats (PC—Cumberland-Colchester North) challenged the prime minister to decide the issue at the next federal election by holding a national plebiscite.

The proposed amendments come up for study in the Commons justice committee tonight. If passed the bill goes back to the Commons for final reading.

10 More Persons Kidnapped

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Argentine police today reported 10 kidnappings within the past 24 hours despite President Campora's promise his government will "firmly exercise its authority to assure orderly change."

Terrorists blamed for the unprecedented wave of kidnappings now hold 14 persons. Two other persons died of assassins' bullets.

More than 70 persons have been kidnapped by leftist guerrillas or others so far this year with ransoms paid estimated at more than $7 million.

Two of the victims were Alberto Mazzarella, 13, taken by armed men on a Cordoba street and Antanas Valinsky, 47, manager of Cordoba electric items plant, taken on his way home from work Monday.

MOTHERLESS FAWN was flown to Vancouver after being found abandoned near Terrace and will make its new home in the city children's zoo in Stanley Park. Holding the fawn is Willi Thorogood, who accompanied the animal on the flight south.

U.S. TRADE DEFICIT SENDS $ PLUNGING

LONDON (AP) — Disappointing United States trade figures sent the U.S. dollar plunging and gold prices soaring today on Western European markets.

The U.S. currency sank to a record low of 2.5350 West German marks in Frankfurt, making the rate about 39½ cents for a mark. The dollar also weakened sharply in London and Paris.

Gold prices jumped more than $4 an ounce following a U.S. commerce department announcement that the United States suffered a foreign trade deficit of $157.9 million in May, an adverse swing of more than $350 million from April's surplus of $196.3 million. Gold usually rises when the dollar is in trouble.

Break Spills Oil In Jasper Park

JASPER, Alta. (CP) — An oil spill of up to 1,000 gallons inside the eastern gate of Jasper National park was being cleaned up Monday night by a crew of about 20 men.

The spill, spotted Sunday morning by a CNR trainman who reported it to park authorities, occurred in a 24-inch pipeline owned by Trans Mountain Oil Pipeline Co.

A company official said a four-inch crack at the base of the pipe caused the leak. It was believed the leak started Saturday about 150 yards from the Athabasca River.

Oil was spotted in Lake Brule, downstream from the spill, said Bruce Wilson, assistant park superintendent.

He said the high water level of the river at this time would help dissipate the oil.

A company spokesman estimated it would take up to three days to clean up the oil at the spill site. "We can't repair the leak until the oil is cleaned up because . . . there would be high fire danger."

Wilson said park authorities are satisfied the company is doing all in its power to clean up the spill.

The pipeline carries oil from Edmonton to British Columbia and the United States.

NEWS BRIEFS

Kelley Approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate judiciary committee approved today the nomination of Clarence Kelley, Kansas City police chief, to be director of the FBI. The full Senate is expected to act on the nomination later this week, possibly Wednesday.

Drivers All 'Sick'

VANCOUVER (CP) — All 52 drivers employed by CN Express here booked off sick Monday. The Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers said the men were upset with delays in national contract negotiations.

N. Vietnam Dry

HONG KONG (AP) — Severe drought has hit parts of North Vietnam, and the "crop condition is very serious to critical" in five provinces south of Hanoi, North Vietnam's official newspaper reported today.

Guatemala Shaken

GUATEMALA CITY (Reuter) — Repeated earth tremors rocked the Guatemalan capital today, cutting electricity and spreading panic among the one million inhabitants. There were no immediate reports of damage or loss of life.

Final Pitches In Manitoba

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba's political leaders have begun making their final appeals for voters as the provincial election campaign entered its final 48 hours today.

Premier Ed Schreyer and Conservative Leader Sidney Spivak plan to spend the last two days before Thursday's vote with a combination of work in their home ridings and visits to other parts of the province.

Liberal Leader Izzy Asper, on the other hand, will be concentrating his attention on Winnipeg constituencies.

Former B.C. premier W. A. C. Bennett entered the election battle Monday by delivering an impassioned warning to Manitobans not to be fooled by the "sugar-coated pill" of socialism.

Campaigning for Jake Froese, seeking re-election as the Social Credit MLA for Rhineland, Bennett said pioneers who settled in Western Canada came to the country because they are seeking liberty.

"The homesteaders did not ask for all-powerful governments. He only sought freedom for himself, wife and children . . . not a system of heavy hand of socialism."

Socialism is a doctrine foreign "to this free country of Canada, he added.

"Don't be taken in by those socialists. This will be the most important vote you will ever cast."

Bennett, accompanied by former B.C. cabinet ministers Dan Campbell and Grace McCarthy, also predicted a resurgence of Social Credit in Canada.

He said both B.C. and Alberta would return Social Credit governments in the next provincial elections and Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Quebec would have Social Credit governments within 10 years.

Asper concluded his campaign outside Winnipeg Monday night with a visit to a meeting in Brandon, featuring a speech by National Defence Minister James Richardson.

An aide to the Liberal leader said Asper will be spending the final two days of the campaign with candidates in Winnipeg and in his own downtown riding of Wolseley.

All three leaders have predicted victory for their parties. Schreyer has appealed for a mandate to continue the work his government began four years ago after an upset victory, Spivak has been promoting his party as the only credible alternative to the NDP, and Asper has said his team of candidates will revive the party after a poor showing in the 1969 contest.

At dissolution, the NDP had 29 of the 57 seats in the legislature, the Conservatives 20 and the Liberals four.

Vancouver PO Closed

VANCOUVER (CP) — The main post office here will neither send nor receive mail today.

"The main post office is closed down," said public affairs officer Dave Stutters. "Nothing's going in and nothing's going out."

About 25 sorters walked out early Monday to protest a five-hour suspension of three union officials. Stutters had said the three were disciplined for "insurbordination."

He said Tuesday some mail is being delivered from postal stations in Vancouver, but no mail is being picked up from mail boxes.

"This will make a big difference in delivery to the interior of the province," said Stuters.

Thalidomide Battle Opens in N.J.

Times News Services

NEWARK, N.J. — A U.S. federal court judge considered a request Monday that would make New Jersey the battleground for negligence cases involving nearly a quarter of Canada's thalidomide children.

The court was asked to decide whether it can award damages to the families of 22 French-Canadian children deformed by the drug thalidomide, including an earless boy and a limbless girl.

The families never sued in Canada, mainly because of a provision in the legal code of Quebec which provides that a person suffering an injury said to be related to a product must file a damage suit within one year, if he is to file one at all.

An estimated 35 French-Canadian thalidomide victims were born in the early 1960s before it became general public knowledge that a link was suspected between ingestion of the tranquilizer in early pregnancy and the occurrence of deformities in the fetus. The drug has long been off the market.

Now the forum for these victims has moved to New Jersey, where one of the families has sued in U.S. district court.

Richardson - Merrell, Inc., which manufactured the sedative, argued the families have no basis for suing there.

"There are no New Jersey contacts whatsoever," the firm said in papers filed in advance of Monday's hearings.

The families' lawyer, Arthur Raynes, met the company argument with a disclosure the plant that manufactured thalidomide is in Phillipsburg, N.J.

In New Jersey, the statute or limitations does not even begin to run until a person reaches the age of 18.

Gaston and Lorraine Henry of Vimont Laval, Que., had a son, Denis, born on March 8, 1962. "Although I asked for Denis, they would not bring him to me," his mother said in a deposition.

"That is when I first realized that there must be something wrong," Mrs. Henry said. "When I finally did get to see him, I learned what it was.

"Denis had no ears," she said. "His face was horribly crooked . . . I saw that he was trying to cry, but the sound that he made was not the sound of a baby crying. It

Back From 'Too Long' Cruise, Families Swamp Terra Nova

By WAYNE HARDING
Times Staff

The admiral gave the salute, the band played There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight and HMCS Terra Nova sailed into Esquimalt Harbor.

The destroyer escort arrived at its home port at 10 a.m. today — five months, less three days, since it departed on a then obscure cruise to the South Pacific.

"We're back," yelled the youthful commander, Larry Dzioba, from the bridge to the crowd on the jetty, made up mostly of women and children, the families of the 21 crew members.

The band now played Heart of Oak and Rear Admiral R. H. Leir soon after was piped aboard. There was a guard of three sailors dressed as coolies. The admiral joked with them.

The cruise was "just a little too long," said Mrs. Dzioba, the wife of the commander, with a smile. Earlier in the morning she had been taken aboard the ship near Race Rocks while the Terra Nova prepared for its ceremonial and punctual arrival.

For the wives of other officers and crew the welcome was just beginning. The decks of the 366-foot ship were soon filled with people, women and children, babes in arms and the green-uniformed sailors.

It was only after the Terra Nova had left port Jan. 29 that her real mission was made publicly known. She was being deployed to act as an evacuation vessel should Canadians taking part in the Vietnam peacekeeping operation have to get out quickly.

"I never keep any secrets from the men," said Dzioba, talking to the press on the bridge. "When I didn't know what was happening, I'd tell them. Then we would play 'who has the best rumor of the day?' "

Could the Terra Nova really have helped, should a quick evacuation be necessary?

"You've got to remember the South China Sea is really like a lake. There is not one port that is more than 36 hours away,' says Dzioba.

Now the Canadians are leaving Vietnam — in disgust more than panic. The HMCS Kootenay, which took over the Terra Nova's duties, is now heading back too.

Was withdrawal a good idea?

"From my point of view," says Dzioba, "I support the political decisions that are made."

While on the extra-long tour of duty, the Terra Nova took part in exercises with Royal Navy and Royal Australian Navy forces. The Terra Nova's worst enemy on the assignment was influenza. Eight crewmen were hospitalized and one, Cpl. Ned Nemnook of Victoria, died March 15 as a result.

"It's hard to explain how it affects you," says Dzioba. "People felt very deeply about it. A shipmate is someone very close. You get to know each other very intimately living together in such small quarters."

Dzioba is frankly proud of his ship and its company.

"We spent 50 days in foreign port and there was not one incident. That's remarkable. You talk about volunteers. Well our men aren't any older than others. But they're mature."

The men of the Terra Nova are now due for a six-week leave and the ship is due for a period of maintenance and repairs.

Second Paramedic Ambulance?

Saanich has received a private offer to help finance a second fully-equipped paramedic ambulance unit for the municipal fire department.

Mayor Hugh Curtis said today he could not identify the source at present, but he was hoping the second paramedic team could operate from a new fire hall planned for University of Victoria campus.

Basic cost of equipping an ambulance is about $10,000.

Curtis said it was hoped the new hall would be in operation next year, but meanwhile the municipality is awaiting confirmation of agreement from UVic board of governors.

A team of Saanich firemen operates the first paramedic unit of its kind in B.C., providing mobile treatment for cardiac cases and monitoring heart performance by telemetry connected with Royal Jubilee Hospital cardiac unit.

Saanich Studies $3-5M Program

Saanich council, in a closed meeting this afternoon, was to consider capital works projects which may cost $3 to $5 millions.

But before a capital works program goes to the voters in November, another meeting will be held at the end of the summer.

Among the proposed projects are land acquisition for open space, parks, a second arena, improvements on Colquitz and Swan creeks, and extensive road and drainage work.

The in-camera meeting today will help direct senior staff to draw up the referendum.

This year Saanich completed a series of capital projects that started six years ago and which provided the first arena, swimming pool, community centres and major waterway improvements in the municipality.

A new phase of development could cost in the range of $1 million a year for the life of the program.

Mayor Hugh Curtis said the technique of holding a series of private, preliminary meetings was first used by council in 1965 during planning of the last bylaw.

It made possible a "hammering out of program without feeling under the gun in time," he said.

"Council should take several months to put together a bylaw to make sure the right things are left in and others left out."

Helmcken Proposes Regional Archives

City archivist Ainslie Helmcken has put forward a proposal for broadening the scope of his department by incorporating it as a civic archives society which would cover all of Greater Victoria and perhaps even other Vancouver Island communities.

So far there has been no official reaction to the idea from city council, but Helmcken said today he has had a "most encouraging response" from a number of individuals whom he has approached as possible charter members of the society.

Helmcken believes one of the chief advantages of bringing Greater Victoria archives under the umbrella of a society is that new sources of funding would be opened up.

A society, he noted, could apply to Canada Council and similar agencies for grants for various purposes — grants which would not be forthcoming if the applicant was a municipality.

Another benefit would be the ability to call on the help, advice and expertise of many people who would be directly involved in the task of preserving the area's heritage, he said.

A society would also look at Greater Victoria as an historical entity, the cornerstone of the broader history of B.C. itself, and would not be tied to the "parochial" concerns of municipal boundaries.

HELMCKEN
... city archivist

Helmcken would like a commitment from the city to carry on funding the present archives operation and providing accommodation, while he seeks financial and other assistance from school boards and neighboring municipalities.

With basic funding assured, he hopes he would then be able to go cap in hand to such agencies as Canada Council for money to set up cataloguing and other programs.

One of the prime needs, Helmcken said, is to catalogue and assess the massive amount of material — over two tons of it, including 100 cases stored in a city warehouse — in the B.C. Land and Investment Agency collection.

Recently entrusted to the city archives on an initial 10-year-old basis, this is one of the finest collections of B.C. history, particularly in the business field.

B.C. Land and Investment Agency Ltd. was started in Victoria in 1863 and the collection represents 100 years of the firm's business records, including correspondence with pioneer British investors and records of the great cattle spreads of the north-central interior.

Helmcken said one of the invaluable aspects of the collection, as far as Victoria is concerned, is that it covers much of the early development of the city because much of the financing was done through the firm and many buildings were constructed by its clients.

(The city's own building records date only to 1908, as earlier records were destroyed.)

Provincial archivist Willard Ireland has indicated his department might be willing to microfilm the entire BCLIA collection, Helmcken said.

Longmore Named To New Post

A special meeting of Greater Victoria School Board Monday night appointed district superintendent Jake Longmore to the new position of "school superintendent."

In his new role, Longmore will no longer be a civil servant but will perform exactly the same duties as an employee of the school board.

As of July 1, Longmore becomes a board employee without tenure and for the first time will be the highest paid in the Victoria school district.

His new position is a result of changes in the Public Schools Act, enacted by the government during the spring session, which allows B.C.'s six largest school districts to appoint their own superintendents.

North Vancouver, Coquitlam, Burnaby, Surrey, Vancouver and Victoria school districts, each with school populations over 20,000 have been granted the right to choose their own chief officer.

In districts with less than 20,000 students, the provincial government will continue to appoint school superintendents.

"It means Jake is our own man now," School Board Chairman Peter Bunn, said today. "When we approach the provincial government as a board he'll be our own man."

Bunn said the board will raise Longmore's salary since up until now at least 15 other board employees including some school principals, have been earning more than the superintendent.

Women Clerks Urged for LCB

The new chairman of the British Columbia Liquor Control Board said today he is in favor of the B.C. government hiring women clerks for liquor stores.

Neil Davidson emphasized, however, that the board has no power to hire women until a complaint is laid and an appeal is taken on a previous decision.

John Freyer, general-secretary of the B.C. Government Employees Union, said Monday he wants women to be hired to work the counters in the liquor stores and he wants them to be paid the same as male clerks.

Davidson said he agrees women clerks should receive equal pay.

Kathleen Ruff, director of the Human Rights Commission, said the move would open up job opportunities for women and do away with "antiquated prejudiced" job categories.

"Unions are becoming more sensitive to their female members. In the past, the unions haven't really gone to bat for women in this kind of situation," she said.

Ruff said the practice of segregating jobs according to sex is common in society and exists both in the government service and industry.

But people are beginning to question the justice of it, she said, because "very often there is no rational justification for it. Women are not incapable of doing the jobs, it's just tradition, and it limits opportunities for women."

Key Theft Stalls Car Sales

A downtown used car lot has lots of cars for sale, but customers may have to supply their own keys.

A thief broke into the office of Speedway Motors Ltd., 971 Yates Street, late Monday night and stole the keys to more than 130 cars on the lot.

A 1972 green Pontiac is also missing.

Sales manager Roy Passmore said today a reward is being offered by the company for information leading to the recovery of the keys and the car.

"We're still open for business as usual — but the customer is going to have to bring his own keys until the locksmith gets finished opening the cars," Passmore said.

Police said the thief broke a back window in the office to get into the building.

'I Have Finished the Course'

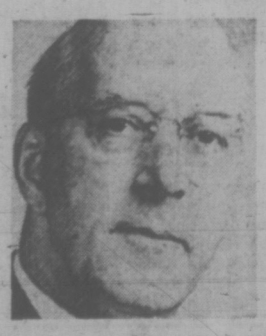
Dial-A-Thought still answers, but callers no longer hear the familiar voice of Rev. Dr. J. B. Rowell, pastor emeritus of First Baptist Church.

Rowell, of 350 Foul Bay Road, and James Bay Lodge, died Monday in hospital at age 85. He started the telephone service of comforting one-minute messages for troubled people when he retired after 31 years as pastor of Central Baptist Church.

★ ★ ★

Today's Dial-A-Thought message is a favorite quotation of Rowell's — "I have fought a good fight. I have finished the course."

Rowell, a native of Nottinghamshire, England, has lived in Victoria since 1927, the year he founded Central Baptist Church.



He leaves his wife, Lucy, son, Hedley, of West Vancouver, and daughters, Mrs. C. V. Eno and Mrs. Frances Moffat, both of Victoria, five grandchildren, nieces and nephews.

Funeral services will be held at Central Baptist Church, Pandora Avenue, Thursday, at 2:30 p.m. with Pastor R. D. Holmes, Rev. Dr. W. S. Whitcombe, Rev. L. B. Baker and Rev. John Stewart officiating.

Interment will be at Royal Oak Burial Park.

No More Apartments

Esplanade Area 'Zoned Down' As Flower Power Blooms Again

The Esplanade is closed to future apartment development.

Oak Bay council Monday voted unanimously to "zone down" property along Willows Beach to single family dwellings from apartment zoning.

The move was supported by a sympathetic crowd of more than 200 who filled the council chambers, hallways and door entrance and 700 petitions.

Only four voiced objections at the two-hour hearing which saw 13 lots zoned down. Previously, owners of nine lots asked for the rezoning.

Residents at the hearing showed support for the change by wearing flowers in their lapels.

On one side of the argument were three lawyers, appearing for homeowners who claim their property between Willows and Uplands Park would decline in value if it ceased to be potential apartment land.

"I represent one selfish point of view," said lawyer Lloyd McKenzie, who appeared for the Bonner brothers (Ken, Harold and Doug).

"The Bonners have been offered $169,500 if an apartment can be built upon it, but used for a house, it would be worth only $100,000," he said.

It was the Bonner and David Pite properties on the Esplanade which sparked the "down zoning" attitude Dunn Holdings Ltd. had a plan to construct an apartment on three lots and asked council to declare them as a development area.

After the hearing and without further comment, the matter was rejected.

For the down zoning were the Willows Beach Association and the Windsor Park Neighborhood Group.

"The Tweed Curtain is liable to be replaced by a concrete curtain, the concrete curtain that is liable to cut people off from the water," said Dale Kilshaw, spokesman for the Willows Beach group.

"We take the position that no one is going to suffer unduly" from the zoning change. All homes in the two-block area have appreciated greatly over the years, said Kilshaw.

Lawyers Ian Stewart and McKenzie argued strongly for financial compensation for clients affected by the rezoning.

"To do otherwise is really to confiscate without compensation," said Stewart.

"You shouldn't simply take away from my clients because you want to serve your own ends," he told council.

The area had been zoned for apartments since 1927. The seven apartment buildings are already up, and their zoning will not change.

Stewart also said a public hearing was not the best place to discuss the change, because such hearing tended to get emotional.

"The jury comprises in vast numbers people who have nothing to lose," he said. Stewart failed in an attempt to address council prior to the public hearing.

Ald. Douglas Watts said he felt residents who suffered an actual loss because of the change should be compensated: Such as people who had spent money getting architects' drawings for an apartment they thought they could build on their property.

He and Ald. Norman Pimlott moved a motion that council request legislation to cover this sort of loss. It will be discussed at council's July meeting.

Ald. Douglas McLelland and Ald. Shirley Dowell voiced opposition to the motion.

"I think we'd be opening up a very dangerous precedent if we did this," said McLelland. There is no legal or moral reason to compensate residents affected by rezoning.

In voting for the change, Dowell said she hoped the area would be greenbelt by the year 2000.

"As the land becomes available (the municipality should) then buy it from the people at the fair market value," she said.

SUDDEN SHOWER

MONTREAL (CP) — A Montreal bus driver was hard put to keep his mind on the job when passengers on the regular express run between downtown Montreal and the suburban Ville d' Anjou decided to throw a shower for a female passenger who was getting married. Passengers invaded the bus just before it was ready to leave, decorated the inside with bells and streamers, piled up gifts and gave a big welcome to the lucky lady as she stepped aboard for the trip home.

PLANTING ALONG EDGES of the random width steps softens the masonry and relates both the house and the steps to the contour of the site. Low plants are by the steps, small trees and bushes by the house.

Stairs That Float

By PAULINE GRAVES

Many times you can give a flair to your house, be it the exterior or interior, if you try a new approach rather than following conventional concepts. To reach a house from the street you need a walk. Instead of the usual straight concrete ribbon, vary its path and change the materials. Steps to reach a house that is elevated above street level can be dealt with imaginatively, too.

Here is a sumptuous house that demonstrates handsome design for architectural necessities, a walk and a short flight of steps. In fact, the steps have taken over both functions. However, the idea can be used on a scale for smaller homes, too. A series of shallow platforms comprise the steps, and they start at the city sidewalk, continuing to the house entrance. Each platform is a different size, ranging from two-feet deep by four feet wide, to three feet deep and ten feet wide, and their irregular placement has great design interest. Also, while some are of smooth concrete, others contrast with textured, exposed aggregate surfaces.

Two things the platforms have in common. One is that they have a 'floating" look. In other words, the risers, or supports, are tucked back of the front edges and cannot be seen. This makes for a "light" appearance and belies the heaviness of the masonry materials used.

The other is that they share a three-inch thickness as well as a three-inch riser, so that the step heights are uniform. This is a matter of safety. Were the steps of varying heights, it would be easy to trip.

Pupils Learn in Hospital

PORT ALBERNI (CP) — Children in hospital at the West Coast General in this central Vancouver Island community do not have to worry about boredom.

Nor do they have to worry about catching up on their work when they return to school.

The school board of District 70 has taken care of both those problems by finding a teacher to kill the nothing-to-do blues with projects which also keep the youngsters up with their classes.

Myrna McFadden, who also gives free home instruction, has the job.

When Projects Vanish Vacation Blues Arrive

During the past two months, our son thoroughly planned what he intended to do when school was out. He decided to build a tree fort, make a lemonade stand, construct a go-kart out of an old lawnmower, paint his bicycle purple, and look at pond water under his microscope.

Unfortunately, he completed all those projects by 11 on the first morning of summer vacation and appears doomed to spend the next two and a half months lying flat on his back in the middle of the dining room floor, staring at the crack on the ceiling, and whining "There's nothing to DO!"

After the first three days, he was definitely beginning to get on my nerves. Every time I sat down to have a cup of coffee I would catch him gazing at the space between my eyes and humming.

"I wish that I could earn money somehow," he mused. I was sorely tempted to reply "I'll give you a dollar to get the heck out of the house."

"Why don't you play baseball, ride your bike, or lie on the driveway and count ants?" I suggested.

"Are you kidding? It must be two thousand degrees out there!" Summer, I have discovered, is the time of year when it's too hot to do all the things that it was too cold to do last winter.

"Mumbletypeg!"

"I beg your pardon?"

"Mumbletypeg. Go play mumbletypeg."

"What's that?"

"It's a game boys play when they're bored. You take a jackknife . . ."

"I'm too little for jackknives," he interrupted reproachfully. "You don't want to have to take me to the emergency ward, do you?" I certainly didn't. I'd already had to take him with me when I went grocery shopping, to the beauty shop and to my Great Books discussion group.

I think that I have finally solved the problem by giving him a pad of paper and a pencil. For the next two months he's going to be busy planning. Planning what he's going to do as soon as school starts.

Allmand Firm On Hanging Ban

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General Warren Allmand will not back down from political pressures to have his recently-introduced proposals for the complete abolition of capital punishment withdrawn.

A spokesman for the solicitor-general's office said today that despite reports the federal cabinet has instructed Allmand to withdraw the proposed amendments, the solicitor-general will not back down."

"He believes in these proposals," said the spokesman.

Allmand told the Commons justice committee last Thursday that the government will introduce amendments to its capital punishment bill that will take away the hanging penalty for all murderers.

The Commons recently passed in principle a five-year continuation of the partial ban on hanging, but retained hanging for killers of prison guards and policemen.

In making his announcement, Allmand said the amendments would do away with the five-year partial-ban and also tighten parole procedures.

In another proposed change, murderers might not become eligible for parole until 20 years.

Allmand said a "thorough debate" across the country on the question of capital punishment prompted the government to propose the amendments.

But, he said, it would still be a free vote. Each MP would vote according to his or her own conscience.

The proposed ban brought a hostile reaction from some members in the Commons Friday.

Social Credit Leader Real Caouette, an advocate of capital punishment, asked whether the government also is planning to "distribute medals to Canadian murderers."

Robert Coats (PC—Cumberland-Colchester North) challenged the prime minister to decide the issue at the next federal election by holding a national plebiscite.

The proposed amendments come up for study in the Commons justice committee tonight. If passed the bill goes back to the Commons for final reading.

Clean Mill Offer

Rayonier is willing to build a $32.5 million recovery boiler to reduce pollution at its Port Alice pulp mill, counsel for the firm told the Pollution Control Board today.

About 100 people were on hand at the law courts this morning to hear Rayonier open its appeal of restrictions set earlier by William Venables, the province's director of pollution control.

The appeal, expected to take three or four days, is being heard by a three-member board chaired by Walter Raudsepp.

Charles Locke, counsel for Rayonier Canada (B.C.) Ltd., said that while the company will build the recovery boiler it will need an extra six to nine months past the deadline of Dec. 1975 set by Venables.

Rayonier, he said, will also be asking that the water standards Venables wants met immediately be postponed until the recovery boiler is operational.

Venables, in issuing a revised permit to the pulp mill earlier this year, also instructed it to meet stricter pollution control standards by Dec., 1978.

Locke said the company will oppose these conditions and ask the board to reconsider them.

Meeting the stricter effluent controls would cost the company an additional $12 million and the firm will argue the standards are not necessary in the mill's location.

Hearing the appeal with Raudsepp are board members E. H. Vernon, chief of fisheries management with the provincial department of recreation and conservation, and J. S. Allin, an official with the provincial department of agriculture.

Nixon 'Aided Cover-Up'

Times News Serivces

WASHINGTON — President Nixon not only knew about the Watergate cover-up as early as last fall, but also helped to keep the scandal quiet, ousted White House counsel John Dean testified today.

Outwardly calm, his voice hoarse after reading—a 65,000-word statement to the Senate Watergate Committee Monday detailing his own knowledge and participation in the plot, Dean answered "that is correct" several times when asked if he was charging Nixon with complicity in a massive White House effort to cover up the Watergate scandal.

Nixon, meanwhile, remained mute and in seclusion in the western White House in San Clemente, Calif. A spokesman said he was not watching the committee hearings on television, but was being kept informed on the relevant details.

Dean testified he became sure of the president's involvement Sept. 15, the day seven men — none of them White House officials — were indicted for the Watergate bugging, when the president called him in to congratulate him for his handling of the case.

"Did you have any doubt in your mind what the president was talking about?" asked Samuel Dash, the chief committee counsel.

"No, I did not," Dean replied.

"Therefore, Mr. Dean, whatever doubt you may have had prior to Sept. 15 about the president's involvement in the cover-up, did you have any doubts with yourself about this after Sept. 15?" Dash asked.

"No, I did not," Dean replied.

While Dean conceded he had actively participated in the cover-up himself — which he said involved perjury, payoffs to the original Watergate defendants to keep them quiet and impeding the FBI investigation — he denied that he was implicating Nixon in an effort to gain immunity from criminal prosecution.

"Mr. Dash, I have been asked to give testimony," Dean said. "That testimony happens to involve the president of the United States. I have no motive of using that testimony to obtain immunity from prosecution."

Dean has been granted immunity for what he tells the Senate investigating committ-

ROYAL ROUTE LINED

Times News Services

TORONTO — Crowds, standing three to four deep, lined the route to the Ontario legislature today to see Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip arrive in a motorcade for a loyal address from Premier William Davis. (Pictures, pages 3, 37).

The crowds were in a cheerful mood as the Queen, in her reply to the loyal address, said that no matter what differences Canadians share in creed, color and tradition the law was the "one powerful, unifying force."

"Under the protection of the law and the system of parliamentary democracy, people from all over the world have been able to choose their various ways of being Canadian, respecting others but not forsaking their inheritance."

The Queen, making her first visit to Toronto in 14 years, was to spend the entire day in the city.

Her reference to the rule of law was made in French. She described Canada as a mature and independent nation and the people of Ontario as recipients of "a rich endowment of wisdom and nature."

Davis said the Queen's personal example "cast a civilizing influence upon all of our deliberations in meeting the challenges of an increasingly complex world.

"While Your Majesty's position commands respect in itself, it is Your Majesty's gracious and humane occupation of that position which evokes devotion and loyalty on a very immediate and personal level."

Earlier, a crowd of about 500 greeted the Queen and Prince Philip as they left the Royal York Hotel.

10 More Persons Kidnapped

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Argentine police today reported 10 kidnappings within the past 24 hours despite President Campora's promise his government will "firmly exercise its authority to assure orderly change."

Terrorists blamed for the unprecedented wave of kidnappings now hold 14 persons. Two other persons died of assassins' bullets.

More than 70 persons have been kidnapped by leftist guerrillas or others so far this year with ransoms paid estimated at more than $7 million.

Two of the victims were Alberto Mazzarella, 13, taken by armed men on a Cordoba street and Antanas Valinsky, 47, manager of Cordoba electric items plant, taken on his way home from work Monday.

MOTHERLESS FAWN was flown to Vancouver after being found abandoned near Terrace and will make its new home in the city children's zoo in Stanley Park. Holding the fawn is Willi Thorogood, who accompanied the animal on the flight south.

U.S. TRADE DEFICIT SENDS $ PLUNGING

LONDON (AP) — Disappointing United States trade figures sent the U.S. dollar plunging and gold prices soaring today on Western European markets.

The U.S. currency sank to a record low of 2.5350 West German marks in Frankfurt, making the rate about 39½ cents for a mark. The dollar also weakened sharply in London and Paris.

Gold prices jumped more than $4 an ounce following a U.S. commerce department announcement that the United States suffered a foreign trade deficit of $157.9 million in May, an adverse swing of more than $350 million from April's surplus of $196.3 million. Gold usually rises when the dollar is in trouble.

Break Spills Oil In Jasper Park

JASPER, Alta. (CP) — An oil spill of up to 1,000 gallons inside the eastern gate of Jasper National park was being cleaned up Monday night by a crew of about 20 men.

The spill, spotted Sunday morning by a CNR trainman who reported it to park authorities, occurred in a 24-inch pipeline owned by Trans Mountain Oil Pipeline Co.

A company official said a four-inch crack at the base of the pipe caused the leak. It was believed the leak started Saturday about 150 yards from the Athabasca River.

Oil was spotted in Lake Brule, downstream from the spill, said Bruce Wilson, assistant park superintendent.

He said the high water level of the river at this time would help dissipate the oil.

A company spokesman estimated it would take up to three days to clean up the oil at the spill site. "We can't repair the leak until the oil is cleaned up because . . . there would be high fire danger."

Wilson said park authorities are satisfied the company is doing all in its power to clean up the spill.

The pipeline carries oil from Edmonton to British Columbia and the United States.

Parkland Cash Approved

A special warrant of $2 million for buying parkland was approved by the provincial cabinet Monday.

The money was not previously included in the 1973-74 budget, according to parks branch director Bob Ahrens, because the government "thought land acquisition for provincial park purposes would be accomplished by the Land Commission."

"But in view of all the debate (over the Land Commission Bill) and since the commission is not moving as fast as planned," Ahrens said today, "land buying will be through the parks branch.

Ahrens did not disclose what areas were involved in parkland acquisition but said his branch hopes to acquire 15 to 20 new properties by the end of the year.

The properties will form new parks as well as additions to existing provincial parks.

Final Pitches In Manitoba

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba's political leaders have begun making their final appeals for voters as the provincial election campaign entered its final 48 hours today.

Premier Ed Schreyer and Conservative Leader Sidney Spivak plan to spend the last two days before Thursday's vote with a combination of work in their home ridings and visits to other parts of the province.

Liberal Leader Izzy Asper, on the other hand, will be concentrating his attention on Winnipeg constituencies.

Former B.C. premier W. A. C. Bennett entered the election battle Monday by delivering an impassioned warning to Manitobans not to be fooled by the "sugar-coated pill" of socialism.

Campaigning for Jake Froese, seeking re-election as the Social Credit MLA for Rhineland, Bennett said pioneers who settled in Western Canada came to the country because they are seeking liberty.

"The homesteaders did not ask for all-powerful governments. He only sought freedom for himself, wife and children . . . not a system of heavy hand of socialism."

Socialism is a doctrine foreign "to this free country of Canada," he added.

"Don't be taken in by those socialists. This will be the most important vote you will ever cast."

Bennett, accompanied by former B.C. cabinet ministers Dan Campbell and Grace McCarthy, also predicted a resurgence of Social Credit in Canada.

He said both B.C. and Alberta would return Social Credit governments in the next provincial elections and Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Quebec would have Social Credit governments within 10 years.

Asper concluded his campaign outside Winnipeg Monday night with a visit to a meeting in Brandon, featuring a speech by National Defence Minister James Richardson.

An aide to the Liberal leader said Asper will be spending the final two days of the campaign with candidates in Winnipeg and in his own downtown riding of Wolseley.

All three leaders have predicted victory for their parties. Schreyer has appealed for a mandate to continue the work his government began four years ago after an upset victory, Spivak has been promoting his party as the only credible alternative to the NDP, and Asper has said his team of candidates will revive the party after a poor showing in the 1969 contest.

At dissolution, the NDP had 29 of the 57 seats in the legislature, the Conservatives 20 and the Liberals four.

Vancouver PO Closed

VANCOUVER (CP) — The main post office here will neither send nor receive mail today.

"The main post office is closed down," said public affairs officer Dave Stutters. "Nothing's going in and nothing's going out."

About 25 sorters walked out early Monday to protest a five-hour suspension of three union officials. Stutters had said the three were disciplined for "insurbordination."

He said Tuesday some mail is being delivered from postal stations in Vancouver, but no mail is being picked up from mail boxes.

"This will make a big difference in delivery to the interior of the province," said Stutters.

Thalidomide Battle Opens in N.J.

Times News Services

NEWARK, N.J. — A U.S. federal court judge considered a request Monday that would make New Jersey the battleground for negligence cases involving nearly a quarter of Canada's thalidomide children.

The court was asked to decide whether it can award damages to the families of 22 French-Canadian children deformed by the drug thalidomide, including an earless boy and a limbless girl.

The families never sued in Canada, mainly because of a provision in the legal code of Quebec which provides that a person suffering an injury said to be related to a product must file a damage suit within one year, if he is to file one at all.

An estimated 35 French-Canadian thalidomide victims were born in the early 1960s before it became general public knowledge that a link was suspected between ingestion of the tranquilizer in early pregnancy and the occurrence of deformities in the fetus. The drug has long been off the market.

Now the forum for these victims has moved to New Jersey, where one of the families has sued in U.S. district court.

Richardson - Merrell, Inc., which manufactured the sedative, argued the families have no basis for suing there.

"There are no New Jersey contacts whatsoever," the firm said in papers filed in advance of Monday's hearings.

The families' lawyer, Arthur Raynes, met the company argument with a disclosure the plant that manufactured thalidomide is in Phillipsburg, N.J.

In New Jersey, the statute of limitations does not even begin to run until a person reaches the age of 18.

Gaston and Lorraine Henry of Vimont Laval, Que., had a son, Denis, born on March 8, 1962. "Although I asked for Denis, they would not bring him to me," his mother said in a deposition.

"That is when I first realized that there must be something wrong," Mrs. Henry said. "When I finally did get to see him, I learned what it was.

"Denis had no ears," she said. "His face was horribly crooked . . . I saw that he was trying to cry, but the sound that he made was not the sound of a baby crying. It

Cowichan Club Humming After Co-Op Manoeuvre

There are benefits to be derived from living in a small town, one of which is co-operative assistance.

They work well together in the Duncan area, and president Bill Morrow figures "that's the only way" that Cowichan Golf Club was able to install its new automatic watering system.

When the plan was first investigated, engineering and contractual quotations from Victoria, Vancouver and Nanaimo were exorbitant. The strings of zeros behind the dollar sign and a figure almost killed it in the committee room.

But among members was one who imparted orders to engineers. They got their orders to volunteer. Costs, all of a sudden, brought the project to within common-sense grasp — of a nine-hole golf club.

There were other co-op offerings, mainly in the area of labor.

The pride was obvious when they turned it on two weeks ago. The system is the same as the one recently installed at Royal Colwood, but at a greater bargain because of that small-town co-operative.

It will be a bargain because Cowichan can now direct its energies towards 18 holes. As Morrow hinted, 256 male members, about 110 ladies and 100 juniors "shouldn't be able to afford" the system they have now.

So far this year, Cowichan's membership increased by 36 men and Morrow "blames" it all on the new watering system.

As soon as the membership total warrants it, the club will expand to 18 holes. Nothing can stop them. In addition to the 75 acres in use now, the club has another 55 acres leased out to neighboring farmers.

Until recently, the acreage totalled 121.

"Those last nine acres were the key to what can be a beautiful golf course," said pro Bill Wakeham. "The man who owned it just wouldn't sell. When he died, the club was able to purchase it from his estate.

"Now nothing can stop us."

And from the way he said "us," you know Wakeham, once from the big city, is really enjoying small-town life.

That's where co-operation exists, and the golfing is going to be better than ever.

SHORT CHIPS: You'll have to ask Wakeham about the benefits of being a home-body . . . He had a great, money-winning year playing the backyard tournaments in 1972 and threatens to do much better this time around . . . The Chopper's cut from the B.C. Open boosted his 1973 earnings to almost $4,700, and it is conceivable he'll surpass $5,000 with the Cowichan Open coming up this weekend . . . Moving boat and golf clubs into Cow Bay is Al Zimmerman . . . He finished third in the annual seniors' tournament at Prineville, Ore., two weeks ago and added another $100 from a third-place finish in the West Coast Open at the weekend . . .

After Cowichan, the next big tournament will be the Pacific Northwest Golf Association champions . . . At Oak Bay, for the women, and at Uplands, for the guys . . . July 9-14 . . . And one of the young guys to watch could be Duke DeBernardi . . . Only 20, he plays to a scratch handicap and, if memory serves, showed plenty of class as a teenager in the PNGA tournament at Colwood a couple of years ago . . . Tom Tindall and Bruce Richards, both sons of Seattle-area pros, also are threats any time they tee up . . .

The odds-on favorite in the women's field at Oak Bay undoubtedly will be Mary Budke of Oregon, the defending U.S. amateur champion . . . Liz Culver of Seattle, a regular in PNGA tournaments, is another threat . . .

★ ★ ★

Victoria Club's annual home-and-home series with Seattle Club is always taken for granted by the locals, but it still rates as one of the most historic inter-club series in North America . . . The smiles around Oak Bay are the result of victory . . . Seattle, playing at home, won Saturday's round 53-31 but dropped the series, 108-80 . . . Seattle has won 42 matches, Oak Bay 20 with two ties since the series got under way back in 1903 . . . Nora O'Connell scored her first career ace on Gorge Vale's 14th last week while George Lindsay counted his second on Uplands fourth . . . Walt Spaven (low gross), Martin Sloky (low net) and Mel Smith (visitors) topped the field in the Legion's annual tournament at Broome Hill at the weekend . . .

Listers Combine To Check Movers

Al's Home Service tightened up the Victoria Senior Baseball League race another notch Monday night by handing Greaves Movers a 4-0 loss at Lambrick Park.

Victory moved Al's to within one game of Gorge Hotel and Farmer Construction, who are deadlocked for the lead in the four-team loop. Even cellar-dwelling Greaves is only three games behind the leaders.

Eric Lister picked up the win by hurling a three-hitter and his brother, Gerry, provided the first and winning run with a double in the fourth inning.

Darryl Kubicek then drove in Gerry Lister with a one-out home run.

Bob Butcher scored an unearned run in the fifth inning to round out scoring.

McDonalds Hail Affiliates Again

Victoria McDonalds will again call on a little help from the affiliates when they go after their 13th straight victory in the Pacific Junior "A" Lacrosse League tonight.

McDonalds' coach Bill Munroe has called up Kevin Alexander and Bob Cool from Saanich, E. J. Hunter of the Pacific Junior "B" League for the game against second-place Burnaby Cablevision at 8 at Memorial Arena.

Alexander and Cool have both helped McDonalds out on previous occasions this season and have added punch to the attack.

On Monday night, Rick Boucher scored three goals and picked up three assists and Peter Guerin got two goals and two assists to lead Surrey Salmonbellies to a 12-8 victory over Richmond Road runners. The win lifted Surrey out of a tie with Coquitlam J-Hawks and into third place, two points behind Burnaby.

Century Inn Shows Muscle

Apart from this season's record in the Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League, the impressive feature of Century Inn is size. The Al Moore-coached squad is heavy on healthy-sized players.

But it was one of the "little tykes," catcher Terry Oscarson, who provided most of the muscle Monday as high-flying Century blanked Sooke Merchants 4-0 at Heywood Avenue Park.

Oscarson banged out two singles and a double, scored twice and knocked in a third run as Century reeled off its 15th straight victory.

Oscarson's three-for-three performance was all the support Bill Polz needed to win his 12th game. Polz spaced four hits, including a pair by Al Govenlock, struck out 10 and didn't walk a man.

Shortstop Bob Custance, another of Moore's slighter-built players, accounted for the two other hits off losing pitcher Ron Fedosenko — a single and a second-inning home run.

Victory pushed Century 4½ games ahead of second-running Seaboard.

Allmand Firm On Hanging Ban

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General Warren Allmand will not back down from political pressures to have his recently-introduced proposals for the complete abolition of capital punishment withdrawn.

A spokesman for the solicitor-general's office said today that despite reports the federal cabinet has instructed Allmand to withdraw the proposed amendments, the solicitor-general will not back down."

"He believes in these proposals," said the spokesman.

Allmand told the Commons justice committee last Thursday that the government will introduce amendments to its capital punishment bill that will take away the hanging penalty for all murderers.

The Commons recently passed in principle a five-year continuation of the partial ban on hanging, but retained hanging for killers of prison guards and policemen.

In making his announcement, Allmand said the amendments would do away with the five-year partial-ban and also tighten parole procedures.

In another proposed change, murderers might not become eligible for parole until 20 years.

Allmand said a "thorough debate" across the country on the question of capital punishment prompted the government to propose the amendments.

But, he said, it would still be a free vote. Each MP would vote according to his or her own conscience.

The proposed ban brought a hostile reaction from some members in the Commons Friday.

Social Credit Leader Real Caouette, an advocate of capital punishment, asked whether the government also is planning to "distribute medals to Canadian murderers."

Robert Coats (PC—Cumberland-Colchester North) challenged the prime minister to decide the issue at the next federal election by holding a national plebiscite.

The proposed amendments come up for study in the Commons justice committee tonight. If passed the bill goes back to the Commons for final reading.

Clean Mill Offer

Rayonier is willing to build a $32.5 million recovery boiler to reduce pollution at its Port Alice pulp mill, counsel for the firm told the Pollution Control Board today.

About 100 people were on hand at the law courts this morning to hear Rayonier open its appeal of restrictions set earlier by William Venables, the province's director of pollution control.

The appeal, expected to take three or four days, is being heard by a three-member board chaired by Walter Raudsepp.

Charles Locke, counsel for Rayonier Canada (B.C.) Ltd., said that while the company will build the recovery boiler it will need an extra six to nine months past the deadline of Dec. 1975 set by Venables.

Rayonier, he said, will also be asking that the water standards Venables wants met immediately be postponed until the recovery boiler is operational.

Venables, in issuing a revised permit to the pulp mill earlier this year, also instructed it to meet stricter pollution control standards by Dec., 1978.

Locke said the company will oppose these conditions and ask the board to reconsider them.

Meeting the stricter effluent controls would cost the company an additional $12 million and the firm will argue the standards are not necessary in the mill's location.

Hearing the appeal with Raudsepp are board members E. H. Vernon, chief of fisheries management with the provincial department of recreation and conservation, and J. S. Allin, an official with the provincial department of agriculture.

Nixon 'Aided Cover-Up'

Times News Serivces

WASHINGTON — President Nixon not only knew about the Watergate cover-up as early as last fall, but also helped to keep the scandal quiet, ousted White House counsel John Dean testified today.

Outwardly calm, his voice hoarse after reading a 65,000-word statement to the Senate Watergate Committee Monday detailing his own knowledge and participation in the plot, Dean answered "that is correct" several times when asked if he was charging Nixon with complicity in a massive White House effort to cover up the Watergate scandal.

Nixon, meanwhile, remained mute and in seclusion in the western White House in San Clemente, Calif. A spokesman said he was not watching the committee hearings on television, but was being kept informed on the relevant details.

Dean testified he became sure of the president's involvement Sept. 15, the day seven men — none of them White House officials — were indicted for the Watergate bugging, when the president called him in to congratulate him for his handling of the case.

"Did you have any doubt in your mind what the president was talking about?" asked Samuel Dash, the chief committee counsel.

"No, I did not," Dean replied.

"Therefore, Mr. Dean, whatever doubt you may have had prior to Sept. 15 about the president's involvement in the cover-up, did you have any doubts with yourself about this after Sept. 15?" Dash asked.

"No, I did not," Dean replied.

While Dean conceded he had actively participated in the cover-up himself — which he said involved perjury, pay-offs to the original Watergate defendants to keep them quiet and impeding the FBI investigation — he denied that he was implicating Nixon in an effort to gain immunity from criminal prosecution.

"Mr. Dash, I have been asked to give testimony," Dean said. "That testimony happens to involve the president of the United States. I have no motive of using that testimony to obtain immunity from prosecution."

Dean has been granted immunity for what he tells the Senate investigating commit-

ROYAL ROUTE LINED

Times News Services

TORONTO — Crowds, standing three to four deep, lined the route to the Ontario legislature today to see Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip arrive in a motorcade for a loyal address from Premier William Davis. (Pictures, pages 3, 37).

The crowds were in a cheerful mood as the Queen, in her reply to the loyal address, said that no matter what differences Canadians share in creed, color and tradition the law was the "one powerful, unifying force."

"Under the protection of the law and the system of parliamentary democracy, people from all over the world have been able to choose their various ways of being Canadian, respecting others but not forsaking their inheritance."

The Queen, making her first visit to Toronto in 14 years, was to spend the entire day in the city.

Her reference to the rule of law was made in French. She described Canada as a mature and independent nation and the people of Ontario as recipients of "a rich endowment of wisdom and nature."

Davis said the Queen's personal example "cast a civilizing influence upon all of our deliberations in meeting the challenges of an increasingly complex world.

"While Your Majesty's position commands respect in itself, it is Your Majesty's gracious and humane occupation of that position which evokes devotion and loyalty on a very immediate and personal level."

Earlier, a crowd of about 500 greeted the Queen and Prince Philip as they left the Royal York Hotel.

10 More Persons Kidnapped

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Argentine police today reported 10 kidnappings within the past 24 hours despite President Campora's promise his government will "firmly exercise its authority to assure orderly change."

Terrorists blamed for the unprecedented wave of kidnappings now hold 14 persons. Two other persons died of assassins' bullets.

More than 70 persons have been kidnapped by leftist guerrillas or others so far this year with ransoms paid estimated at more than $7 million.

Two of the victims were Alberto Mazzarella, 13, taken by armed men on a Cordoba street and Antanas Valinsky, 47, manager of Cordoba electric items plant, taken on his way home from work Monday.

MOTHERLESS FAWN was flown to Vancouver after being found abandoned near Terrace and will make its new home in the city children's zoo in Stanley Park. Holding the fawn is Willi Thorogood, who accompanied the animal on the flight south.

U.S. TRADE DEFICIT SENDS $ PLUNGING

LONDON (AP) — Disappointing United States trade figures sent the U.S. dollar plunging and gold prices soaring today on Western European markets.

The U.S. currency sank to a record low of 2.5350 West German marks in Frankfurt, making the rate about 39½ cents for a mark. The dollar also weakened sharply in London and Paris.

Gold prices jumped more than $4 an ounce following a U.S. commerce department announcement that the United States suffered a foreign trade deficit of $157.9 million in May, an adverse swing of more than $350 million from April's surplus of $196.3 million. Gold usually rises when the dollar is in trouble.

Parkland Cash Approved

A special warrant of $2 million for buying parkland was approved by the provincial cabinet Monday.

The money was not previously included in the 1973-74 budget, according to parks branch director Bob Ahrens, because the government "thought land acquisition for provincial park purposes would be accomplished by the Land Commission."

"But in view of all the debate (over the Land Commission Bill) and since the commission is not moving as fast as planned," Ahrens said today, "land buying will be through the parks branch.

Ahrens did not disclose what areas were involved in parkland acquisition but said his branch hopes to acquire 15 to 20 new properties by the end of the year.

The properties will form new parks as well as additions to existing provincial parks.

Break Spills Oil In Jasper Park

JASPER, Alta. (CP) — An oil spill of up to 1,000 gallons inside the eastern gate of Jasper National park was being cleaned up Monday night by a crew of about 20 men.

The spill, spotted Sunday morning by a CNR trainman who reported it to park authorities, occurred in a 24-inch pipeline owned by Trans Mountain Oil Pipeline Co.

A company official said a four-inch crack at the base of the pipe caused the leak. It was believed the leak started Saturday about 150 yards from the Athabasca River.

Oil was spotted in Lake Brule, downstream from the spill, said Bruce Wilson, assistant park superintendent.

He said the high water level of the river at this time would help dissipate the oil.

A company spokesman estimated it would take up to three days to clean up the oil at the spill site. "We can't repair the leak until the oil is cleaned up because . . . there would be high fire danger."

Wilson said park authorities are satisfied the company is doing all in its power to clean up the spill.

The pipeline carries oil from Edmonton to British Columbia and the United States.

Final Pitches In Manitoba

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba's political leaders have begun making their final appeals for voters as the provincial election campaign entered its final 48 hours today.

Premier Ed Schreyer and Conservative Leader Sidney Spiyak plan to spend the last two days before Thursday's vote with a combination of work in their home ridings and visits to other parts of the province.

Liberal Leader Izzy Asper, on the other hand, will be concentrating his attention on Winnipeg constituencies.

Former B.C. premier W. A. C. Bennett entered the election battle Monday by delivering an impassioned warning to Manitobans not to be fooled by the "sugar-coated pill" of socialism.

Campaigning for Jake Froese, seeking re-election as the Social Credit MLA for Rhineland, Bennett said pioneers who settled in Western Canada came to the country because they are seeking liberty.

"The homesteaders did not ask for all-powerful governments. He only sought freedom for himself, wife and children . . . not a system of heavy hand of socialism."

Socialism is a doctrine foreign "to this free country of Canada," he added.

"Don't be taken in by those socialists. This will be the most important vote you will ever cast."

Bennett, accompanied by former B.C. cabinet ministers Dan Campbell and Grace McCarthy, also predicted a resurgence of Social Credit in Canada.

He said both B.C. and Alberta would return Social Credit governments in the next provincial elections and Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Quebec would have Social Credit governments within 10 years.

Asper concluded his campaign outside Winnipeg Monday night with a visit to a meeting in Brandon, featuring a speech by National Defence Minister James Richardson.

An aide to the Liberal leader said Asper will be spending the final two days of the campaign with candidates in Winnipeg and in his own downtown riding of Wolseley.

All three leaders have predicted victory for their parties. Schreyer has appealed for a mandate to continue the work his government began four years ago after an upset victory. Spivak has been promoting his party as the only credible alternative to the NDP, and Asper has said his team of candidates will revive the party after a poor showing in the 1969 contest.

At dissolution, the NDP had 29 of the 57 seats in the legislature, the Conservatives 20 and the Liberals four.

Vancouver PO Closed

VANCOUVER (CP) — The main post office here will neither send nor receive mail today.

"The main post office is closed down," said public affairs officer Dave Stutters. "Nothing's going in and nothing's going out."

About 25 sorters walked out early Monday to protest a five-hour suspension of three union officials. Stutters had said the three were disciplined for "insurbordination."

He said Tuesday some mail is being delivered from postal stations in Vancouver, but no mail is being picked up from mail boxes.

"This will make a big difference in delivery to the interior of the province," said Stutters.

Thalidomide Battle Opens in N.J.

Times News Services

NEWARK, N.J. — A U.S. federal court judge considered a request Monday that would make New Jersey the battleground for negligence cases involving nearly a quarter of Canada's thalidomide children.

The court was asked to decide whether it can award damages to the families of 22 French-Canadian children deformed by the drug thalidomide, including an earless boy and a limbless girl.

The families never sued in Canada, mainly because of a provision in the legal code of Quebec which provides that a person suffering an injury said to be related to a product must file a damage suit within one year, if he is to file one at all.

An estimated 35 French-Canadian thalidomide victims were born in the early 1960s before it became general public knowledge that a link was suspected between ingestion of the tranquilizer in early pregnancy and the occurrence of deformities in the fetus. The drug has long been off the market.

Now the forum for these victims has moved to New Jersey, where one of the families has sued in U.S. district court.

Richardson - Merrell, Inc., which manufactured the sedative, argued the families have no basis for suing there.

"There are no New Jersey contacts whatsoever," the firm said in papers filed in advance of Monday's hearings.

The families' lawyer, Arthur Raynes, met the company argument with a disclosure the plant that manufactured thalidomide is in Phillipsburg, N.J.

In New Jersey, the statute or limitations does not even begin to run until a person reaches the age of 18.

Gaston and Lorraine Henry of Vimont Laval, Que., had a son, Denis, born on March 8, 1962. "Although I asked for Denis, they would not bring him to me," his mother said in a deposition.

"That is when I first realized that there must be something wrong," Mrs. Henry said. "When I finally did get to see him, I learned what it was.

"Denis had no ears," she said. "His face was horribly crooked . . . I saw that he was trying to cry, but the sound that he made was not the sound of a baby crying. It
